FARMER'S GREAT LINEN SALE.

During this month—MARCH—we shall offer the balance of HOUSEHOLD LINENS AND DRAPERY
at
SALE PRICES.

BREAKFAST AND TEA GOWNS.
Without doubt we are showing the most beautiful productions of the day. Fine Figured Indian Cashmeres, Camels' Hair Cloths, fine Plushes, Silks, Flannels, French Cashmeres, &c., are the materials employed. Too much cannot be said in favour of the richness in design of these garments. We note particularly some with full fronts of Figured and Pongee Silks.

BREAKFAST AND TEA JACKETS.
There is a rapid demand for these charming garments, and we have them in the newest materials. The Star and Muscovite Cloths, Kisthwur Cashmeres, Stripes, Checks, &c.

TRIMMINGS will, as a rule be used, but in small quantities, excepting good furs in high-class goods. The best qualities of plain Plush will be singularly free; indeed, many plush mantles will be made without any trimmings. In others a fine silk cord in all colours is used as an edge to the garment. Plaited Galons, Beaded Galons, and Tinsel Threads, with but a limited allowance of anything more pretentious, our advices indicate for Trimmings.

"I have much pleasure in bearing testimony to Mr. Louis O'Brien's excellence as a teacher of dancing. He is a most enthusiastic, painstaking teacher; his style is all that can be desired; and he is at all times perfectly courteous and polite, not only in manner, but in speech, and this has a very beneficial influence on pupils. The Class he has conducted at my school has made most marked and highly satisfactory progress under his able tuition. I regard Mr. Louis O'Brien as the most superior teacher of dancing I have met with in the colony.
"FRANCIS THOMAS,
"'The Elms,'
"Bathurst, N. S. Wales.
"October 12, 1888."

"I have very great pleasure in bearing testimony on behalf of Mr. L. O'Brien as a teacher of dancing. As one of his pupils for a period of six months, I have no hesitation in speaking of him as one of the first in his profession; he is kindness itself, courteous and polite in manner and speech, and wonderfully patient. I was one of a Private Class conducted by Mr. O'Brien, and he not only gained the respect, but the lasting affection, of every pupil in that Class. Mr. O'Brien's style of teaching was not only admired by his pupils, but by visitors from other colonies who went to the Class while staying with me.

KILL THE INSECTS AND THEIR EGGS with Clayton and Co.'s Great American Insect Exterminators. It paralyses the first touch and then kills. If blown into their haunts (crevices), or where their eggs are laid, death is instantaneous for Beetles, Ants, Silver Fish, or any other insect. It is perfectly harmless to birds or animals, and may be placed under the wing of a pet canary, and rubbed on dogs, cats, or monkeys, killing the parasites that infest them. If burnt in a room or in a camp, it kills flies and mosquitoes. If placed on window-sills you can see the large "blow fly," as well as the common fly, give up the ghost. If placed under the edges of carpets, silver fish and all other insect vermin die. It is used in the mattresses and bedsteads of all the hotels and steamboats of the United States and this colony. Sold everywhere in tins, 1s and 1s 6d, and in large boxes 1s 6d. In large cannons (to blow into crevices), 1s 6d each. Wholesale and retail, WASHINGTON H. Parliamentary Elections.

TO THE ELECTORS OF ST. LEONARDS.
Gentlemen,—The circumstances of the hour have imposed upon me the obligation of accepting the commission of his Excellency the Governor to form a new administration. Having undertaken the labours of Colonial Secretary, my seat as one of your representatives has thereby become vacant, and I now appeal to you to approve of the step I have taken by again electing me to the Legislative Assembly.
The state of public affairs is so charged with difficulty and with dangers to the public welfare that any adequate expression of my views on the questions which most closely engage public attention would be too lengthy for an address of this character. I must, therefore, leave a full exposition of the policy and intentions of the new Government to be dealt with when I meet my constituents in public meeting.
It is hoped that it will be sufficient to say here that the energies of the Government will be directed without loss of time to the redress of the just grievances of that large class of our fellow-colonists who live by productive labour in various forms of occupation of the public lands, to the maintenance of industrial enterprise, to the restoration of security in the employment of capital in the development of the great sources of the colony, and to the promotion of measures for the strengthening of the public liberties, and carrying out much-needed reforms in the administration of Government in the country districts. We have no wish to indulge in reflections upon the conduct of our opponents. There is enough to engage our whole attention in the measures which are imperatively called for in the highest interests of the people at the present time.
I purpose taking the earliest opportunity to address you in public meeting.
I remain, Gentlemen,
Your faithful servant,
HENRY PARKES.
Sydney, March 8, 1889.

SIR H. PARKES will address the Electors of St. Leonards at the Centennial Hall, Walker-street, on MONDAY, at 8 p.m., March 11.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE GLEBE.
Gentlemen,—Having accepted office in the Administration of Sir Henry Parkes as Secretary for Public Works, I take the earliest opportunity of acquainting you with the fact. As you are aware, it will now become necessary for me to again offer myself as a candidate for your representation in Parliament, and I desire to inform you that I shall have the pleasure, at an early date, of addressing you on the present political situation, in order that you may have the fullest opportunity of determining whether the step I have taken entitles or disentitles me to a continuance of the confidence which you so lately and so emphatically reposed in me.
Yours faithfully,
BRUCE SMITH.

TO THE ELECTORS OF CANTERBURY.
Gentlemen,—My seat in Parliament as one of your representatives has been declared vacant, by reason of my acceptance of the office of Minister of Public Instruction in the Administration just formed by Sir Henry Parkes.
I now seek re-election at your hands and I hope that the confidence which you have hitherto reposed in me as a private member will be similarly extended to me coming before you as a Minister of the Crown.
I have accepted office with a deep sense of the high obligations and responsibilities attaching thereto, and it shall be my highest aim to fulfil the duties of the position to the benefit of my native land and with honour to myself and to those whom I represent.
I shall address you prior to the day of election on the condition of public affairs and on the policy of the Government.
Yours obediently,
J. H. CARRUTHERS.

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST MACQUARIE.
Gentlemen,—
I have accepted the office of Minister for Mines in the Administration formed by Sir Henry Parkes, and therefore my seat as your representative has become vacant.
I now take the earliest opportunity of appealing to you for a renewal of the confidence so generously reposed in me on previous occasions.
I shall shortly visit the electorate, and fully express my views on the state of public business, and on the measures likely to be introduced by the new Government.
Yours faithfully,
SYDNEY SMITH.

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST SYDNEY.
Gentlemen,—For the third time I am a candidate for your suffrages.
Since I had the honour of addressing you on the hustings, the Dibbs Ministry has been defeated, and in the new Ministry of Sir Henry Parkes I have accepted the office of Colonial Treasurer.
As you are aware, the affairs of this office have been the subject of much comment both in the Legislative Assembly and in the public Press of the country. A clear, simple, and absolutely reliable statement of the present condition of our finances is now imperatively demanded—to avoid uncertainty in the future, to allay the very reasonable anxiety in the public mind, and to stop those continuous rumours which must more or less affect our public credit.
My opinions on all matters of public policy are well known to you from recent addresses. I shall, however, again avail myself of this opportunity, either in one of the public halls or on the hustings, to lay fully before you my views on the present political situation.
I have the honour to be,
Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
W. M'MILLAN.
Sydney, March 8, 1889.

FOR GENERAL USE IN PLACE OF SUGAR.
SACCHARIN.
One Pound equals about 280lb of Cane Sugar.

One of the chief uses of SACCHARIN will be in the enrichment of the diet of those persons who are forbidden the use of sugar, and who will now be able to enjoy a sweet flavouring in the various articles of diet formerly denied them. It is particularly applicable to those suffering from diabetes, gout, rheumatism, dyspepsia, obesity, and liver complaints, or any form of disease where the use of sugar is objectionable. It cannot "create acidity," as sugar often does, since it is non fermenting and antiseptic characteristics of very great importance.

Since the establishment of the institution 4513 children have been benefited.

No annual subsidy, such as was formerly granted, has been received from the Government since 30th June, 1885, in consequence of which the directors have not been able to meet all expenses from the income arising from the investment of legacies, from special donations, and from voluntary contributions. The directors hope this will commend itself to the favourable consideration of all who are in a position to assist in extending the usefulness of the society, and thus enable the directorate to enlarge its sphere of operations.

REPORT by Mr. ROBERT A. WHITE, C.E.:—
After a series of the most exhaustive experiments I am most decidedly of opinion that the flux lately discovered and brought to me by Mr. W. G. Clark is in the highest degree effective in successfully coating either iron or steel with either copper or Muntz metal. When so coated, iron or steel plates, bars, or tubes can be used for stationary or locomotive boiler plates, boiler tubes, plates of which ships can be constructed, the ironwork under railway and road carriages, pipes used for deep well pumps where mineral water is found, and for innumerable other purposes; and I have not the slightest doubt but that materials so coated will be used for these purposes to such an enormous extent as to practically provide altogether new uses for copper. After making diligent search of all available records, and making every enquiry, and subjecting the iron so coated to very severe tests, I can confidently certify that the discovery is entirely new, valuable, and effective.

The result of my experiments proves that ships' plates coated by this process will be entirely impervious to any deleterious action of salt water, as the plate can be so entirely covered that it will be utterly impossible for any galvanic action to take place between the copper and iron.

What makes this discovery much more valuable than it otherwise would be is the fact that this flux is found in ample quantities in a natural state, and that the principal place from which it is to be obtained has been secured. The flux will require no mixing, and can be supplied in any quantities that may be desired at a very reasonable price.

Any Company formed to work this discovery is bound to make enormous profits, as I am certain that this material will be found not only useful for the purposes above mentioned, but that it will be of vast utility and value for many altogether different purposes.

From what I can judge of this material I shall be very much surprised indeed if its discovery does not turn out to be one of the most important events that has occurred for many years.

ROBT. A. WHITE.
28, Exchange, Pirie-street, Adelaide, February 13, 1889.

CERTIFICATE from Messrs. FULTON and CO., Engineers and Ironfounders, Adelaide and Kilkenny.
We hereby certify that pieces of iron and steel were coated, some with copper and some with Muntz metal, at our works, by Mr. W. G. Clark, in the month of January, 1889, and that the iron was heated in an open forge and the copper and Muntz metal melted in an ordinary brass furnace. We see no reason why plates of any dimensions cannot be coated in a similar manner if proper appliances are provided.

This Company is being formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase from the vendors the ice-making plant, machinery, business, and lease of the premises known as the Colonial Ice Company's Works, situated in Kensington-street, Chippendale, together with the Patent Rights for the colony of New South Wales in and to a patent known as Kyle's "Improved Compound Direct Acting and Reversible Ice Box," and also for the purpose of enlarging and extending the said plant and business.
The Works are now capable of turning out 12 tons of ice per day, at a cost of about 10s per ton, thus showing a very substantial profit, as ice sells readily at £3 to £4 per ton wholesale. When the present plant is completed, the same machinery will be capable of turning out more than double the quantity at a very small additional cost. The ice produced by this process is solid, clear, and pure, and has been pronounced superior to any ice yet produced in Sydney; being frozen very hard, it lasts much longer, and is consequently more economical than other ice. Notwithstanding that the Company only entered the market in the middle of the season, when ice consumers had made their arrangements with the other companies, still this Company's Ice is making a name for itself and is finding its way into the market. Already the Company is not only paying expenses but making a fair profit.
Intending Shareholders are invited to inspect the Company's Works.

This company is being formed for the purpose of acquiring, continuing and enlarging the long-established and well-known business of Mr. S. Cranston, Wholesale Iron Merchant, of 375, George-street, Sydney.
The business has been carried on by Mr. Cranston for the past six years, and with such marked success that he is now desirous of introducing more capital, with a view to participating in the much larger profits accruing from being able to hold a larger stock, purchase for cash, and in larger quantities. He has decided, therefore, to form the business into a Limited Liability Company, in which he proposes to retain a large interest, and, if so desired, to continue in the practical management.
The lines chiefly dealt in are rolled joists, girder plates, rivets; bar, angle, and T iron, wire nails; pig, hoop, and galvanised iron; sheet and pig lead, cement, boiled and raw oil, white and red lead, wire, &c., which, it is now intended, to always have in stock and to arrive.
Mr. Cranston, who is well known in the building and engineering trades both in Sydney and Brisbane, as an importer of the above classes of goods, has had many years' experience in the English markets, and holds some of the best English agencies in the lines specified. He is therefore in a position to buy on exceptionally favourable terms, and on the formation of the company will hand over all the agencies which he now holds.
These agencies comprise several which are not directly connected with his special line of business, but which can be made a considerable source of income if properly worked up; amongst others may be mentioned saddle-cloths, buckles, lubricating felt, bolts and nuts, steel wire, foundry brushes, &c.
The success attending all well-managed ironmongery businesses in these colonies is well known, and it may be confidently stated that such a favourable opportunity as is now offered for the investment of capital in a going concern, already yielding large profits, has seldom if ever been laid before the public.
The provisional directors have arranged with Mr. Cranston to retain his services as Manager for a period of three years.
The Vendor, in proof of his confidence in the continued success of the business, will guarantee to Shareholders dividends of ten per cent. per annum for the first three years upon the amount of capital paid up, and will deposit with the Directors of the Company 2000 of his shares to secure such guarantee.
Mr. Cranston will make over to the Company the leasehold of his business premises in George-street, and also of his storage premises in Pyrmont, the latter lease having nine years to run at the low net rental of £75 per annum; the land has a frontage of 50ft. to Jones-street, by a depth of 130ft., and an equal frontage to a lane 20ft. wide. The Company will have the option of leasing the adjoining premises, which are of the same dimensions, at a similar rental.
The Company will also get possession of Mr. Cranston's extensive stock of rolled iron joists, plates, rivets, &c., the whole to be taken over at a valuation; also all orders booked for goods waiting arrival from England, to complete which will amount to about £2000.
Shares to be allotted according to priority of application.
The outstanding accounts due to the Vendor will be guaranteed by him, and may be taken over by the Company at the Directors' discretion, to be paid for on terms as may be arranged.
For the Goodwill of the premises the Vendor will receive £500 cash, or bills for that amount nett.
The only charges to be borne by the Company will be for brokerage, advertising, and other preliminary expenses.
The business and assets are taken over as from the 15th February, 1889.
The company to be considered formed when 7000 shares have been applied for.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS FOR CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH.
CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.
The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which in OUTWARD APPEARANCE so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor therefore feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.
Purchasers are therefore requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—
1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist, Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to each PACKET.

CLEMENTS' TONIC — For all affections arising from poorness of BLOOD, which are really not diseases, but only symptoms of a DEBILITATED SYSTEM.
CLEMENTS' TONIC
CLEMENTS' TONIC — If you only knew and properly understood the duties which the blood has to perform, and the absolute necessity for it to have a definite chemical composition, and also knew that the supply of mineral constituents from Australian food is totally inadequate to keep the blood sufficiently strong in OXIDISING POWER on which process health depends, you would then comprehend why it is imperatively necessary to artificially supply the blood with its natural mineral elements for the formation of HEALTHY TISSUE, BONE, MUSCLE, &c. Youapply these elements, CLEMENTS' TONIC is offered, and is the only RATIONAL RESTORATIVE prepared in Australia. It positively cures all diseases arising from POORNESS OF BLOOD or DEBILITY, such as NEURALGIA, WEAKNESS, NERVOUSNESS, NERVOUS DEBILITY, NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, LANGUOR, TOOTHACHE, LOSS OF APPETITE, SLEEP, VITALITY, or ENERGY. It supplies the vital stream with the chemical food necessary to ensure a proper exercise of the natural processes of life, strengthens the digestive organs, imparts VITALITY and ASSIMILATION, ensures regular and natural sleep, increases nerve force, and fortifies the system against disease. Medical men who know its chemical composition and therapeutical value have recommended it far and wide; they recommend it on account of its sterling value, and know that it can be depended on to DO GOOD and CURE DISEASE. They know its Chemical Composition, and that it has a SPECIFIC CURATIVE ACTION on diseased organisms, therefore they prescribe it and extol its virtues as a SCIENTIFIC ANTIDOTE for all diseases arising from DEBILITY AND NERVOUS WEAKNESS. CLEMENTS' TONIC is sold by all respectable chemists throughout the colonies, and the public are warned that it is the practice with some unscrupulous dealers to offer a substitute; therefore, if you expect good results, insist on having the genuine article, bearing the name and address,

OUR AMERICAN LETTER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.

Perhaps the most curious feature of the last Presidential campaign was the silence and self-effacement of the Labour party. It went through the farce of making nominations, but on election day it made no serious effort to support its candidates, and its adherents voted either for Cleveland or Harrison, according to their individual leanings. Naturally, many people hoped that the attempt to make a party out of a class had been abandoned as impracticable. But the echoes of the struggle are hardly still before the old spectre bobs up again as full of menace, and apparently of vigour, as before. Everywhere the working-men have re-asserted their old claims in a yet more decisive and unmistakeable form, and in this city we have for six days been in the throes of our usual annual excitement in the shape of a great strike. Ten days ago, six of the Brooklyn car lines, employing 1800 men, refused to renew the agreement which had been in force during 1888, and which had been signed by the companies at the end of a great strike, and they further declined in any way to recognise hereafter any officers of the labour organisations. Of course, the men immediately struck, and the police, while doing their best to prevent open violence, proved utterly powerless to protect the companies in their efforts to procure new hands. After three days it turned out that all the New York companies had combined in the same way to refuse to renew expiring agreements or to treat with the unions; and thereupon, all the principal lines in this city, except one, were also "tied up"—that is, the 7000 men employed as drivers, conductors or stablemen, simultaneously, and without an hour's warning, left the companies and the companies 15,000 horses, and the poor public that relied upon the horse-cars as a means of going to and from work, to shift for themselves as best they could. Great mobs assembled at all the depots and kept those inside in a state of siege, refusing even to permit the entrance of food. The police, by desperate clubbing, have spasmodically broken this blockade, but the companies have only, with the greatest difficulty, succeeded in getting a few hundred new hands, and these have to be kept in the stables over night to save them from violence. Each day, on three out of the 11 lines, a few score cars have been run during the day under a strong police escort, but the tracks have been deserted long before dusk, and from a pecuniary point of view, business has practically been suspended entirely. After six days the men have begun to weaken, and a few of them have even formally submitted, but the strike has yet a good deal of life left in it, and if settled up at once, it would leave still a good deal of bad blood behind it. The companies have organised a sort of "trust" among themselves, as complete and as wide-reaching as that formed among the men, as the result of the great previous strike of June, 1886, and the struggle now is which of these two great powers—the executive committee of the combined unions or the officials of the combined railroads—shall survive. From the outset the men have offered to submit the entire matter to arbitration by the legal commission appointed by the Legislature specially for that purpose, and composed of three officials who draw salaries of 5000dol. a year each, but this would involve the appearance, as spokesmen for the men, of the officers of the Assembly of the Knights of Labour, and so the companies have declined to accede to any such proposition, and have failed even to formally reply to a written invitation sent to them officially by this State board of arbitration. At the time the arbitration commission was appointed its friends desired to give it compulsory powers; but this was resisted on the ground that no citizen should be forced to go before a tribunal other than the established courts. It was argued that the employers as a class would only be too glad always to avail themselves as a privilege of such a means of conciliation. Public sentiment now seems to drift towards the conclusion that, taking the world as it actually has grown to be—a collection of great organised bodies, and not of units—compulsory arbitration of labour disputes must be decreed. Already the Supreme Court has decided that as between the individual and the State the State has the absolute right to do what it pleases—at least, in the famous Knapp case and the equally famous Granger railroad cases, that is the real meaning of the decisions—and now, we may after awhile reach the point of establishing it as a principle that even in the ordinary operations of business a man cannot do as he likes, but must submit even such questions as the wages paid to his employees to the decision of a majority of his neighbours. Of course, it will be a long time before this goal is reached, and at first such a regime will be confined to chartered corporations and "trusts," but no one can read the unconscious comments of the journals on the strike, or listen to discussions about it among the more educated classes without seeing clearly that the old traditions of individual rights are rapidly being undermined.

The incoming Harrison Administration will find itself confronted with a long array of troublesome international controversies. All our differences with the outside world threaten to come to a head at the same time. Samoa has been the overshadowing point of interest during the past month, and if the country had been governed by the newspapers, we should have already forced Germany into a declaration of war. The bitterest diatribes ever penned against the British Lion have been outdone by the abuse lavished upon Count Herbert Bismarck and his famous father, and "German brutality" is now as familiar to our ears as the well-worn "English greed" of bygone epochs. And yet even the State Department and the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Senate (the latter, under our system, being of course the most important factor in the determination of our policy) seem to have a very imperfect notion of what has already taken place, and still less of what is likely to happen in the future. The most obvious fact in the controversy is that our material interest in the Samoans is almost infinitesimal. The American tonnage to the islands last year reached a grand total of only 1064 tons, and the export and import trade combined aggregated but 125,000 dollars. This, too, thanks to the protective system, is more likely to dwindle down yet lower than to increase. But such considerations weigh little in the present temper of the American people, who are for the moment, very distinctly inclined

——"Greatly to find quarrel in a straw
When honour's at the stake."

For half a century, American missionaries have built up sentimental ties between the islanders and the great Republic, and again and again a protectorate has been suggested, and would probably have been enthusiastically welcomed. But Samoa lies beyond the confines of the Monroe doctrines; and besides, there is no room in our rigid paper constitution for such outlying possessions. If brought beneath our flag, what could she be? She is far too small for a State, or even for a territory, and our territorial governments are in their essence simply provisional and temporary. But that our forbearance should simply result in leaving the islands as a prey to another power grates upon our national pride, and the 150,000,000dol. surplus in the treasury is a strong incentive to interfere, if necessary, by force. Even German-Americans have passed many resolutions entreating the Government to stand firm, and to rely implicitly upon their loyalty to the Stars and Stripes, even against the Fatherland. As to news of the present status in the islands, Australians are of course much better informed than ourselves. It is hardly likely, however, that any American Administration can possibly consent, under any circumstances, to German occupation of Samoa, and if the Germans insist upon the right of searching American vessels (which is the latest current rumour) war would be inevitable.

There is feverish activity at all the navy yards, and the miserable old tubs which mainly compose our navy are being patched up into presentable trim. It is conceded, however, that our main reliance would be in buying before the declaration of war a few good ironclads from France or some other European Power. Everyone is getting familiar with the idea of a war of some kind, and not a few would hail it as a means of solving the open question, whether New York and Boston and New Orleans could be saved from bombardment. As to land operations, these are looked upon as out of the question; our two millions of veterans are relied upon to take and hold just as much of the continent as is necessary.

The joint resolution of Congress warning France that any Government interposition in the De Lesseps canal would be accepted as an unfriendly act, was passed by an overwhelming majority, and the President is directed to bring the same to the attention of the world at large. Meanwhile, Vice-President-elect Morton, Eugene Kelly, ex-Mayor Grace, and some other gentlemen who have made a few millions out of De Lesseps, by a very ingenious and effective dredging apparatus, are rejoicing for the completion of the canal, and are the parties who are really behind the aid tendered at the last moment by the Banque Parisienne. If their proposition is accepted, 75,000,000dol, of American and English money will be raised, and it is confidently believed that at least enough progress will be made with that sum to attract easily whatever capital may yet be lacking. It goes without saying, however, that this scheme practically means that the new managers will get the lion's share of the spoils of success; the original French investors will have patiently to stay out in the cold for at least a generation to come before anything can be spared, as we say sometimes, to "warm their toes." The main scheme itself is menaced by the Nicaraguan rival project, which has now received the sanction of Congress, and which, in the opinion of American engineers, is the true route between the two oceans. All the surveys are made, the money necessary can be raised without the slightest difficulty, and its friends say that the world will have soon a very effective object lesson in the rapidity with which it will be finished, between American and French methods of attaining results. Much of this may be mere gasconade, but very competent authorities lean to the opinion that the Nicaraguan route will yet be the first open for business, and will certainly be always the safer and speediest, even though it be also the longer channel. It is computed to cost 70,000,000 dollars, and can hardly run beyond 100,000,000 dollars at the worst.

Hayti, convulsed in the agonies of a doubtful civil war, we have already resolutely awed into yielding what we were pleased to term our rights, and are by no means proud of the achievement. This is the one success of the present State Department, but the Haytians threatened to appeal to the American courts, and immediately the Americans, who claimed to have been injured were glad to compromise their damages for a cash payment of a few thousand dollars, instead of the two millions, for which the bill was originally presented. This, to the "impartial observer," looks very much as though the Haytian contention that the vessel seized had been caught in the act of furnishing aid to the insurrectionary forces, could be proved beyond doubt; and it is on record that in a previous case of the kind, Hayti having in the same way paid an indemnity under protest actually recovered it back in a United States Court. That is one of the acts of justice which at the time did much to raise the general reputation of this country in the West Indies, and probably had a good deal to do with the voluntary offer made shortly after by San Domingo to sell us the harbour of Tamana Bay.

Congress and the Administration are hard at work in routine duty, but of course all eyes are turned towards Indianopolis, which is the centre of all our future hopes. Just as Mr. Cleveland will go down to history for his marvellous power of personal will, so probably will Mr. Harrison for his extraordinary gifts of reticence. Even in its own strongholds, the old Bourbon party of the democracy is losing ground, and good men on all sides hope that under Harrison a middle course will be found between negro supremacy and the unchecked rule of a white minority. Certainly in the north there is a very strong opposition to the revival of the scandalous carpet-bag Governments that reigned immediately after the war, but there is an equally positive determination that the solid South shall either voluntarily dissolve or be compelled to disband by force. Even in the last election, although every Northern State but two went for Harrison, yet in the Southern States, the enormous majorities rolled up outweigh the Republican majority, and on the popular vote show a majority of 125,000 for Cleveland. To any fair-minded man, this recalls the days of the Tweed ring in New York city, when in many districts the democratic majority exceeded the entire adult-male population.

In spite of the rumours of wars and the certainty of heated political controversies and labour troubles the men with money to lose feel very hopeful. Stocks and bonds are steadily rising and money goes begging at 1½ to 2 per cent, on call. On first-class city real estate mortgages the rate has plainly declined a half of one per cent. during the past year. In 1887 there were no mortgages recorded at less than 6 per cent; now, on the same class of security, money has been borrowed at 3½. In the same way, the best or "gilt edged" railroad bonds have distinctly appreciated several per cent.—enough to represent the capitalised value of about the same advance. So far, therefore, the downward march of interest has undoubtedly not yet been checked, and optimists predict that before the end of the century the American rate of interest will be lower than that ruling in Europe. Middle-aged men began life when 6 per cent. was obtainable as easily as 3 per cent. is now, and when 7 per cent. was the ordinary rate on the very best mortgages. Wheat has had a great fall recently, and this will stimulate exports, but our surplus is comparatively so small that this is not a matter of very great importance. This year there will be but little railroad building, but still the iron market (which is by many financiers held to be the very best American business barometer) holds up bravely. Taken as a whole, the situation is very cheerful, and as soon as the horizon is cleared of a few passing clouds, there will probably be a great "boom" in prices.

The theatres are still in the dumps. The railroad strike has hurt them terribly for a week past, because no one has been able to get to them. Mrs. Langtry is playing Lady Macbeth far better than any one supposed she could. At the Metropolitan, the German troupe has had a needed accession in "Fraülein Lohman," but Wagner still fills up an abnormal part of the repertoire. Harrigan has revived "Pete;" Denman Thompson announces that seats are to be booked 10 weeks ahead for the "Old Homestead;" and at the other houses there is a similar outbreak of old pieces. The greatest of sensations for the month among actors has been the blackballing of Colonel Robt. G. Ingersoll at the new Players' Club. The colonel has always been the warmest and most generous of the patrons of the drama, but he has been also singularly free and forcible in his criticisms of such venturesome knights of the sock and buskin as have attempted the divine William. Each great Shakespearean actor remembers some stinging phrase that made his cheeks hot with anger, and it is this, and not the colonel's religious notions, that has earned him social rejection.

ENGLISH GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Feb. 1.

One would think we were on the eve of war, according to Mr. Secretary Stanhope. He ought to know all about the threatening cloud that hangs over Europe. He says it may burst any day, and that we ought to be prepared. This kind of thing has been said for years, and probably with as much cause when first uttered as at this moment. The standing prophecy was that as soon as the old German Emperor died the troops would begin to march. The illustrious Kaiser is dead: so likewise is his noble son. A third monarch sits on the Imperial throne within a comparatively few months; and to-day it is not "What is Germany going to do?" but "What is France going to do?" At least so run comment and opinion, and all because Boulanger has won a bye-election. There must, indeed, be something very ticklish in the state of Europe when every political wind that blows sets people asking of the watchman "What of the night?" I have during the past week heard very wise and thoughtful and clever men say that our War Secretary has not exaggerated the outlook, though most people give him credit for putting special colour into his speech for the sake of working the public and the House of Commons into the right frame of mind to pass the forthcoming military and naval estimates. At the same time it is not to be forgotten that last week Lord Wolseley advised the adoption of the same system of conscription in England as that which is the rule in continental countries. When foreign critics write and talk about the English Army, they forget that it is a volunteer force, and when counting its comparatively small numbers, they omit perhaps to reckon up the number of our male population; for that would mean the number of our fighting men if ever England were in danger. Glancing at Boulanger's speeches during the past few days, one comes to the conclusion that his straight advice is "Let us get the Exhibition over without trouble; there must be no fighting at home or abroad until the Exhibition has been brought to a successful conclusion." One cannot help feeling that the Paris show is not founded in the spirit of that peace which everybody is said to desire; it is in reality a defiance, a threat; while it glorifies liberty, it also glorifies blood, and as it were, trails the Republican coat-tails before Imperial Germany.

The refusal of the English Government to take part in celebrating the fall of the Bastille has not, however, prevented English manufacturers and others from taking part in the show. As a people we can have no objection to the raison d'etre of the affair, but it could hardly have been expected that officially it could have received a British endorsement. It will be a remarkable exhibition nevertheless. The French themselves are doing all they know to make it worthy of their greatness and their artistic fame. They are understood to be pleased with the sympathetic way in which English citizens have taken it up. America will also be magnificently represented.

The first of all the International Exhibitions, held in Hyde Park in 1851, was to have been the forerunner of a millennium of peace; it was only the beautiful false light on the rocks; the end of a long period of rest and prosperity, it was the beginning of the most terrible wars of our time. No one pretends that the newest of international shows is likely to be regarded as a token of France's desire for peace; and yet all the world knows that no nation under the sun has so little to gain and so much to lose by war. The idea that she can depend upon the aid of Russia is as foolish as the notion that England would wish to see her once more crippled. It is quite possible that Bismarck's recent demonstration in favour of England is intended as a check to France; for Bismarck does not want war; it is, indeed, nobody's game just now, and yet everybody has to be ready for it. The worst of it is there is no single nation strong enough to invite the Powers to consider the question of disarmament. Quite recently public men and newspapers had begun to drop their ugly forecasts of war; but now we are in the midst of them once more, and Mr. War Secretary Stanhope and the election of Boulanger have started them afresh.

The Fortnightly Review for the present month of February contains an article on "The Bismarck Dynasty," which will for some time, no doubt, be a topic of discussion throughout Europe. The Standard, in a leader upon it, points out that the writer has evidently his knowledge and information from very high and authoritative quarters; and the Pall Mall Gazette comes out with extracts from it under a series of startling headings such as the following:—"The Bismarck Dynasty; How it is being Established and Why; Making War on Women and the Dead; The Prince of Wales and his Sister." It is stated, and with evident truth, that immediately on the death of the Emperor Frederick, Count Bismarck exultingly exclaimed "We shall have no more petticoats meddling in politics now"—only that instead of the word "petticoats" he used a word too coarse to print. The article is powerfully written, and it makes the most dire and circumstantially true charges against Prince Bismarck, even to the extent of alleging that he tried to accelerate the death of the late Kaiser; it shows why Bismarck hated the Empress, and gives evidence of that underlying hostility to England and the English Royal family which has marked the political career of the great Chancellor for some years past. His son Herbert will carry on the Bismarckian succession, and the young Emperor has all the same contempt for women as is shown to guide Bismarck, and to influence his son, though it must not be forgotten that Bismarck, according to more than one biographer, is a kindly, domesticated man in his own household. His treatment of the Empress Victoria, and the encouragement he gave for her son to insult her, are, however, notorious, and will not be forgotten. One day, should the strained relations which have more than once shaken the good feeling between the two countries ever lead to serious trouble, the outrageous conduct of the young Emperor to his bereaved mother, and the open hostility of both to England, will break out with bitter rancour. The private gossip of Court circles is full of startling instances of the unsonlike treatment which the Empress Victoria has received at the hands of the Emperor.

In certain art circles the death of Pelligrini, the caricaturist, has created quite a flutter of regretful gossip. The artist was an Italian, and he made Vanity Fair by his wonderfully fresh and truthful humourous portraiture. His signature was "Ape," and his work was marvellous, seeing that he did not take a note or make the smallest sketch of his sitters, but drew his portraits long after they had left his studio. It is not, I suppose, within the history of caricature, before Pelligrini's time, that famous men sat to their cynical limners; but the best and greatest men of our day sat to Pelligrini, and ostensibly, and in fact, for the purposes of caricature, and whatever may be said to the contrary there was often something very cruel in his pictures. Some years ago, owing to a misunderstanding with Mr. Fred. Boyle, the editor and proprietor of Vanity Fair, Pelligrini resigned, with the full intention of devoting himself to portraiture proper, but strange to say, he did not succeed, and one of his most intimate friends tells me that this was really the cause of his death. His failure so preyed upon his mind that he took to drink, and in the end drink killed him. Neither of these facts has come out in any of the many biographies of the dead artist, and they are not mentioned now with any desire to belittle his fame; but they make the lesson of his life and death complete. Men who have a big faculty in one particular direction should not desert a special line of work until they have proved their capacity for another. Pelligrini was a witty and humourous man, a trifle coarse, but of a peculiar genius for spotting and pourtraying the odd and curious sides of human nature.

"The Last Voyage of Lady Brassey" is published this week, in handsome and attractive form, admirably illustrated and with a touching memoir by the popular and lamented lady's husband, addressed to his children, the closing sentences of which may be commended to the world in general; for however large or small our fortunes we can all leave behind us some influence for good. "I do not recall these things," says Lord Brassey, "solely as a tribute to the dear one who has passed away from among us, but for your profit and for mine. We have seen how your mother used her opportunities to make the world a little better than she found it. We may each do the same service in our own sphere, and so may best be followers of her good example. In tenderest love may we ever cherish and bless and revere her memory. My dear children I might write more. I never could tell you what your mother was to me." The new book cannot fail to be of abiding interest to Australia.

The New York Herald (London edition) edition was to have appeared a few days ago, but it had to be postponed from a break-down in the machinery. After much flourishing of trumpets, it has made its appearance to-day—an interesting sheet, competing more with the Morning Post and the weekly society press than with its regular daily contemporaries. As a London journal, the title of New York Herald will not be likely to help it; and one cannot help feeling that the same disability will apply to its Sunday edition. It is an enterprising thing, no doubt, to have the New York Herald published simultaneously in different editions at New York, Paris, and London. The cost of competing with the London press must be something enormous, though the advantage of each city as a centre of news is no doubt very great, chiefly, however, from a New York point of view.

The wave of speculation is still strong in the city. Companies are launched every day. Nitrate shares have fallen, not for any reason beyond the fact that Colonel North is leaving England for a time to visit Chili. The speculating public seem to think his financial interests will not be well looked after in his absence, or operators are trying to lead them to reflect in this direction. But the truth is, North's trip to his Eldorado should be beneficial to his stocks rather than otherwise. The city of Leeds gave him the freedom of their new charter last week, in token of their appreciation of his donation of Kirkstall Abbey and his public and private benevolence. The other day he went to Newmarket and bought a string of racehorses, his friend Lord Randolph Churchill being present to advise him. Recently he bought some wonderful greyhounds, giving as much as eight hundred pounds for one dog. "Yes, I am going in for racing," he said to me during a chat I had with him yesterday, "but I don't bet a shilling; you may rest assured that I shall run my horses and dogs to win; but all I want is the honor and glory of the fun, and to do my little in improving the breed of horses, and to keep alive English sports." This I believe is the principle upon which the Duke of Westminster runs his horses; and yet his Grace manages to pull off a considerable sum towards the expenses in the way of stakes which he wins every year. In regard to "the Liverpool Cup," said North, "I told my trainer that all I want is the honour of winning; you may keep the stakes." I dined with the millionaire the other night, and a great judge of character said, "My dear sir, Colonel North will keep his wealth; he is not one of the men who, making money, spend it fast, and at last go to the wall; he will spend money liberally and well, and lots of it; but he will know where to stop, and he is a level-headed, keen man of business." And that is my own opinion. Anyhow North is the man of the hour; everybody is talking of him, everybody wants to know him. He is of medium height, thick neck, square forehead, strong chin, a sensuous mouth, thick, somewhat snub, nose; his head is partially bald, he wears side-whiskers and a moustache; he has auburn, almost red, hair, and bright blue eyes; his manner is simple and easy; he is fond of hunting, works hard, has a Yorkshire accent, a good sense of humour, not a bit of ostentation, is as much at home with the Prince of Wales as he is with his groom, and is voted by all who know him a downright good fellow.

Mr. Thomas Hardy published his first novel anonymously. It was a fair success, and of late years has been mentioned occasionally among his works, but he has never yet acknowledged it on the title page. "Desperate Remedies" is, however, now shortly to be published by Ward and Downey, with a preface by the author. "Under the Greenwood Tree" is generally spoken of as Hardy's first book. Mr. Hardy does not write much, and one finds in this fact a recommendation. Most novelists write too many stories to avoid repetition of characters and ideas. Mr. Hall Caine is engaged upon a new story for the Tillotson Newspaper Syndicate, and Christie Murray, Thomas Hardy, and Clark Russell are also writing new works for the same publisher. Rider Haggard has made South Africa popular as a story ground. Mr. Henty is starting to print a romantic history, the scenes of which are to be among the Kaffirs and Cape Mounted Rifles. He will call it "The Curse of Carne's Hold." A cheap edition of "The Story of an African Farm" is just out, with a preface by the author, in which the critics are taken to task for a fault they undoubtedly frequently commit, namely, discussing a book not from the author's standpoint, but from some alleged or imaginary canons of fiction, criticising it more on account of what it is not than what it is. "It has been suggested," writes the author, "by a kind critic that he would have liked the little book better if it had been a history of wild adventure, of cattle driven into inscrutable 'kranzes' by bushmen, of encounters with raving lions, and hairbreadth escapes. This could not be. Such works are best written in Piccadilly or in the Strand; there the gifts of the creative imagination, untrammelled by contact with fact, may spread their wings." It seems to have only lately been discovered that the author of "The African Farm" is not a man, but a woman, though any reader with ordinary penetration might have known that no male author would have dressed up that man Gregory in woman's clothes and made him nurse to a bed-ridden young woman, his own love, dying after the birth of her child by his rival, whom she will not marry because she hates the idea of being bound to a man she does not wholly love. The story is a very painful one, but it is finely written, and much of it very true to life, and at the same time with plenty of imagination. The nom de plume of R. Iron covers the real authorship, now acknowledged, Olive Schreiner, who it is said wrote the story first in German.

Mr. Wilson Barrett has reappeared at his old theatre, under the management of Miss Hawthorne, who, it will be remembered, secured the lease of this house during his visit to America. He will remain 12 weeks. His opening play was "Hamlet," after which he made a speech, astonishing his audience by expressing a wish that some millionaire, such as Colonel North, would build a theatre for him, and put an end to his vagabondising about the country. Poor Barrett, it is no doubt hard to be a lodger in the house where he was successful; but one cannot forget that he deserted the form of entertainment which his patron loved, and in which he was acceptable—high-class melodrama—for Shakespeare and classic plays which either did not suit him or the theatre. He is an excellent actor in his line, an admirable stage manager, and one regrets to see him without a London theatre, though most people are sorry that he should feel his position so keenly as to make a sort of ad misericordiam appeal for financial assistance.

One of the prettiest houses in town is the Criterion, which has been redecorated—gold, crimson, and æsthetic browns being the leading combination of colour. Mr. Wyndham, the best of our light comedians, has surprised his friends by his calm, intense playing of John Mildmay in "Still Waters Run Deep," which is now his leading attraction, with Mrs. Bernard Beere as Mrs. Sternhold, Mrs. Albery as Mrs. Mildmay, and Mr. Standing as Captain Hawksley. "Captain Swift," at the Haymarket, is at last coming to an end, after a long and popular run. "The Merry Wives of Windsor" being now promoted from the morning to the evening bill. Considering that Mr. Beerbohm Tree is a thin tall man, after the build of Henry Irving, his Falstaff is a singularly good performance. He will shortly produce a new piece, by H. A. Jones, in which the story mainly lies upon his shoulders, and Jones believes he will carry it with all the power and force it requires. It is, indeed, a one-part play, and the hero is a city speculator. The financial scene, by the way, in "Still Waters" goes with roars of merriment—a tribute to the mania of the day, floating companies and rigging the stock market. It is noticeable in this current gossip of the week, how often the course of events and talk brings one back to city affairs, speculation, and Colonel North. I suspect the colonel is just as much surprised at his fame as the public is at his reputed wealth, and if I come back to him in these few paragraphs over and over again it is for the reason that in both society and in the city one hears hardly anyone else spoken of. Even on the first night of "Still Waters Run Deep" he was in the minds of the audience continually, and between the acts he and his wife and daughter were the observed of all observers. During the financial scene, where Hawksley runs the gauntlet of the Lancashire man's questions and comments, hundreds of eyes were turned towards the stalls where Colonel North sat, and he appeared to be very much amused with the play, both on and off the stage. We are a fickle and peculiar community, and must have a lion—one day it is a Zulu king, another it is an African prince, to be followed by an American cowboy, a Yankee beauty, or a Yorkshire speculator, varied by an occasional prima donna, a French actress, or a great criminal. London is unique in its tastes, its amusements, its frivolities, its crimes, its charities, and its politics. It has its heroic side too, as the world will find when the heralds go to Charing Cross to proclaim that we have taken a hand in the great war that pessimists are never tired of predicting with every spring and summer.

THE EUROPEAN SITUATION.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Feb. 1.

In many respects the present state of Europe, as the winter is passing away, and the spring almost in sight, though less troubled superficially, is more complicated and perplexing than ever. The novelty, of course, is the election of General Boulanger for the Department of the Seine by a tremendous majority, a great fact which has sent a thrilling vibration all over the globe. It has made that equivocal personage more prominent as a factor in the European situation, because it must mean either a period of revolution or of war, if the country should chance to ratify the action of Paris, a city, it should be remembered, which is, and always has been, frondeur, and was so before the performance of that tragi-comedy known as the "Fronde." The Boulanger of that day was the person known as the Cardinal de Retz, who was ten times as clever and quite as serious as the Boulanger of our time. Paris has often, yet not always, dictated to France. Whether that will happen now or not you will be better able to judge before these words reach you than I am now; but if it should be that Paris correctly indicates the current of national opinion or passion, then the event of Sunday last will mean either a startling revolution, or what everybody anticipates with dread—a war of vast magnitude and uncertain issue. It may be, no doubt, that Paris has simply voted against the Commune, represented by M. Jacques; but it is more likely that the Parisians have acted on their old instincts, ever hostile to the powers which happen to be; and that, in addition, the hitherto well-restrained passion for revenge has got the upper hand. The explosion of feeling at Marseilles which led the mob, anxiously waiting for the news from Paris, straight to the house of the Russian Consul, whom they cheered, is some indication of the meaning put on the election by popular sentiment, though allowance must be made for the effervescence of that southern city. Still, it remains to be seen what France, as a whole, will say to the choice of "the man on horseback." If anything "untoward" should occur you will hear by telegraph; if not, we must all await for the result of the coming general election, and the verdict of the eight millions of proprietors on the question of peace or war; for that, whatever may be said, will be the real issue tried before the national jury. So far as can be judged at the moment, and tempered by the qualifications already set forth, France, with a vengeance, has entered the lists and has become suddenly a very grave element in that vast network of conflicting interests, passions, and ambitions which form what we call "the European situation."

If the elevation of General Boulanger to such a height has increased largely the perplexed outlook towards the future, making it doubtful what France will be, as well as what she will do, there are other changes, actual or imminent, working in a similar direction. The sudden death of the Austrian Crown Prince will not have any immediate political effect; but Germany, you will have seen, has at length given "hostages to fortune." She has begun a career of adventure, and become, that is, she is trying to become, a colonising Power, albeit one on the French, and not the English model. Prince Bismarck has been compelled, against his will and judgment, to gratify the passion of North Germany for settlements beyond the seas, and—for this is the important point—to do what he said he never would do, support them with the force and the funds of the Empire. He has tried hard to remain in the position of a moral patron, but he has been driven out of it; and I suspect that the significant change has been brought about, not only by a disinclination to oppose what he calls the national will, but by some bargain, expressed or implied, with the energetic mercantile community of Hamburg, which stands for the Lower Elbe countries. Hamburg, you know, has had to surrender great privileges to the Empire, and the so-called colonies in your neighbourhood, as well as in Africa, are in some measure the quid pro quo. It is a great departure, and one which may have great consequences. For observe an immediate result. A large part of the German navy—the Chancellor sees it with lively apprehensions—is now in African waters, remote from the Fatherland, and not only removed from service in Europe, but in peril, should anything precipitate a war on the Continent. That is a diminution of defensive as well as offensive forces, and evidently the Prince does not see yet to what length events may compel him to go. The so-called colonising spirit has established a drain on the Imperial means, the limits of which none can foresee, and the glory or profit of such colonising will have to be taken with the drawback of its obligations. Prince Bismarck is afraid that, perhaps at the moment of serious peril, the obligations will become burdens. The French and the Russians see with satisfaction this breach in the old rule, and lessening of naval power, and the Chancellor sees it also—with dissatisfaction.

The curious internal conflict, visible to the world in the Geffcken and Morier incidents, has also a bearing on the situation. The causes which led to them are abstruse, but are connected with the fierce attack all along the line upon the Chancellor's position and policy begun as long ago as September, 1887, and steadily continued. Dr. Geffcken stealthily copied parts of the Emperor Frederick's diary, and published them without leave, or apparent leave. He was acquitted of the charge of treason by the Imperial Court at Leipzig, but you will have inferred from the official publication of the Indictment, which is an appeal from the Court to the Fatherland, that underneath all this there is going on a sharp battle between great persons and parties, and that the nominal is not the real issue. But why, it may be asked, bring in Sir Robert Morier? Why charge him with doing what anyone intimately familiar with the details of the war of 1870 must know he could not have done, even had he desired to do it? Why rake up this accusation against a British diplomatist, which, apart from his explicit denial, could not possibly have been true? Bazaine, in his latest printed book, says he was surprised at Rozonoiko on the 16th of August, because he had no information from any source. Nor could he have had any, except from his cavalry, which supplied little, and the local Mayors, who gave none. But a minute explanation of the facts will not be required by anyone acquainted with them. The significance of the incident is that there must be some strong reason impelling Bismarck to damage Morier, who, it may be inferred, is not acting at St. Petersburg on lines which suit the German Chancellor. It looks like a struggle for influence in Russia. There was a report that the Princess Alix of Hesse-Darmstadt, daughter of our Princess

PARLIAMENT OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

FRIDAY, MARCH 8.

The PRESIDENT took the Chair at half-past 4 o'clock.

TEMPORARY SUPPLY BILL.

The PRESIDENT announced the receipt of a message from the Legislative Assembly, forwarding the Temporary Supply Bill. A suspension of so much of the Standing Orders as would preclude the passage of the bill through all its stages at one sitting was agreed to, and the bill was, on the motion of Mr. Barton, read the first, second, and third time, and returned to the Legislative Assembly with the usual message.

SPECIAL ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. BARTON said that an adjournment of the other House for three weeks was required in order to give time for the re-election of members of the new Administration. Inasmuch as it was not likely that there would meanwhile be any business for the Council to deal with, he would move that the House do now adjourn until 4 o'clock on Wednesday, April 3.

Mr. DAVIES desired to take advantage of that opportunity to refer to some remarks made in the other branch of the Legislature by the late Colonial Secretary and Mr. J. P. Abbott. It had been stated that Mr. Cox and other members of the Council sent to the Secretary of State for the Colonies a memorial protesting against the appointment of 22 members to the Council on personal grounds. Now, he had copies of both the memorial and the despatch in reply to it, and they showed that there was no justification for what was stated in the Assembly. So far as he himself was concerned, he had for 15 years served in the popular branch of the Legislature. He was honoured on some half-dozen occasions by being elected as the representative of the wealthiest and most intelligent constituency in the colony—East Sydney. On two occasions he was returned at the head of the poll, and on the others he obtained the second highest number of votes. Mr. J. P. Abbott recently solicited the suffrages of the same electorate, but, despite the fact that he was supported by Mr. Barton, Mr. Slattery, and Mr. O'Mara, failed to get elected.

The motion was agreed to, and the House at a quarter past 5 o'clock adjourned until 4 o'clock on Wednesday, April 2.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

FRIDAY, MARCH 8.

The SPEAKER took the chair at half-past 4 o'clock.

ELECTIONS AND QUALIFICATIONS COMMITTEE.

Mr. SPEAKER reported that his warrant appointing the committee of elections and qualifications for the present session, laid upon the table on Friday, 1st March, not having been approved of by the Assembly in the course of the three next sitting days on which the Assembly met for the despatch of business, had now taken effect as the appointment of such committees, and intimated that it was therefore open to members of the committee to be sworn at the table by the clerk, in accordance with the 59th section of the Electoral Act of 1880.

Mr. Charles Alfred Lee and Mr. Alexander Ryrie were sworn in as members of the Committee.

CHALLENGED SEATS.

Mr. DIBBS moved that the following election petitions be referred to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications:—1. From Thomas Rose, complaining of the election and return of Edward Joseph Ball, a member for the electoral district of Argyle, laid upon the table of the House on the 28th February last. 2. From Hugh M'Kinnon, complaining of the election and return of James Henry Young and Charles James Roberts, members for the electoral district of the Hastings and Manning, laid upon the table of the House on the 28th February last. 3. From William Bourke, complaining of the election and return of John Perry, a member for the electoral district of the Richmond, laid upon the table of the House on the 6th March instant. 4. From James Bowers and Charles Coulton, complaining of the election and return of William Henry Traill, Walter Edmunds, James Matthew Toohey, and James Martin, members for the electoral district of South Sydney, laid upon the table of the House on the 6th March.

The motion was agreed to.

PAPERS.

Mr. DIBBS laid upon the table the report of the special commissioners for British New Guinea for the year 1888; a statement of receipts and expenditure by the Corporation of the city of Sydney for 1888; also amended by-laws for the municipal districts of Wentworth and Bourke; and a paper, having reference to an alleged charge against Mr. Thomas Walker, M.L.A.

It was ordered that the documents should be printed.

CANCELLED GOLD-MINING LEASES.

Mr. CHANTER moved, with concurrence,—"That the Clerk should have leave to return to the Mines Department the further correspondence, reports, and minutes respecting cancelled gold-mining leases Nos. 650 and 651, in the Macleay mining district, as laid upon the table of the Assembly on Friday, March 1, 1889."

The motion was agreed to.

CONDUCT OF BUSINESS.

Mr. ALLEN said they were now about to enter upon a new session, and he thought the time had come when hon. members, in submitting notices of motion and other business to the House, should speak so as to be heard by both sides of the House. Petitions, notices of motion, and such like were submitted night after night in such a tone that hon. members really did not know what they were doing.

Mr. SPEAKER said the matter was in the hands of hon. members themselves. They had a right to object to any question going through until they knew what it was.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS.

Mr. DIBBS with concurrence withdrew from the business paper all motions standing in the name of the Government.

TEMPORARY SUPPLY BILL.

Mr. SPEAKER announced the receipt of a message from the Legislative Council, returning the Temporary Supply Bill without amendment.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Mr. M'RAE said he wished to make a personal explanation with regard to a statement made by the hon. member for East Sydney, Mr. M'Millan. He noticed by the report in Hansard that the hon. member used the following words: "I shall not refer at length to the ponderous speech of the young member for Morpeth. At the same time, I think that gentleman has turned his coat within the last 12 months. He never awoke to the glories and beauty of protection until he bought the bankrupt stock of a paper-mill; and I suppose he thinks, by putting his hand into the pockets of the people of this country, he will restore that particular paper-mill to its former activity." He had entered that House to work for the best interests of the country, and he would defy any person to say that he was ever guilty of an act prostituting his position, and making it subservient to his own base lucrative ends. He wished to enter his protest against the false statements made by the hon. member.

Mr. SLATTERY said he wished now, as he was no longer in office, to take the present opportunity of making a personal explanation with regard to a matter in connection with which he had been very much maligned during the past few weeks. He referred to the appointment of a police magistrate at Burrowa. He had until the present remained silent with regard to this matter, because he declined in his Ministerial position to answer any attack made by a newspaper with regard to the administration of his department. He was first responsible to his colleagues, and then to Parliament. With regard to the appointment of the police magistrate, he might say that circumstances occurred which made it necessary that Mr. Watton should proceed to Mudgee as soon as possible, and in order that the business might be carried on he asked Mr. Middleton to take the position temporarily. All the trouble had been brought about by the eccentricities of a newspaper man at Burrowa. He lent this person, who was the most eccentric man in Burrowa, two sums of money, amounting in all to £46. Some little time ago this man sent him in a bill for £96. (Laughter.) He never paid back the money he had borrowed, and because he (Mr. Slattery) did not pay the interest on the bill he was attacked in the way he had been by this person, who had sent all the telegrams which appeared in the Sydney papers with regard to the appointment of the magistrate at Burrowa. What he had stated were plain facts, and hon. members if they wished could see all the correspondence which had taken place with regard to the matter. He had all the documents on the table, and would place them at the disposal of hon. members.

Mr. LEVIEN said he wished to make a few remarks with regard to the position occupied by Mr. Speaker. He thought that as Mr. Speaker's seat had been referred to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications Mr. Speaker should at once retire.

Mr. SPEAKER said as far as he was concerned he was the custodian of his own honour, and unless the hon. member proceeded in the proper way to question his right to sit in the position he occupied he should not allow him to proceed.

Mr. LEVIEN: All right, I am willing for you to close my mouth.

APPOINTMENT OF PAYMASTER.

Mr. FARNELL said he wished to ask the Colonial Secretary, without notice, whether it was a fact that a gentleman named Solomon, brother-in-law to Mr. J. P. Abbott, had been appointed to the position of paymaster at the Brigade Office.

Mr. DIBBS said he had yet to know that the hon. member had a right to ask such a question of a retiring Government. He could give notice of the question if he liked. The Government had ended their career in the House at present. The new Ministry were now waiting the convenience of the House with regard to the Supply Bill, and he thought it would now be a convenient time for the House to adjourn until 7 o'clock, in order that the Governor might assent to the Supply Bill.

The House adjourned accordingly.

TEMPORARY SUPPLY BILL.

Mr. SPEAKER (upon the House resuming) reported that he had received a message conveying the assent of his Excellency the Governor to the Temporary Supply Bill, and that the bill had been transmitted to the Council to be forwarded to the proper officer for enrolement.

THE NEW MINISTRY.

Mr. BURDEKIN informed the House that new Administration, consisting of Sir Henry Parkes, Premier and Colonial Secretary; Mr. W. M'Millan, Colonial Treasurer; Mr. J. N. Brunker, Secretary for Lands; Mr. Bruce Smith, Secretary for Public Works; Mr. J. B. Simpson, Attorney-General; Mr. A. J. Gould, Minister for Justice; Mr. D. O'Connor, Postmaster-General; Mr. J. H. Carruthers, Minister for Public Instruction; and Mr. S. Smith, Secretary for Mines, had been sworn in that evening. He begged to move that the seats of the hon. members just named be declared vacant.

The motion was agreed to.

THE ELECTIONS AND QUALIFICATIONS COMMITTEE.

Mr. SPEAKER announced the nomination of Mr. F. J. Smith and Mr. J. R. Street, as members of the Committee of Elections and Qualifications, in the room of Mr. Carruthers and Mr. Bruce Smith, whose seats had been declared vacant by reason of their acceptance of the offices of Minister for Public Instruction and Secretary of Public Works respectively. He reminded the House that it would be competent for hon. members to object to the appointments during the next three sitting days.

Mr. CRICK inquired whether, before the three days had expired, it would be competent for the committee to deal with any matters referred to them by resolution that evening.

Mr. SPEAKER replied that that was a question of law, and difficult to answer. He scarcely thought the committee would be able to consider any matter until all the members had been duly appointed. He might inform hon. gentlemen that he had not yet appointed a time for the first sittings of the committee; and it did not occur to him that it would be right to do so until the expiration of the three days.

Mr. DIBBS asked whether objection to the nominations was simply to be made, or whether reasons were to be assigned.

Mr. SPEAKER said this was also a matter of law, and must require some consideration. The objection would be a matter of privilege, and should be done by motion.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. BURDEKIN moved that the House do adjourn until the 3rd April.

Mr. COPELAND said he presumed they must understand that the Elections Committee would not be enabled to commence their sittings until the House met again.

Mr. SPEAKER said that must of necessity be the case. The committee could not sit until all the members were sworn in. At present only two members were sworn in, and it required five to make a quorum.

Mr. COPELAND said he desired to ask, simply with a view to preserving the institutions of the House to the best of their ability, whether the Speaker had considered the position in which he stood with reference to the petition lodged against his election. In looking over the Electoral Act during the past few minutes—he might state he had not prepared himself upon this particular question—he noticed in the 55th section it was provided "that the Speaker shall appoint a Committee of Elections and Qualifications, and shall appoint seven members of the Assembly against whose return no petition was then pending." Now it seemed rather singular that the Speaker, holding the position he did, should have the power of appointing to adjudicate on the question of the legality of that position. The Act proceeded to state that none of the members of this committee must be a party to any petition complaining of any election or return. It seemed to him the position of the Speaker was certainly a peculiar one. He wished it to be understood that he was not raising this point for any political object, but simply that they might have an expression of opinion upon it. Where the Act had been so careful as to lay down that no gentleman should sit on the committee against whose election any petition had been lodged, or who was a party to any petition, it seemed to him that the Speaker, having the power of nominating those gentlemen, should himself meet the terms laid down by the Act. He thought it would be well, if, only for the guidance of future Parliaments, they could by this discussion elicit the views of the Speaker, and the views of other members who perhaps had paid some attention to this question. The difficulty was not likely to frequently arise, yet it was one that should be grappled with; and he had no hesitation in saying that so far as his individual judgment went, without being guided either by precedents in this Parliament or the House of Commons, it would be better in the interests of Parliament that the gentleman occupying the chair should not be placed in the position in which the Speaker was now placed. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. SPEAKER said he would be glad to state to the hon. member and to the House his views upon the subject. He would say at once his case was a peculiar one, but hon. members must see that such a case might happen to anyone. He held that no difficulty could possibly occur. He did not care in what way the committee decided, and until they did decide he believed he held his seat under the laws of the country. (Hear, hear.) The return made on the writ by the returning officer was final and authoritative, and that return could only be upset by the tribunal appointed under the electoral laws of the country. (Hear, hear.) With reference to the appointment of the committee he would merely say this: To his mind, although the word "appointment" was used in the Act, the appointment was not really in the Speaker of the Assembly. He merely nominated, and the House by its silence during the next three sitting days actually appointed the members. He supposed it would not be advanced that the nominations he had made were of a party character at all. He assured the House that on every occasion on which he had nominated the committee he had been careful to do it in what he considered the fairest possible way. On this particular occasion hon. members would notice that three of the members were from one and three from the other side of the House. There was a seventh gentleman, Mr. R. B. Wilkinson, who at the time of his appointment it was not known to which party he would connect himself. [Mr. DIBBS: Hear, hear.] He also took the opportunity of pointing out that no less than four of the gentlemen nominated voted against his appointment as Speaker of the House. (Hear, hear.) Mr. COPELAND: There is no suspicion of that kind.] It was only fair that he should make these remarks as the question had been raised. Now he came back to his previous statement, and said that in his opinion, although he nominated the members of the Elections and Qualifications Committee, the House by its silence appointed them, and therefore all the objections of the hon. member were done away with. He considered himself, and should consider himself, a member for the Hastings and Manning, able to perform all his functions until his case was dealt with by the tribunal set up by the law. (Hear, hear.) One precedent supporting this view had come under his notice. It had reference to the hon. member for Gloucester, Mr. A. H. Jacob. In January, 1881, a petition in almost identical terms with the petition lodged against himself was referred to the committee. That committee did not report until 9th March, and Mr. Jacob during that time sat in the house, voted, and spoke frequently.

Mr. COPELAND: Are you familiar with English precedents?

Mr. SPEAKER replied that he was not, nor did he think they should be altogether guided by the English law. They were governed by their own electoral law. He did not think there was any precedent for the seat of the Speaker of the House of Commons being challenged.

Mr. FARNELL called attention to the appointment of Mr. Claud Solomon as chief paymaster to the military forces. He urged that the gentleman named had only been in the service two years, and with the present promotion increased his salary to £630, inclusive of the allowances of the usual character. He considered the Dibbs Government had acted improperly in making the appointment.

Mr. CRICK wished to debate the question of the precedent given by the Speaker for maintaining his position in the chair, but was ruled out of order by Mr. Speaker, who told the hon. member that he was entitled to guide the chair, but not to call his position and actions into question on a motion for adjournment.

Mr. GARVAN pointed out that if the Elections and Qualifications Committee appointed by the Speaker should happen to find that the Speaker was illegally holding his seat, matters would become seriously complicated.

Mr. BURNS contended that the Speaker was holding his seat lawfully and constitutionally. So long as the hon. member for the Hastings and Manning chose to occupy his position, pending the decision of the Elections and Qualifications Committee, he was justified in doing so.

Mr. COPELAND pointed out that the Elections and Qualifications Committee were appointed by the Speaker on warrant, and urged that the Speaker, if his seat were illegally occupied would be placed in a somewhat similar position to a person who illegally issued a warrant for the arrest of an individual. The warrant in that case would be informal, and the issuer liable to an action for false imprisonment. He thought it rested with the House to veto the nominations of the Speaker; but in the case of the Speaker's nominations not being vetoed, and it being afterwards proved that the Speaker was not legally elected for his constituency then the warrant would be illegal.

Mr. SPEAKER said that his opinion was that any act done by him, whatever the decision of the Elections and Qualifications Committee, was a valid act done by the Speaker of the House.

Mr. HASSALL suggested that the House should meet on Tuesday, the 2nd April, instead of Wednesday, 3rd April. There was a motion on the business paper of great importance standing in the name of Mr. Gormly, the hon. member for the Murrumbidgee, but it was down for Tuesday. It was a motion asking the Government to introduce a bill to amend the Land Act for the relief of holders of conditional leases under section 52. There was also a very important motion in the name of Mr. J. P. Abbott for the same day.

Mr. GORMLY said that the motion standing in his name was a very important one. It remained on the business paper during the whole of last session. (Hear, hear.) Hundreds of these holders had assured him that they intended not to pay their rents, and to allow their leases to be forfeited; and the leases would, no doubt, be forfeited if the Act were not amended. He hoped the suggestion of the hon. member for the Gwydir (Mr. Hassall) would be accepted. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. BURDEKIN, after some hesitation, consented, on behalf of the Government, to the proposal.

The motion was amended so as to make Tuesday, instead of Wednesday, the meeting day, and as amended was carried.

The House, at 27 minutes to 9 p.m., adjourned till 4 p.m. on Tuesday, 2nd April.

CORONER'S INQUESTS.

SUSPICIOUS DEATH OF A YOUNG WOMAN.

At the Coroner's Court yesterday morning the Coroner, Mr. J. C. Woore, J.P., resumed the inquest relative to the death of a woman named Kate Reilly, whose body was found in the yard at the rear of an unoccupied house situated at No. 8, Macquarie-street South, on the 28th ultimo. The inquiry was opened on the 1st instant, but at the wish of the Coroner the evidence then taken was not published. The evidence so far is as follows:—

Sarah Reilly, a nurse at the Callan Park Asylum, residing at Francis-street, Rookwood, identified the body as that of her sister, Kate Reilly, aged 23 years; deceased was a single woman, and had been employed as a nurse at the Callan Park Asylum; deceased left the asylum on Friday morning for a fortnight's holiday, and went away alone; witness was not aware that the deceased was intimate with anyone, with the exception of one man at the asylum; they had been "sweethearts" for about 15 months, and used to go out together to the theatres; witness noticed that deceased had not appeared very well of late; some months ago she had consulted some of the doctors of the institution; when leaving on Friday the deceased said she was going to stay with a Miss Borham at Paddington for a few days, and was then going home; witness recognised the articles of clothing produced as those belonging to her sister; she saw deceased pack up her clothing in a box, but had not seen the box since deceased left the institution; deceased had no friends in Macquarie-street South; Miss Borhan had visited deceased at Callan Park about a month before, for the first time, and again a fortnight later; she saw deceased alone in her bedroom, and only stopped a few minutes; after leaving the asylum on Friday the deceased never went home to Rookwood; deceased had written home, stating that she was going to see "Nell Borhan," and would probably be home on Saturday.

Dr. Milford deposed that he had assisted Dr. Sinclair in making a post-mortem examination of the body; there was a bruise on the right cheek about the size of a florin, another near the mouth about the size of a sixpence, and there were two other bruises on the left side of the head; all of these bruises were inflicted during lifetime; a portion of the left breast was removed by decomposition; about a dessert-spoonful of a dark coloured fluid was found in the stomach; she was pregnant; from the appearances of the organs the doctor concluded that the deceased had not the proper quantity of blood in her body at the time of her death, that she had received a shock to her nervous system from the external injuries to the head and neck, that she had recently had a miscarriage, due to malpractice, that deceased was a healthy girl, and that death was due to syncope, caused by injuries sustained on the face, head, and uterus; deceased could not have walked any distance after the injury had been inflicted.

Dr. H. Sinclair corroborated Dr. Milford's evidence.

Senior-sergeant Roderick deposed that he saw the body lying in the yard of No. 8, Macquarie-street South, on the 28th instant; there were no indications of a struggle having taken place in the yard; the body was fully dressed, the hat was lying close by, and the hair was disarranged; the face was much discoloured, and there was a recent bruise upon the right temple and another near the mouth; he had examined the deceased's box at the Callan Park Asylum, and found the photograph of a young man and several letters, which he produced.

Mary Reynolds, a charwoman, residing at No. 12, Wexford-street, said that about 8 a.m. on the 28th instant she went to the residence of Dr. Smith's house, at No. 10, Macquarie-street South, to wash; while engaged in the yard she saw through the fence the body of the deceased lying in the adjoining yard; about 10 minutes afterwards she informed Mrs. Smith, and Dr. Smith came down and said he was sorry it had happened there.

George Walter Keegan testified that he resided at No. 15, Wemyss-street, and that the yard of his house was opposite the yard in which the body was found; about 9.15 a.m. on the 28th his attention was drawn by his wife to the body lying in the neighbouring yard; he at once informed the police; there was a lane approaching the yard, but it was closed at one end, and a vehicle could not turn in it; there were wheeltracks in the lane, and the gate of the yard was slightly ajar.

George Bray, porter at the Callan Park Asylum, said that he knew deceased was an attendant there; witness had been paying his addresses to her for about 18 months; they used to go about a good deal; was in her company on the night of the 21st ultimo at Balmain, about a quarter or 20 minutes to 10 o'clock; he left her at the gate of the house of her cousin, Mrs. Parsons; he never knew that the deceased was pregnant; witness knew Miss Borham, who was a nurse at the Callan Park Asylum about two years ago; he had only seen her twice since she left the institution; on one occasion she visited the deceased at the asylum, but not at his request; he had no conversation with Miss Borham then; he had not seen deceased since he parted with her on the night of the 21st ultimo; deceased was then going for a holiday; she told him she was going to stay with Miss Borham at Paddington for a few days; letters produced were written by him to deceased; did not know John Willis Smith; never heard deceased speak of him; during the last 10 months he had known the deceased to have been keeping company with another attendant named Charles Rennie; between April and October last he had not kept company with her because they had had a quarrel; during that time Rennie kept company with her; nothing improper had ever occurred between witness and the deceased; in one of the letters written by witness the following words occurred:—"I again assure you it is the case when I remember that I am the cause of your very disconsolate appearance;" witness said that this referred to a quarrel occasioned by his accusing the deceased of speaking to someone else; there was a postscript to another letter, asking the deceased to burn it as soon as she received it; this, the witness explained, was inserted because the deceased did not wish it to be known that they had had a quarrel. Witness was also questioned upon other passages occurring in the letters.

At this stage the jury inspected the yard in which the body was found.

Fanny Parsons, married woman, residing in Park-street, Balmain, said that she knew deceased; on the night of the 21st she slept at witness's house, and left on the Friday morning, stating that she was going to meet Miss Borham at Point Piper-road; on the previous Friday deceased had told her that she had consulted Dr. Chambers in Liverpool-street.

Louis Gautier, cab proprietor, remembered a lady passenger getting on to his 'bus at Callan Park, on the morning of February 22, with a tin box; she got out at the railway gates and went towards the cab-stand; she said she was going to Paddington.

Henry Clarke, cabdriver, said that about 10 o'clock on the morning of the 22nd he drove a lady who had a tin trunk from the railway gates to Macquarie-street South; he recognised clothing produced as that worn by the lady; was almost sure that the photograph produced was that of the lady in question; she told him to drive to Macquarie-street South, near Liverpool-street; she got out right opposite to a lane leading to Lons-terrace; after leaving the cab she went towards the lane.

Martha Armitage, married woman, residing at No. 2, Macquarie-street South, saw a lady leave a cab in Macquarie-street South about 10 o'clock on the morning of the 22nd; she got down opposite a private road, and carried a light tin trunk; witness could swear the photograph produced was that of the woman she saw; she went down the eastern side of the street, but did not go down the lane; she went in the direction of Dr. Smith's house; witness saw her before she got to Dr. Smith's house, and then turned to go inside, and when she came to the door almost immediately after she looked again and the woman had disappeared; the woman had not time to get out of the street, and must have entered one of the houses on the eastern side.

Lydia White, married woman, residing at No. 2, Macquarie-street South, corroborated the evidence of the previous witness regarding the cab.

The inquiry was then adjourned till Monday.

BATHING FATALITY NEAR GRANVILLE.

Mr. J. B. Bowden, the Parramatta District Coroner, held an inquest yesterday touching the death of two boys, aged about 12 years, named Thomas Edward Wilkie, son of Mr. Thomas Wilkie, of Goulburn, and William Edward Daniel, son of Mr. William Daniel, of Granville. The deceased and two other boys, named Wilkins and Robertson, aged 9 and 7 respectively, repaired after school to Duck River to bathe. Robertson, however, did not go into the water. After paddling about for a short time Wilkie and Daniels got out of their depth and went down. Young Wilkins in trying to rescue his companions, nearly lost his life. He raised the alarm. Some other boys, who came late upon the scene, rushed off for assistance. Wilkie was recovered by a man named Williams. Mr. Daniel recovered his son by the aid of a boat hook. Every effort was used to restore animation, but without avail. The jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY, MARCH 8.

Banco Court.—(Before his Honor the CHIEF JUSTICE and a jury of four.)

YOUNG AND ANOTHER V. UNITED INSURANCE COMPANY (PART HEARD).

Mr. Pilcher, Q.C., and Mr. Coffey, instructed by Messrs. Norton and Co., appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Rogers, Q.C., and Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Messrs. Creagh and Williams, for the defendants. This was an action brought by the Hon. James Henry Young and Henry Alban Gray against the United Insurance Company to recover upon two policies of insurance on the schooner George Thornton, lost off Burnett Heads, while on the way to Normanton. The policies of insurance were for £1500 and £500 respectively, and at the time they were taken out the vessel was under mortgage to the City Bank. According to the terms of the policies, the vessel was to be insured from the 22nd February, 1887, to the 22nd February, 1888, while employed trading on the Queensland coast to the south of Cooktown and to the east coast of New Zealand, but the policies were not to include any risk in bar harbours and open roadsteads.

The evidence of the seaman Rhodes was continued, and witness stated that when the George Thornton sailed she was drawing 9ft. of water fore and aft; she ought to have been down 6in. by the stern to enable her to steer; after they got the anchor up it was catted, and fished on the rail; that was done before canvas was put on the vessel, and while they were going over the bar; as far as he could see the anchor did no damage at all; the captain was at the wheel when the vessel was being towed over the bar; he stood by the wheel, and now and again took a turn at steering; she was steering four points each way, in other words, yawing about; it was a fine starlight night, the sea was smooth and nothing could have been more favourable for going over the bar, and there was a steady trade wind about south-east; going over the bar she took in water fore and aft, and it could not have been worse if she had been loaded with copper ore; she was wallowing from side to side and taking in water all round; when the hawser of the tug-boat was slipped the George Thornton only had fore-and-aft canvas set, and no square sail; the hawser was slipped by the order of the captain, but the tug did not steam away immediately; she stood by the George Thornton fully half an hour, until the sails filled; on Sunday morning, about 10.30, he was in his bunk, and heard the water washing under his feet; he called the mate, who immediately sounded the pumps, and found 4ft. 6in. of water in the vessel; the next time they tried there was 6ft. 4in.; the pumps were completely useless, and would not work; they left the vessel about 11.30, and soon after she tumbled over on her beam ends. In cross-examination, witness said that the vessel was unseaworthy, and not fit to go to sea; she was like a half-tide rock, and it was dangerous for anyone to go to sea in her; still he went to sea in her, but he would go to sea on a plank; witness admitted that when examined on a former occasion he said, "In my opinion there was no danger in her going on such a voyage," and also "I had two hours at the wheel and she steered very well indeed;" witness also that during the night the anchor struck the vessel once heavily.

This closed the case for the defendants, and it was admitted by the plaintiffs that the statement that a claim had been made upon the defendant company for the damage done to the vessel in a gale of wind off Maryborough was erroneous.

Captain Gray was briefly examined in reply, on behalf of plaintiffs, and counsel addressed the jury.

His HONOR said that as this was a case of considerable importance, not merely to the persons engaged in it, but to the outside public, he would deliver his summing up on Monday next, as he could not finish it within a reasonable time that evening.

Jury Court, No. 1.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice FOSTER and a jury of four.)

BROWN V. BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES (PART HEARD).

Mr. Wise and Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Mr. Fitzhardinge, appeared for plaintiff, Robert John Brown; and Mr. Pilcher, Q.C., Mr. C. J. Manning, and Dr. Sly, instructed by Messrs. Allan and Allan for the defendant bank. The suit was instituted by plaintiff to recover from the bank £1000 damages for breach of agreement, in regard to a sugar plantation on the Clarence River.

The evidence on behalf of the defendants was continued by Mr. Greene, the bank inspector, and counsel addressed the jury.

His HONOR, in summing up, pointed out that under the second count plaintiff claimed damages for breaking and entering into his lands, and he also claimed damages for trespass on goods mentioned in a third count. With regard to those two counts, he thought he could shorten their difficulties by telling them there was no evidence to show that the bank had done any act which would amount to trespass on the lands of the plaintiff, nor was there any evidence that the bank had trespassed on the goods of the plaintiff. There was evidence that the sheriff's bailiff entered into possession, and that he removed some of the goods of the plaintiff; but there was no evidence to show that he acted as agent for the bank. He was merely an agent of the sheriff and the law. If there had been evidence that the bank came in and directed the bailiff to do these acts independently of the writ which he was then enforcing, then the bank would have been responsible; but after carefully looking at the evidence he found nothing to show that M'Dougal, the manager of the Macleay branch of the Bank of New South Wales, took any step in the matter which would amount to trespass either upon the land or the goods of the plaintiff. They had further to consider the case set up by the plaintiff, that the bank, through their agent Greene, entered into an agreement with him to sell him the land. The claim of the plaintiff was "that in consideration that the plaintiff would obtain the said Robert Brown's submission to a verdict in the ejectment suit, and would consent to the sale of the land by the bank to the plaintiff, the plaintiff could enter into possession, and cultivate the same and build upon the plantation." The evidence might satisfy the jury that Robert Brown, plaintiff's father, did submit to a verdict, although it might not be sufficient to satisfy them that he consented. Both these things, however, were denied by the defendants. If they were satisfied that the conditions were as alleged, to which the bank agreed, and that the terms, which were afterwards stated were not performed by the plaintiff, then the plaintiff would have no right to ask the defendants to perform their part of the agreement. It would be for the jury to say whether they thought these were the terms of the consideration, and if they were they would have to be satisfied that the plaintiff performed his part of the agreement. Then, further, it was also denied that it was a consideration of the agreement that the plaintiff should enter into these lands and cultivate them, and erect buildings on the sugar plantation; but it was for them to consider whether that consideration existed, and if so, whether it was performed by the plaintiff so far as he was competent to do it, and so far as he was not hindered by the defendants. Then, again, plaintiff said that in consideration of these things the bank were to allow Robert Brown and his family and plaintiff and his family to remain in undisturbed possession of the land and premises until the execution of the agreement. He thought they would find there was some difficulty at arriving upon a determination in this matter, and they would have to decide whether the bank agreed to allow those persons to remain in possession of the land and premises until the agreement already referred to had been executed. It was further charged by the plaintiff that the bank agreed within a reasonable time to execute the contract of sale to plaintiff at a certain price and upon certain conditions, and that they had failed to fulfil that contract. That would also be a matter for their consideration. His Honor reviewed the evidence, pointing out that Greene's version was that no absolute agreement of this kind was entered into, and that all he promised was that it should be submitted to the bank. If they found the agreement was that plaintiff could enter into undisturbed possession of the land and cultivate the crops for his own benefit, they must give a verdict for the plaintiff.

The jury found for the plaintiff, awarding £1600 damages, exclusive of the £53 10s. paid into court. On the application of Dr. Sly, his Honor granted a stay of proceedings until the first day of next term.

Jury Court No. 3.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice STEPHEN and a jury of four.)

SMITH AND OTHERS V. NEILD (PART HEARD).

Mr. G. H. Simpson, Q.C., with Mr. C. B. Stephen and Mr. Newham (instructed by Messrs. Abbott and Allen) for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Rogers, Q.C., with Mr. G. R. Campbell (instructed by Messrs. Creagh and Williams), for the defendant. This was a question as to the boundary between the land of the plaintiffs and the defendant, situated at North Harbour. On May 31 the plaintiffs applied to have lot No. 33 brought under the Real Property Act. On August 16, 1867, a moiety of the land, consisting of 10 acres, was conveyed by John Waley to Alex. Cowan by indenture. This land had a water frontage, and adjoined the north-west corner of F. A. Hely's 20-acre grant. The defendant, on the 10th November, 1886, entered a caveat with the Registrar-General against the issue of a certificate of title to the land held by the plaintiffs. By a rule of the Supreme Court on November 1, 1887, the parties were ordered to proceed to trial on the following issues:—(1) Whether the applicants are entitled to the whole or any part of the land in dispute between them and the caveator by virtue of the true position of the boundaries mentioned in the grant of September 10, 1856, and in the indenture of February 27, 1887, and in the cases respectively referred to; (2) whether they are entitled to the whole or any part thereof by possession; (3) whether the caveator is entitled to the whole or any part thereof by possession. This case, which has engaged the attention of the Court for the last three days, was concluded yesterday. The jury, however, will not give their verdict till Tuesday as they wish to visit the land in question on Monday.

In Chambers.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice FOSTER.)

FEDERAL BANK OF AUSTRALIA V. BATE AND ANOTHER.

Mr. O'Connor appeared for the defendant Bate, and moved for an order to set aside the judgment signed by the plaintiffs for want of an appearance. According to the affidavit of Charles Bate, the applicant, it appeared that the action was brought by plaintiffs to recover upon five promissory notes made between June, 1882, and July, 1885, but by an agreement made between him and the bank the latter agreed to release him from all liability in regard to the promissory notes, and also to indemnify him against all liability in regard to the firm of Bate and Muston, of which he was then a member. The bank, however, failed to carry out their agreement, the consequence being that Bate became liable for a large sum of money. In December last he commenced an action against the bank, and since then he had been served, at the instance of the bank, with two writs. He instructed his solicitor to enter an appearance, but, through some oversight, this was not done in time. There were two actions, and he had a valid defence to each, and the application was bona-fide, and not for the purpose of delay. The affidavit in reply of Mr. Docker, accountant of the plaintiff bank, stated that the defendant's affidavit was not true. No agreement was come to in respect of the notes sued upon, nor did the Bank promise to indemnify Bates against the liabilities of the firm of Messrs. Bates and Muston. It was also stated that the plaintiffs were defending the action brought by defendant.

Mr. Pring pointed out that there was one action against Bate and Muston for £9805, and another against Bate alone. The first promissory note was for £4500. He submitted that if the judgments were set aside, it must be upon certain terms, one of which was that the defendant was not to plead the Statute of Limitations in regard to the note of June, 1882.

Application granted, upon condition that defendant did not plead the Statute of Limitations. He was also to pay the costs of setting aside the judgment, and plead issuably.

BIRRELL V. WILSON.

Mr. Cohen appeared for the respondent (defendant). There was no appearance on behalf of the appellant. This was a case stated by the police magistrate and A. S. Brown, J.P., of West Maitland, on the application of the appellant. Complainant in the action sought to recover possession of the Adelphi Hotel, High-street, West Maitland, which was in possession of the defendant, W. J. Wilson, and sought to put in a lease from him to J. F. Kerr, which had expired. The magistrates held that it not having been shown that defendant was a party to the lease, or that he went into possession under it, or that he claimed under the lease, and further as there was no evidence before them either of the creation, expiration, or determination of the lease, no order could be made. The question was whether the determination of the magistrates not to admit the lease in evidence, was erroneous in point of law.

The determination of the magistrates was affirmed with costs against appellant.

IN RE THOMAS BROUGHTON (BOYLE, KNAPP, AND MATTHEWS, CAVEATORS).

Mr. Wise appeared on behalf of Thomas Broughton, and applied for an order to strike out the case of the caveator Matthews. Counsel stated that applicant Broughton set up a title to the Gore property at North Willoughby, and the case of the caveator Matthews set out the other branch of the title springing up by deed made by Mr. Wentworth in 1812, and partitioned between the family. All that Matthews said was that the property did not belong to Mr. Broughton but to Mr. Boyle.

The order was made as asked.

RE W. J. STEPHENSON, EX PARTE L. T. LLOYD, OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE.

Mr. A. H. Simpson appeared for John Hunter, and applied for leave to appeal to the Privy Council against the decision of the Full Court given on the 20th February last, directing Hunter to pay to the official assignee of Stephenson's estate the sum of £750 16s. 3d., which the Court held had been wrongfully alienated by the insolvent to Hunter, one of his creditors. Mr. Wise appeared for the official assignee to consent upon certain terms.

The application was granted, and the security was fixed at £200.

In Equity: in Chambers.—(Before the Chief Judge in Equity, his Honor Mr. Justice OWEN.)

IN RE BARRIER REEF SILVER-MINING COMPANY.

On the motion of Mr. J. C. M'Lachlan, who appeared on behalf of it. Teece and five others, his Honor made an order that the register of shareholders of the Barrier Reef Silver-mining Company be rectified by the omission therefrom of the names of the applicants, on the ground that they had been induced by alleged misrepresentation to promise to become shareholders.

IN RE NEW BRIGHTON RECREATION COMPANY.

Mr. C. J. Manning, instructed by Messrs. Villeneuve-Smith and Dawes, appeared on behalf of Richard John Brandon in support of a motion calling upon the New Brighton Recreation Company, Limited, to show cause why an order should not be made that the register of the shareholders of the company be rectified by striking out the name of R. J. Brandon as the holder of 200 shares, and why the company should not pay to Brandon all damages sustained by him by reason of his name having been without sufficient cause entered on the register. Mr. A. H. Simpson, instructed by Messrs. Carruthers and Hawkins, appeared on behalf of the company to show cause. The applicant's case was that he was induced on October 26, 1887, by reason of a material misrepresentation in the prospectus, to apply for the shares in question. The main inducement for his applying for the shares was the representation in the prospectus that a dividend of 10 per cent. was guaranteed by the vendor for three years, coupled with the representation that £1500 of the purchase money would remain in the hands of the company during the same period, so as to be there to answer any claim upon the vendor for the dividend. At, however, an extraordinary meeting, held on October 26th last, he for the first time learned that the block of freehold land and improvements which the prospectus alleged it was the object of the company to purchase was pledged by the vendor referred to in the prospectus with the bank, and as he was unable to convey the land to the company until the charge of the company was released, the directors had paid to him in cash not only the sum of £500, but also the sum of £1500, which the prospectus represented would remain for three years on mortgage at 7 per cent. The applicant immediately expressed his indignation at the course that had been pursued, and stated that he had been deceived.

Mr. Simpson argued that there was no misrepresentation in the case. A misrepresentation must be a misrepresentation of fact. In that case all there had been was an alteration of intention, which was not a misrepresentation. A man inducing another to enter into a contract was not bound by a representation unless it entered into the contract. He submitted that in cases where, after a company had been formed some alteration had been made in the original intentions of the company there was no instance where a Court had allowed a person to have his name taken off the register on those grounds. No representation of intention prevented the company from altering that intention.

His HONOR said that as the point involved was a very important one, he would take time to consider the case, and would therefore reserve his judgment.

MERTON V. TARANGANBA PROPRIETARY GOLD COMPANY AND OTHERS.

Mr. Gregory Walker, instructed by Messrs. Want, Johnson and Co., appeared for the plaintiff, T. D. Merton; Mr. C. J. Manning and Mr. Lingen, instructed by Messrs. Allen and Allen, for the defendant company, and also for the defendants the Hon. E. Vickery, Joseph Vickery, Ebenezer Vickery, jun., and John Keep; Mr. A. H. Simpson, instructed by Messrs. Abbott and Allen, for the defendant Robert Ross; Mr. Cockshott, instructed by Messrs. Norton and Co., for Mr. A. Morris, official assignee in the estate of A. H. M'Culloch, jun. (one of the defendants); Mr. Knox, instructed by Mr. Sweetland, for the defendants, A. G. Blomfield and B. F. Marks; Mr. C. J. Manning, instructed by Mr. M'Culloch, for the defendants, James Watt, S. W. Gray, and Leonard Dodds; and Mr. E. Barton, instructed by Mr. M'Culloch, for the defendants, George Richard Dibbs and James Fletcher.

This was a suit for an injunction to restrain the Taranganba Proprietary Gold Company, Limited, from prosecuting an action already commenced for the recovery of £2835 on a promissory-note given in respect to 6000 shares in the company purchased by the plaintiff, and to restrain the defendants from proceeding for the recovery of the amount in question. The plaintiff claimed that the contract entered into by him for the purchase of 6000 shares in the company might be set aside and declared void, and that the defendants or some of them might be declared liable to repay him £250, together with interest thereon, and that the defendants or some of them might be ordered to pay the costs of this suit. In the statement of claim it was set out that the Taranganba Proprietary Gold Company, Limited, was on September 27, 1887, registered under the provisions of the Companies Act, and by the 5th and 6th of its articles of association it was provided:—Article 5—That the capital of the company should be £1,000,000 sterling, divided into one million shares of £1 each, 316,667 of which shares fully paid up should be allotted to Robert Ross, of Taranganba, and to Mrs. Robert Ross and her trustees as they might direct, 16,666 of the shares fully paid up should be allotted to the Hon. Ebenezer Vickery. Article 6.—The remaining 666,667 shares should be allotted as paid up to 19s. each to the following persons, and in the following proportions:—The Hon. E. Vickery, 131,952; John Keep, 37,037; Joseph Vickery, 37,037; E. Vickery, jun., 37,037; G. R. Dibbs, 65,976; James Fletcher, 57,729; William Laidley, 8247; A. H. M'Culloch, jun., 58,796; James Watt, 33,333; Leonard Dodds, 33,333; Samuel William Gray, 49,296; William Joyce Hobbs 4630; Benjamin F. Marks, 18,519; F. C. Bryant, 37,037; Andrew G. Bloomfield, 31,945; the Hon. E. Vickery, G. R. Dibbs, James Fletcher, James Watt, L. Dodds, and A. H. M'Culloch, jun., on joint account, 27,763. The defendants Ross, Vickery (3), Keep, Dibbs, Fletcher, Laidley, Watt, Dodds, Gray, Hobbs, Marks, Bryant, Blomfield, and M'Culloch out of the shares held by them contributed 100,000 shares, which were to be sold to the public and the proceeds paid to the defendants in the proportions in which they were interested in the shares so contributed. In the month of May last the manager of the defendant company wrote to the plaintiff, and placed under offer to him 6000 shares in the defendant company. Such shares, as the plaintiff has recently ascertained, were part of the said 100,000 shares, and were put under offer to him by the said manager, acting as agent for and on behalf of the defendants. The defendants, James Fletcher and George Richard Dibbs, strongly urged the plaintiff, who was unwilling to accept the said shares, or at least the whole of them, to accept them all, and they and the directors of the company, with the defendant, the honourable Ebenezer Vickery, suggested that the plaintiff should purchase the said 6000 shares, paying £250 in cash, and giving a bill at six months for the balance, with interest added. With the view of inducing the plaintiff to purchase the said shares, the defendants, James Fletcher and George Richard Dibbs, acting on behalf of themselves and the other persons interested in such shares, gave the plaintiff a copy of a pamphlet containing a report by a Mr. Ranft, which gave a highly favourable report of the Taranganba mine (for the purpose of working which the defendant company had been established), and called the attention of the plaintiff specially to such report. The plaintiff thereupon made inquiries as to the character and standing of the said Mr. Ranft, and being satisfied with the result of such inquiries, and believing that the facts stated in the said report were true, and that the report itself fairly described the real character of the mine, the plaintiff agreed to accept the said 6000 shares, and at the request of the manager of the Defendant company the plaintiff paid to the manager of the defendant company the said sum of £250 in cash, and signed a promissory note in favour of the defendant company for the sum of £2835, being the balance of the purchase money with interest added. In the circumstances the defendant company received the said sum of £250 and the said promissory note as agent for and on behalf of the defendants. The plaintiff subsequently ascertained that the mine in no way corresponds with the character given to it in the report of Mr. Ranft. By that report the plaintiff was deceived in material particulars, and but for such deception would never have agreed to purchase the said 6000 shares or any of them. The plaintiff does not allege that Mr. Ranft reported untruly what he saw and did on visiting the mine, but the plaintiff charges that Mr. Ranft had been wilfully and intentionally misled by one of the defendants, and in fact that defendant fraudulently manipulated the mine for the purpose of obtaining by means of such manipulation a favourable report from Mr. Ranft, and of being enabled thereby to deceive (as he did in fact deceive) intending subscribers as to the nature and prospects of the mine. The mine is in fact almost worthless, and, at any rate, is incapable of producing gold in payable quantities. The plaintiff declined to pay the said promissory note, and thereupon, on the 8th day of January, 1889, the defendant company issued a writ against the plaintiff to recover the sum of £2842 3s. 8d in respect of the said promissory note. In the circumstances already described the plaintiff says that the defendants are respectively bound by the false, although innocent, representations contained in the report of Mr. Ranft, and that the plaintiff is entitled to the relief now claimed.

Mr. C. J. Manning argued in favour of a demurrer.

His Honor said that the statement of claim was to the effect that some one had salted the mine and so deceived every one—not only the plaintiff but every one connected with it—that the directors, in perfect good faith, believing the results obtained by assay from different specimens perfectly bona-fide, published the result of the assay, and the plaintiff and everybody was deceived. The plaintiff said that under those circumstances he was entitled to be relieved from his shares, because the whole of what had been represented with regard to the mine had turned out to be totally untrue. Surely that was a ground for the plaintiff to come into a court of equity and ask to be relieved from his contract. His Honor overruled the demurrer without prejudice to a formal demurrer being brought forward. He adjourned the hearing of the suit for three weeks, fixed the 22nd instant as the limit of the time up to which affidavits in reply on behalf of defendants resident in the colony might be filed, and the 26th instant as the limit of the time up to which affidavits in reply on behalf of the defendants in Queensland might be filed. His Honor also made an order that meanwhile the interim injunction already granted be continued.

In Divorce.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice WINDEYER.)

JOHNSON V. JOHNSON.

Mr. Whitfeld, who appeared on behalf of the petitioner (the husband) applied for leave to file a supplementary affidavit charging adultery against respondent subsequent to the filing of the petition, the principal witness as to the first adultery charged having left the colony. The application was granted, and service was permitted by registered letter.

SHERIFF V. SHERIFF.

Mr. Whitfeld appeared for the petitioner (the husband), and applied that further service be dispensed with. It appeared that some time ago the wife left the husband, and led him to suppose that she was dead. He married again, and the wife then turned up and prosecuted the petitioner for bigamy, and he was sentenced to a nominal term of imprisonment. The wife afterwards disappeared again, and her whereabouts could not be ascertained for some time, and the last that was heard of her was that she was living with a man named Black at Paddington.

The service of citation was extended for a month, and service at the residence of co-respondent was granted instead of upon respondent personally.

CROSS V. CROSS.

Mr. Whitfeld appealed for the petitioner (the husband), and moved for a decree nisi for dissolution of the marriage with respondent on the ground of her adultery with co-respondents Lamont and Hillyer. The adultery having been proved, the decree nisi was pronounced with costs against co-respondent Lamont.

LONG V. LONG.

Mr. Whitfeld appeared for the petitioner (the wife), and upon his application the hearing was adjourned until the 18th instant.

In Bankruptcy.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice DEFFELL.)

PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

Re Albert Deithelm. The bankrupt, in reply to Mr. Stephen, official assignee, said that Mr. Edward W. Cohen, of George-street, who was in partnership with witness, had taken some of his books away, and consequently witness was unable to prepare a proper account of his transactions. The further examination of the bankrupt was adjourned to the 22nd instant.

Re Cyrus Edgar Fuller. The adjourned public examination of the bankrupt was, in consequence of there being an appeal pending in another court, adjourned for a week.

Re George Ireland. The public examination of bankrupt was adjourned for a week.

OFFER OF COMPOSITION ACCEPTED.

Re Patrick Russell. It transpired that only one debt, amounting to £37 2s. 10d., had been proved in this estate. The proved creditor now accepted an offer of composition amounting to 3s. in the pound.

SPECIALS FOR PROOF.

Re John Thomas Owen. One debt was admitted.
Re James Newton Smith. One debt was admitted.
Re Honora Lamb Sullivan. One debt was admitted.

(Before the Registrar, Mr. ARTHUR HENRY.)

PUBLIC EXAMINATION.

Re Frederick Charles Calf. George Gilchrist, Edward Battle, and the bankrupt were examined by the official assignee relative to a tobacconist and newsagency business in Oxford-street, which was carried on by Calf in association with Battle.

A BANKRUPT MAKES A CLAIM AGAINST HIS ESTATE.

Re Charles Read. The bankrupt sought to prove on his own affidavit for £22 10s. as executor of the estate of Eliza Harwood for money belonging to her estate applied to his own use. It transpired that there was another executor, William Newell, of Sydney, solicitor. Since the sequestration the money had been repaid to the estate of Eliza Harwood out of the proceeds of the furniture allowed to bankrupt by the creditors. The bankrupt was examined by the Registrar. Mr. Henry disallowed the claim, on the ground that as the money had been repaid to the estate of Eliza Harwood, there could be no claim on behalf of that estate. The bankrupt could not, Mr. Henry said, have proved against his own estate as an executor without an order of the Court (ex parte Shaw re Howard and Gibbs, Glynn and Jamieson's reports, vol 1, page 159.) The other executor would have been the proper person to prove (ex parte Brown, 1 Deacon and Chitty's Reports, page 118; ex parte Courtney, 4 D. and C., page 456).

SEQUESTRATION ORDERS ON PETITIONS OF DEBTORS.

Charles O'Donnell and Francis Chas. Smith (trading as O'Connell and Cleary), of Redfern and Botany-road, bakers. Mr. A. Morris, official assignee.

James Trimnel Ritchard, of No. 8, Cooper-street, grocer. Mr. A. Morris, official assignee.

James Donaghy, of Glen Alpine, Campbelltown, coachman. Mr. L. T. Lloyd, official assignee.

Augustus Horatio Clark, of 43, Goodhope-street, Paddington, and Victoria Arcade, Sydney, fancy dealer. Mr. E. M. Stephen, official assignee.

George Knox, of Auburn, carrier. Mr. L. T. Lloyd, official assignee.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.

FRIDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge FITZHARDINGE.)

THOMPSON AND ANOTHER V. DAUNT.

In this suit, which was instituted by Thomas James Thompson and Harold Clarke Thompson, carrying on business as sharebrokers, in Pitt-street, city, against E. Russell Daunt, of Castlereagh-street, to recover £31 10s. 4d., the amount of calls paid by them upon certain shares in Cosgrove's Broken Hill Silver-mining Company, previously purchased by defendant from the plaintiffs, his Honor gave judgment. He found for the defendant, with costs.

THE BOROUGH OF MACDONALDTOWN V. LLOYD.

This was an action brought by the borough of Macdonaldtown against Mr. L. T. Lloyd, the official assignee of the bankrupt estate of Michael Benedict Magill, to recover £17 6s. 9d., alleged to be due to the borough in respect of the use and occupation by the defendant of a tollbar in Erskine-street. It appeared that the bankrupt Magill held a lease from the borough authorities of the tollbar in Erskine-street, with right to collect the tolls, paying a monthly rent. Magill's estate was sequestrated on August 5 1888, and defendant was appointed the official assignee; and the estate, being under £200, was administered under the 17th section of the Bankruptcy Act. At the date of sequestration there were arrears of rent due. After the sequestration the bankrupt continued in possession, and accounted to the defendant (his official assignee) for tolls collected up to September 19. The borough, through their solicitor, called upon the official assignee to elect, under the Bankruptcy Act, whether he would adopt or abandon the lease. On September 19 the defendant gave notice in writing that he disclaimed the lease and immediately gave up possession. The borough then claimed the tolls collected between August 8 and September 19.

Mr. Bateman, instructed by Mr. W. J. Hill, appeared for the plaintiffs, and contended that there had been a forfeiture of the lease at the date of sequestration by non-payment of rent, and that the official assignee was an agent de son tort in collecting the tolls after that date.

For the defendant Mr. Gordon, who was instructed by Mr. E. A. Smith, submitted that the lease had been disclaimed on September 19, and that the disclaimer under section 62 of the Bankruptcy Act discharged the official assignee from all liability as from the date of sequestration, and that the plaintiffs' only remedy was to prove against the estate.

His HONOR held that the lease was not forfeited, but that it was in existence until the letter of the 19th September. There could be no doubt that so long as the lease was in existence the official assignee had all the rights of the lessee, and would not therefore be liable in any action for the money he received. Whether the official assignee, under any circumstances, could be sued for rent, he was not called upon to decide, and in the case before him he must enter a verdict for the defendant.

JONES V. LEEDER.

This was an action instituted by the plaintiff, L. C. R. Jones, of Bent-street, against Emma Leeder, of Pyrmont Bridge-road, to recover £115 15s. 6d. under a mortgage given on 18th January, 1887. A verdict for the amount claimed was given by consent.

COX V. TODD.

Mr. Hanbury Davies, instructed by Mr. H. A. Lyons, appeared for the plaintiff, Frederick Tarrant Cox. There was no appearance for the defendant, William Todd. The plaintiff claimed the sum of £22 10s., being amount of dishonoured promissory notes to the plaintiff, endorsed by the defendant, together with interest. The jury found for the plaintiff for the full amount.

GRIMLEY V. GUERIN.

There was no appearance for the plaintiff, Frank Grimley, but the defendant, Ann Guerin was represented by Mr. H. E. Cohen, instructed by Mr. John Williamson. This was a claim for the sum of £1000 for goods sold and and delivered. The defendant pleaded payment by promissory notes for £587 0s. 7d., and paid into court £95 16s. 10d. as sufficient to satisfy the residue. The plaintiff was nonsuited.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

FRIDAY.

(Before his Honor Judge M'FARLAND.)

ALLEGED PERJURY.

In the case of Joseph Myers, charged with perjury and tried the previous day, the jury came into court this morning, and not having agreed on a verdict they were discharged. The prisoner was remanded till Monday next, bail being allowed, himself in £160, and two sureties of £80 each.

CHILD ABANDONMENT.

The young woman Kate De Lawarie, who, at the beginning of the week, pleaded guilty to eight different charges of abandoning infants, to the endangerment of their health and lives, was this morning brought before the Court for sentence.

His HONOR, before passing sentence, addressed some remarks to the prisoner. He said she had pleaded guilty to eight different indictments charging her with having abandoned a number of children to the danger of their health and lives; and he understood that five other similar cases might have been preferred against her if the Crown had thought it advisable to do so. The state of things revealed by the evidence in the police court in which she was tried was of an absolutely shocking character as occurring, or capable of occurring in the heart of the city or in any other civilised community. It appeared from these proceedings that the practice followed was that the girl herself either inserted an advertisement in a newspaper or replied to an advertisement inserted in a newspaper, calling upon persons who desired that their children should be taken care of by others to communicate with her. And it would appear that some thirteen persons, men or women—unhappily, principally women—were found on communication, prepared to sell their own children, and who actually did sell their own flesh and blood for a few shillings, on the pretext that the prisoner would receive and care for and bring up their children. Talk about African slavery, no feature of it was worse than the particulars which had been revealed in this case. Under that accursed system people of one nationality sold into bondage or death persons of another, and of a supposed lower grade in the human scale: in this case they found men and women selling their own offspring in the city of Sydney for a few shillings, and getting rid of them by handing them over to the prisoner on the pretext that she would care for them, and act as a mother to them. And these persons must have known just as well as she did that these children would be abandoned almost immediately, and in all probability left to die. It appeared that the prisoner exposed these children and left them—one in a water closet, another in the gutter, and others elsewhere. The prisoner, however, stated that in each of the cases she watched hard by to see the children rescued. There was no evidence that she did so. The children sold by their parents and abandoned by the prisoner—and the parents must have known they would be abandoned—ranged from six days old to one year and nine months. The parents were, indeed, more guilty than the prisoner, and he trusted that every possible effort would be made on the part of the Crown to bring them, or some of them, to justice. He was sorry to have to say that, inquiry having been as to Mrs. Barrett, to whom the prisoner stated she had committed the charge of her own children, no such person could be found by the police, and that nothing was known as to what became of her children. It was necessary that these facts should be generally known. Public attention had rightly been called to this frightful condition of things, for it was remarkable that such crimes could be committed in the heart of Sydney. It now remained for him to discharge his duty in this matter, and he could not do so without again expressing regret that he had not before him side by side with the prisoner the human monsters who had sold their children in this manner. The law required that any person who exposed a child under two years of age to the endangerment of its health or life should undergo a certain sentence. After considering the matter he had come to the conclusion that he could not mitigate the sentence, and as an example to others and with the object of stamping out this kind of thing, the extreme punishment would be given to the prisoner. He would, however, say this—that if at the end of three years it appeared that her conduct had been good, he would see what could be done as to mitigating the sentence. The sentence of the Court was that she should undergo penal servitude for five years on each charge, the sentences to be concurrent.

In reply to his Honor, the Crown Prosecutor said that nothing had yet been discovered of a Mrs. Dunn, who it was said had led the prisoner into trouble. His Honor expressed the wish that every effort should be made to bring this woman to justice.

PERSONATION AT THE RECENT ELECTIONS.

A young man named Walter Hawkins was charged with having attempted to personate George Tindall for the purpose of voting at the recent election for the return of four members to the Legislative Assembly for the electorate of Central Cumberland. The accused was further charged with having personated Walter Bayley, for the purpose of voting at the same election. Prisoner pleaded guilty to both charges; and his Honor, at the request of Mr. Montague, counsel for prisoner, remanded the prisoner till Wednesday next.

ALLEGED PERJURY.

A young man named Thomas Morgan Tierney was charged with having falsely sworn that he was continuously in the company of Edward Crawford (then being tried at the Court of Quarter Sessions on a charge of robbery and assault) from 8 o'clock on the night of the 12th January last until 12.30 a.m. the next day. The other persons charged with perjury during the week—viz., Robert Reid and Joseph Myers—were witnesses in the same case as the accused, and the evidence of the three was of the character to prove an alibi, so far as the two men convicted of the robbery and assault alluded to were concerned. Prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. A. Shaw. The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, and the prisoner was discharged.

REMISSION OF PENALTY.

In the matter of Henry Lomas Smith, of Burwood, fined the previous day for non-attendance as a juror, his Honor to-day remitted the fine.

CASES FOR MONDAY.

William Lewis Flower, Marian Gogerly, larceny; James Ford, indecent assault; Edward Dawes, embezzlement; Thomas Ryan, perjury.

POLICE.

Mr. Abbott, S.M., dealt with the business in the Charge Division of the CENTRAL POLICE COURT yesterday morning. Charles Henry Rayford, alias G. H. Boydell, 28, no occupation, pleaded guilty to stealing a vest, valued at 7s. 6d., the property of Messrs. Farmer and Co. The prisoner was sent to gaol for six months, with hard labour. Ernest Gilroy was charged, on remand, by warrant, with being the bailee of a red heifer calf, valued at 50s., and fraudulently converting the same to his own use. He was also charged by warrant with being the bailee of a strawberry heifer calf, valued at 51s., and fraudulently converting the same to his own use. The latter case was first taken. The evidence did not support the charge, and the accused was discharged. Mr. Abbott said that there was no evidence of possession on the part of the accused: there was no evidence of guilty knowledge; there was not the slightest suspicion that he had acted with wrong intent, and the case was about the feeblest that he had ever known brought in a court of justice. The other case against the accused was withdrawn. Henry Walsh, 19, labourer, for stealing a case of grapes, valued at 8s., the property of Thomas Parker, was sent to gaol for two months with hard labour. Mr. G. O'Malley Clarke, S.M., presided in the Summons Court. A rather respectable-looking young man, about 22 years of age, named Sydney Lyons, was summoned by Thomas Jones for larceny as a bailee. Mr. Moffitt (M'Donell and Moffitt) appeared on behalf of the prosecutor, and Mr. M. Williamson for the accused. It appeared that the prosecutor carried on business as bed-manufacturer under the name of S. Lyons and Co., at Darling Harbour, and that the accused was employed as clerk in the establishment at a salary of £2 per week. The father of the prisoner had been appointed manager of the business, and he in turn appointed his son as clerk. On the 25th of February last the accused collected a cheque for £56 18s. 6d. from Messrs. David Jones and Co., and paid it into the Haymarket branch of the London Chartered Bank to the account of S. Lyons and Co., in whose name he opened an account; a cheque signed by defendant drawn against that amount had been presented; the cheque had not been paid, payment having been stopped. The plaintiff deposed that he had discharged defendant on the 4th February, and that defendant had no right to collect moneys on his account. Complainant's account was at the City Bank. The defendant was committed for trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions, bail being allowed.

Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., dealt with the business in the Charge division of the WATER POLICE COURT. Mr. A. M. Fisher, S.M., presided in the Summons division. Charles Paine, alias John Harkness, 33, plumber, was remanded for a week on a charge of stealing 13 pairs of lasts, 6 pairs of uppers, a quantity of leather, 10 packets of boot protectors, and other articles, value in all £6, the property of John Thomas. Robert Edwards, 31, bootmaker, and James Williams, 42, saddler, were remanded until Monday on charges of having certain goods in their possession which were reasonably suspected to have been stolen. Henry Evans, 22, seaman, was charged with having, by means of a false pretence, to wit, a valueless cheque, obtained from Mr. Hagon, tailor, of Pitt-street, goods to the value of £3, and 10s. in money, with intent to defraud. The accused was remanded for a week. Hugh Phillips, 38, William Connolly, 29, John Killain, 23, and James King, 28, seamen, were charged with absenting themselves without leave from the steamer Austral. The men were each sentenced to one month's imprisonment with hard labour. Michael Murphy, 29, seaman, who was similarly charged, was ordered to be kept in gaol for two months, with hard labour, his being a more aggravated case than the others. A number of persons were fined for breaches of the Metropolitan Transit Commissioners' bylaws. The Chief Inspector (Mr. Alfred Edward) prosecuted several persons for not having their vans licensed, the chief offender being one George Reaves, a carter, who was fined 40s. and costs, or one month to gaol, for carting luggage to the railway station in a vehicle which had not been duly licensed by the transit commissioners.

Mr. Whittingdale Johnson, D.S.M., presided at the NEWTOWN POLICE COURT. Joseph Power, alias Powell, on remand, charged with assaulting one Charles Halstead, was fined £3, with 5s. 10d. costs.

Messrs. J. W. Withers and J. Luke, Js.P., disposed of the business at the PARRAMATTA POLICE COURT. James M'Carron was fined 20s. and 5s. 6d. costs of Court for inciting a prisoner to resist the police.

THE COURT-MARTIAL.

EVIDENCE FOR THE PROSECUTION.

The General Court-Martial appointed to inquire into certain charges of embezzlement made against Warrant-officer William Webster, of the New South Wales Artillery, was continued yesterday at Dawes Point Battery. There were present:—Colonel Bingham, R.A., president; Colonel Penrose, R.E., Major H. P. Airey, D.S.O., Captain Baynes (New South Wales Artillery), and Captain Cuthell (General Staff). Major Lassetter appeared as Judge Advocate, and Lieutenant-Colonel Mackenzie, A.A.G., prosecutor. Mr. Heydon, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, represented the Crown; and Mr. G. B. Simpson, Q.C., instructed by Messrs. Stephen, Jaques, and Stephen, appeared for the defence. The evidence for the prosecution was continued. George Whitehouse, the manager of the firm of William Henderson and Co., the contractors for the supply of regimental clothing for 1887 and 1888, gave evidence respecting documents that passed between the prisoner and the firm. He explained that for the year 1887 the allotted compensation money was £344, and that his firm, after handing over two-thirds of this sum to Warrant-officer Webster, retained one-third, less 26½ per cent., in keeping with the custom obtaining. A great deal of curiosity was evinced by the Court and counsel concerning the one-third payment to the contractor, and the witness was examined exhaustively on the point. He stated that as far as he knew, no clothing was supplied or value given for this one-third. The contractors obtained the compensation money from the Treasury upon the voucher of the officer commanding, and after deducting the sum named, for which nothing was supplied by them, gave the balance to Warrant-officer Webster for distribution amongst the men, as compensation for their well-preserved clothing.

Mr. Simpson, questioning the witness, said, "Supposing a man is entitled to £3, and Henderson and Co. draw that amount, what is due by them in that case?" Before the witness had an opportunity of answering, Mr. Heydon entered an objection, on the ground that the witness was not the proper person from whom such evidence should be obtained. Mr. Simpson urged that he wanted to show, according to the recognised and authorised custom, that the prisoner initialled and vouched for the payment of a sum of money to Henderson and Co. as if Henderson and Co. had supplied the clothing to the extent mentioned in the voucher. That was one of the charges against Webster, a charge of having fraudulently done so, and perhaps in complicity with somebody else. He had been struggling to bring before the Court the fact that, although Henderson and Co. received a sum of money for clothing represented in the voucher, the clothing was never received, never delivered. Assuming that the prosecution had proved this, he wished to show the Court that by the recognised authority the custom had been to do in a lawful way the very thing the prisoner was accused of doing unlawfully. He submitted that it was most material. The Court overruled the objection; and the witness, answering the question, said, "A list is sent to us giving the amount each man is entitled to. We receive the order for say £3 for which, we draw out a voucher signed by Webster and obtain the money at the Treasury." "You draw the £3 as if you had supplied clothing of its value?" "Yes." This had been the custom within the knowledge of witness as far back as 1880. "You said in answer to Mr. Heydon that the voucher for 1887 was for £344 8s. 10d.; what would the one-third of that be?" "It would be £114 16s. 3d., discounting 26½ per cent." Mr. Simpson remarked that he was very curious to know what Henderson and Co. received one-third of that sum for, when they did nothing for it; and the witness replied, "It's pound for pound. What is to keep the establishment? The firm had all the trouble of collecting the money in question." (Laughter.) "Then you mean," said the learned counsel, "that for the trouble of going to the Treasury for £344 8s. 10d., your firm should receive £114 16s. 3d.?" "Yes, that is what it comes to." This, he added, when further interrogated, had been the custom as long as he had had any connection with the transactions; he had never heard it questioned until recently. At the court of investigation held last year at the Victoria Barracks, he gave the following answer in reply to a question concerning the compensation system:—"We receive lists of the names of men who are recommended for compensation in lieu of clothing. The vouchers for the total amount so claimed are then forwarded to the regimental authorities at the Victoria Barracks for signature and returned to us. We present them at the Treasury, and upon receipt of payment we hand over two-thirds cash to Mr. Webster and take his receipt for the same. In the case of compensation for warrant officers the same routine is observed, except that we give full value for each article and retain the clothing, as the clothing for warrant officers is made up in the colony. To my thinking the present system of clothing the regiment is not a satisfactory one. The clothing should be supplied from individual measurements and made up in the colony. The present system of making the clothing according to the size rolls causes a large expense for alterations owing to the fact that many men take their discharge between the days when the size rolls are made up and receipt of the clothing." In answer to Mr. Heydon, witness said he did not know upon what authority the one-third compensation money was retained; he only knew it was the recognised custom. Mr. Simpson then alluded to a matter of £65 10s. compensation for warrant officers, and asked if the goods mentioned in the order were supplied. Witness answered in the negative, adding that Henderson and Co. received the £65 10s. The Judge Advocate asked the witness why it was that the warrant officers got the full amount of their compensation, and the answer came, "It has always been our privilege to give it to them." The clothes in question, representing the value of £65 10s., were never made at all; the books made the amount appear compensation, and the vouchers clothing. Mr. W. Hopkins, the Government storekeeper, was examined as to routine and office matters.

The Court then adjourned until Monday morning.

REWARD, £50.—Whereas it has come to our knowledge that a spurious and worthless imitation of Kruse's Insecticide, bearing the name of Kruse, is being hawked about this city, the public are hereby cautioned against this imposture, and are informed that a Reward of FIFTY POUNDS will be paid to anyone giving such evidence as will lead to the conviction of the makers and vendors of this spurious article. The genuine Kruse's Insecticide may be easily distinguished from the imitation. Kruse's Insecticide has a blue wrapper and large white directions label, with red band bearing the words "Kruse's Insecticide, sole proprietors Felton, Grimwade, and Co., Melbourne." To be obtained of all respectable dealers.—[ADVT.]

THE CHARGE AGAINST MR. THOMAS WALKER, M.L.A.

Mr. Dibbs laid upon the table of the Legislative Assembly last evening papers relating to the verdict of murder against Mr. Thomas Walker, M.L.A., given by a coroner's jury at Toronto. The first document is a memorandum by the Colonial Secretary (Sir Henry Parkes) to the Inspector-General of Police. It relates to some printed matter which appeared in the Melbourne Herald, under the heading of "Mr. Walker and the spiritualists," and contained the following:—The printed matter has been sent to me from Sandhurst (Victoria). It would appear from the letter signed "F. Fenton" that the verdict of the coroner's inquest at Toronto against Walker (Thomas Walker, Esq., M.P.) was "murder," and that he absconded. I think, in justice to the Legislative Assembly and to Mr. Walker himself as a member of that body, the Inspector-General should communicate with the authorities in Canada to ascertain the real facts. It appears that a copy of the depositions can be obtained on a small charge from Mr. Fenton: but I assume that the best way will be to communicate with the Canadian police." The graveness of the charges are set forth in two letters—both addressed to "Thomas M'Lear, Esq., of Toronto, a well-known publisher and a friend of Mr. Terry's, to whom Mr. Terry, who first drew attention to the affair in Melbourne, wrote for information relative to the Saunders affair. The first letter is from Dr. Riddel, of Toronto, the coroner who held the inquest on the body of Saunders. The second letter, which is written on the official notepaper of the County Town Attorney at Toronto, is from Mr. T. Fenton, the County Crown Attorney, in whose office the inquest papers are filed.

In accordance with the memorandum which he received from Sir Henry Parkes, Mr. Fosbery, Inspector-General of Police, wrote to the chief constable at Toronto, in April, 1887, requesting him to furnish all the information he could with regard to Mr. Walker's case. In reply to this full particulars of the evidence and verdict were sent out to Mr. Fosbery and submitted in due course to the Colonial Secretary. The matter was referred by Sir Henry Parkes to Mr. Wise, who was then Attorney-General, for his opinion. Mr. Wise prepared the following minute for the Cabinet. I have carefully perused the papers in this case, and am of opinion as follows:—1 That the evidence discloses a strong prima facie case of murder against —— Walker, and that the verdict of the jury to that effect is supported by the evidence. 2. That there be can no reasonable doubt, after reading the letter in the Melbourne Herald, that Thomas Walker, one of the members for Northumberland, is the —— Walker against whom this verdict was found, and who absconded from justice. 3. That on being satisfied of these facts, and of the fact that Walker had no intention of meeting the charge by taking his trial, the House would be acting within its powers, and in accordance with precedents, by expelling him. 4. That the practice appears to be for a motion of expulsion to be moved by the leader of the House. 5. That the House has been slow to accept any but the strongest proof that a member was keeping out of the way of justice or was guilty of a charge until it was proved in Court. 6. That it would therefore be desirable to obtain some expression of opinion from the Canadian authorities, whether they will apply for Walker's extradition; or, if not, why not? I therefore advise that as a first step the Canadian authorities be communicated with by cable, informing them that there can be no doubt of Walker's identity, and inquiring whether they will apply for his extradition. Shortly after this Sir Henry Parkes wrote to Mr. Fosbery, stating that upon mature reflection he had decided not to write to Sir John Macdonald, but to leave him (Mr. Fosbery) to communicate with the proper officer of police. Mr. Fosbery wrote as requested, and received a letter to the effect that the Canadian authorities declined to proceed further in the matter. Upon leaving office on the 14th January, Sir Henry Parkes left the following minute for Mr. Dibbs:—"The enclosed papers speak for themselves. There can be no doubt that the Walker against whom a coroner's jury returned a verdict of 'murder' in Toronto is identical with Thomas Walker, M.P. for Northumberland, who is a refugee from justice. After the communication with the police of Toronto, some delay took place in considering whether any other representations should be made to the Government of the Canadian Dominion, and this with an unwillingness to take any step against a member so violently opposed to the Government as Mr. Walker was, induced further hesitation on the part of present Ministers. No such cause for hesitation can now exist, and I think there can be no doubt that Parliament ought to be informed of the case affecting Mr. Walker's seat." Mr. Dibbs, on reading the papers connected with the case, found that the letter sent by the chief constable of Toronto, in reply to Mr. Fosbery's letter, and stating that no further action would be taken by the Canadian authorities, was missing. Both Mr. Dibbs and Mr. Walker, the Principal Under-Secretary, wrote to Sir Henry Parkes regarding the missing letter. Sir Henry replied:—"During the two years I was in office as Colonial Secretary my private papers accumulated without being sorted or classified, and I have not found time since to go through them or arrange them. In regard to the Walker case, I distinctly recollect that the letter in question was brought to me on receipt by the Inspector-General of Police; but whether it was left with me or not I cannot say. The letter, however, has no bearing at all on the facts of the verdict against Walker, and merely explained that the authorities at Toronto did not deem it expedient, owing to the death of witnesses and other circumstances, 'to identify the accused, and secure his extradition to Canada upon the charge pending against him.' That charge being 'murder,' and not 'manslaughter,' as erroneously stated in your letter of the 23rd ultimo, you will find by consulting the Inspector-General that it is in no sense "material" to the case itself. Early next week I will examine all my papers, and if these or any other official documents are by accident amongst them they shall be immediately returned to the office." A week afterwards, on the 11th February last, Sir Henry Parkes wrote:—"I have been engaged yesterday and to-day sorting and arranging my papers, and I am glad to say I have found the letter from the Chief of Police, Toronto, to the Inspector-General of Police, Sydney, declining to take the necessary steps for the extradition of the absconder Walker. You will observe that the envelope has little of an official appearance, and is addressed to me by name, which will account for its having been tied up in a bundle of my private letters. This letter, however, has no bearing on the merits of the case against Walker, and merely shows that the Canadian Government (Ontairo) were not disposed to incur the cost and trouble of his extradition." The letter was from the Department of the Attorney-General, Ontario, and it contained the following from the Deputy Attorney-General of Ontario:—"I beg to advise you that the case is not one in which this Government would feel justified in taking proceedings to extradite the man named Walker. I notice that the offence occurred over 13 years ago, and after such a lapse of time it would be very difficult to procure the necessary evidence to establish the case of the Crown, even assuming that the person mentioned by Mr. Fosbery is the person charged with the offence. I have nothing before me showing the nature of the evidence taken at the inquest, and it does not appear whether the facts proved on the inquest were sufficient to establish a proper case for extradition. I return Mr. Fosbery's letter. The Coroner who held the inquest is, I believe, dead."

The whole of the papers were printed, and a copy was forwarded to Mr. Thomas Walker, who replied at length to the charge against him. In his statement Mr. Walker says:—"The papers you have forwarded me for the purpose of enabling me to give what explanation I may have to offer of a painful accident which occurred when I was 16 years of age, show clearly to what extent political malice may carry the free-trade leader, Sir Henry Parkes, and his satellite, Mr. Wise. I observe they have published from the Melbourne Herald a letter of condemnation from W. H. Terry, who admits in that letter that had I chosen to keep my mouth shut about him and his seances all the documents re the accident which caused the death of Saunders 'in all probability would have remained unpublished.' There is also a paragraph from the same paper, issued August 22nd, 1883, reflecting upon me, but not one of my letters of reply published in the same journal at that time is quoted, or even alluded to. Only that which will carry malice with it is permitted to appear, with apparently no other object than to ruin my future prospects, and to crush me out of political life. Now, as to the accident: I thought that nearly everyone in Australia who has at all watched my public career was familiar with the particulars of it. I have never attempted to make any secret of it." In support of this Mr. Walker quotes a long extract from a work which he published over six years ago, of which he has sold some thousands of copies, and in which the facts are fully stated. Mr. Walker adds: For over two years I lectured in all parts of America, and my whereabouts could have been ascertained at any moment. But it remained for Mr. Wise to insist upon a cablegram being sent to inform the Canadian authorities that he could put his hands upon me. The Canadian authorities could long ago, if there had been a case against me, have dispensed with his impetuous, if not malicious, advice. Had Mr. Wise been less eager for service to his very scrupulous chief; had he been less ridiculously impulsive and more thoughtfully careful and regardful of the honour and dignity of his office, he might have made a few inquiries nearer home, when he would have discovered that not only had I been to Canada and informed the police, but, that no loophole of accusation might be left, I had altogether dispensed with the necessity for his cablegram and "an officer with the necessary documents to identify" me, by forwarding my address and admission of identity to the chief of police, Toronto, from Melbourne, over five years ago. I have now to state that so eagerly have I sought to answer any call of justice that I went, nearly six years ago, in the presence of two witnesses, and asked the Melbourne Police Department to take the matter up. Mr. Walker in conclusion says: I have only to point out that the evidence taken at the inquest shows—1st. That Mr. Saunders and myself were boarders at the same hotel. 2nd. That we shared the same bedroom. 3rd. That we were in our bedroom on the night of the accident. 4th. That no one in the place likely to know if such a thing had been going on was aware of any "exhibition." The landlord, the bookkeeper, and other boarders were ignorant of anything of the kind, which they could not have been. I repeat, had any "exhibition" really been taking place. 5th. That the witnesses all confused the attendance of Saunders and myself at other seances with the unhappy accident that occurred in our bedroom. It is quite simple to explain how the jury arrived at their verdict. (I am again quoting from my work, 'Orthodoxy Unmasked.') It was only sufficient for them to know that I was a spiritualist, that Mr. Saunders was also one; that I was experimenting with phosphorus, and had left Toronto, for, they knew not where, and that Mr. Saunders had died from tetanus, evidently in consequence of the accident; and so, having appearances against me, they very naturally supposed that I was afraid of remaining in Toronto because I was a guilty man. They therefore allowed their feelings to decide their judgments. They had no means of knowing my youth, and my ignorance, so far as I am aware, and for anything they knew to the contrary I might be a hardened sinner. With so much room for the play of imagination and feeling, guided by their natural prejudices, it might be expected that any ordinary jury would be likely to be severe in its conclusions upon an occurrence of this kind. Nevertheless, even after considering these facts, I trust I may be pardoned for saying that the verdict they gave was a disgrace to them.

"I have complied with your request, hon. Sir, and I now ask for neither mercy nor pity, but simple justice.

(Signed) THOMAS WALKER.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY—FOURTH DAY.

Yesterday the ministers and elders constituting the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of New South Wales, held their fourth daily sitting of the 24th annual session, in St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street. The Moderator (the Rev. Dr. Gilchrist) presided, and there was a full attendance of ministers and elders.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

The Rev. Dr. STEEL gave notice at the gathering of the Assembly that he would move, "That this Assembly recognises with gratitude to the Great Head of the Church the many blessings vouchsafed to the Presbyterian Church of Victoria during the 50 years of its existence, and the noble work done by the church for the advancement of the cause of Christ and of Presbyterian principles, and appoints the Moderator, and such of the ministers and elders of this Assembly as may find it convenient, to attend the jubilee celebration in Melbourne, and to convey the congratulations of this Church."

CHURCH AND MANSE LOAN BUILDING FUND.

The Rev. J. F. HENDERSON, the chairman of the committee on Church and Manse Loan Building Fund, submitted the annual report. The fund they administered was conferring great benefit on the Church. It was but a comparatively small fund, but it had done a large amount of good. From small beginnings it had risen to a capital of £7306 15s. 2d.; but the actual cash lent out, without interest, to assist in church and manse building, since its commencement had been £11,560. It was just 10 years since the fund was launched. As time went on the increasing ratio of the amount lent to the capital would become more apparent. The amounts first lent began to be fully refunded. Mudgee, standing at the head of the list, had fully paid up the amount lent. Others had not taken the 10 years they were entitled to to refund the amount of their loans. These were:—Botany, £200; Orange, £200; Wallenbeen, £100; and Kangaroo Valley, £150. The refunds, as a rule, came in with regularity. There were exceptions which required the committee's attention. Regent-street had failed to refund at this date £20 for 1887 and £50 for 1888. The refund of £35 from Pyrmont was overdue since 5th June last; that from Lismore for £20, was overdue since 9th June last; and since December, Murrumburrah, £20. The refunds amount to £983 9s. 2d., and the loans to £650. But with what was added from the Majority Fund in 1888, and interest, there was a balance of £968 5s. 10d. to commence the current year with. The special grant fund, which it was resolved to use till the end of 1891 as an emergency fund, had in this capacity done excellent service. Cases of emergency now and then arose, and it was of the utmost importance to be in a position to come to the assistance of congregations and so meet such cases by a temporary loan. The congregations thus aided had been—Cooma, £500; Blayney, £140; Armidale, £300; and Hay, £250. These sums mostly required to be refunded in equal annual instalments, the last being on or before 31st December, 1891. Hamilton received a loan out of the fund of £250 until their turn should come to get that amount out of the loan fund. This amount has now been refunded to the special grant fund. Those cases are given to show the committee's manner of dealing with this fund under the temporary authority given to them. The report was adopted, the committee were thanked for their diligence, and the subscribers to the majority fund for the additions to the loan fund capital through that source.

PETITION FROM THE "PRESBYTERIAN" DIRECTORATE.

Discussion was resumed on the petition from the directors of the Presbyterian asking the Assembly to settle "a serious difficulty which has arisen between the Rev. J. M. Ross, general agent of the church, and the Rev. Joseph Copeland, editor of the Presbyterian.

The Rev. J. M. Ross stated his case and defence of his conduct, and he was followed by Mr. J. H. Goodlet as a petitioner, this closing the case of the petitioners.

The Rev. Dr. GEEKIE, addressing the Assembly, said that he had never listened to a case more painful and utterly unnecessary. He was perfectly well aware that the dispute should have been settled outside. He had been told that from the social position of one of the petitioners he should be heard in the court: but in his opinion the ecclesiastical position of the General Assembly was of more value than the social position of any one of the petitioners. Let honour be given to whom honour is due, and he maintained that honour was due to the Assembly and to the Church. The time and character of the Assembly was too precious to be devoted to such a case as the one before them. The whole discussion had been a sheer waste of time, from which no intellectual, spiritual, or temporal good would result, and it had been unworthy of the dignity of the court. The whole affair had been an attack on the general agent, and was the time of the court to be wasted year after year with such attacks? It would be a thousand times better, and more straightforward, if they would take the proper course to get rid of the general agent, and so settle the thing for ever. He moved,—"That the Assembly, having heard the petition fully discussed, regrets that any unpleasantness had arisen between the parties concerned, and advised both parties to seek peace, and endeavour, as far as may be possible, to co-operate in the work of the Church."

The Rev. A. OSBORNE seconded the motion, which was spoken to by several ministers. The Rev. Mr. MACKY suggested that the Rev. J. M. Ross, the Rev. J. Copeland, and Mr. J. H. Goodlet should all shake hands, and promise to forget the past, he eventually moving that the Moderator ask them to do so.

The Rev. J. AULD introduced a certain pamphlet, which he said was written by the Rev. J. M. Ross, in which he charged Mr. Copeland and Mr. Goodlet with having perverted the truth.

Mr. GOODLET said, in face of the statement in the pamphlet, he would not shake hands.

The Rev. W. M. D. MACKY suggested that the pamphlet should be withdrawn, and Dr. CAMERON followed by suggesting that all papers on both sides should be withdrawn.

The Rev. J. M. Ross said he was quite willing to withdraw if the other side would do the same.

Mr. GOODLET would not agree to this proposal.

The Rev. J. COSH moved an amendment to the effect "That the Assembly expresses regret that the difficulties referred should have arisen, and its decided conviction that the difficulties should have been brought to an amicable settlement without bringing the matter before the Court. Further, that the Assembly declares that, in its judgment, sufficient evidence had been presented to show that the general agent had failed to carry out the recommendations agreed to at the last Assembly in respect of the duty of exercising towards the ministers and office-bearers of the church a spirit of conciliation and courtesy and forbearance and helpfulness, and further that the Assembly renew its admonition to the general agent on the subject."

A vote was taken, resulting in 28 for the amendment and 61 for the motion.

EVENING SESSION.

DR. STEEL'S MOTION.

At the opening of the evening session the Rev. Dr. Steel moved the resolution of which he had given notice in the morning. The Rev. W. Bain seconded the motion, which was carried.

THE KIAMA CASE.

The discussion on the Kiama case, in which the Rev. J. Wilson appealed against the decision of the Illawarra Presbytery, was resumed, and the Rev. R. S. Paterson moved,—"That in regard to the dissent and complaint of the Rev. John Wilson, M.A., all parties in the case having been heard, the assembly hereby declares that in its opinion the presbytery did not decide to injure the usefulness of Mr. Wilson; further, it is of opinion that the presbytery erred in having given the advice that the pastoral tie should cease and in having received the same in its records; but after taking a conjoint view of the whole case the assembly resolves to sustain the dissent and complaint, and to appoint a commission to proceed to the Kiama charge and to take evidence with the view of bringing the matter to a final issue according as it may in its wisdom see fit."

The Rev. GEO. GRIMM, M.A., seconded the motion.

The Rev. T. S. FRACKELTON moved as an amendment,—"That in the case of the dissent and complaint of the Rev. J. Wilson, M.A., against the presbytery of Illawarra, this venerable assembly, having entered upon the whole of the matters appertaining thereto, resolve that we sustain the appeal, instruct the presbytery of Illawarra to delete from their records the finding of the presbytery, and appoint a commission of the assembly with assembly powers to proceed to Kiama at as early a date as possible to investigate all matters re the said congregation, and to devise such means as shall in their wisdom best conduce to the settlement of the unhappy differences; the said commission to consist of three ministers and elders from each of the contiguous presbyteries of Goulburn, Hawkesbury, and Sydney."

The Rev. W. M. D. MACKY seconded the amendment.

The Rev. H. A. HUTCHISON moved a further amendment,—"That the General Assembly having heard all the parties in the case, resolve to sustain the complaint and appeal, and instruct the Illawarra Presbytery to erase from their records their finding with regard to Mr. Wilson."

The Rev. J. BENVIE seconded the amendment.

Subsequent to this the whole evening, until 10 minutes past 11, was occupied in hearing amendment after amendment. Amongst the amendments was one proposed by the Rev. J. W. Inglis, who moved,—"The assembly having heard the several parties in the case, resolve to sustain the appeal, in so far as the presbytery failed to give Mr. Wilson an opportunity of being heard in regard to the evidence upon which the presbytery's advice to him was given; but inasmuch as the evidence given at the bar of this house and in the documents on the table clearly indicate a state of affairs in the congregation which render it almost certain that further action is necessary, alike in the interests of Mr. Wilson, and the people, the assembly resolve to appoint certain ministers and elders as assessors to act with the presbytery in further dealing with the condition of the congregation of Kiama and Jamberoo, with the earnest injunction to all parties concerned to study the things that make for peace; and further remit the petition from the congregation to the presbytery, as thus constituted, to be dealt with."

This amendment was carried by 59 votes to 15 as against the original motion.

The assembly adjourned at 11.15 p.m. until 10 o'clock this morning.

MAGISTERIAL INQUIRIES.

Mr. W. T. Pinhey, J.P., held a magisterial inquiry at the Prince Alfred Hospital yesterday afternoon concerning the death of a man named John Doyle, who died at that institution on the previous day from the effects of injuries received on the 4th instant. Deceased was a married man, residing at Cowper-street, Glebe, 31 years of age, and left a widow and one child. About 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon the deceased, who was employed at the Eveleigh workshops, was assisting in loading a water-crane and placing it on a hand-truck, for the purpose of taking it to a truck in which it had to be placed. Deceased and a man named Gallagher were working at a lever, and when one end of the casting had been raised about 18in. the weight upon the lever overpowered them, taking it out of their hands and striking the deceased under the chin. He fell backwards, the wound was bandaged, and he was taken to the Prince Alfred Hospital. Dr. M'Lennan attended his injury and wanted him to remain in the hospital, but he would not. He was afterwards taken back to the hospital in a semi-unconscious state, and succumbed to his injuries as stated. Dr. M'Lennan deposed that death was due to cerebral meningitis, the result of the injury. Mr. Pinhey found that the case was one of accidental death.

At the Prince Alfred Hospital yesterday afternoon, Mr. W. T. Pinhey, J.P., held a magisterial inquiry relative to the death of a man named Mullavey, who died at that institution on the previous day from the effects of injuries to his back received on the 4th instant. Deceased was a married man, 50 years of age, and resided at No. 5, College-street, Camperdown. He was in the employ of the Harbours and Rivers Department, and worked at Cook's River. On Monday last he was assisting a friend at Botany to turn a punt over. Four men were raising the punt, which weighed about 17cwt., and when it was up on end it canted towards the derrick, and then fell over, injuring the deceased. Dr. M'Lennan deposed that the unfortunate man was admitted to the hospital suffering from fracture and dislocation of the back. He died on the 7th instant, from injuries to the spinal cord. A finding of accidental death was recorded.

TYPHOID FEVER AT ALBION PARK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Anyone reading your correspondent's report from Albion Park in Thursday's issue would imagine that typhoid was raging in that district to a very great extent, and that the milk supplied from there was dangerous to the health of the Sydney public.

The facts are as follows:—At present there are three cases of typhoid in the township of Albion Park, the disease having been brought there some few weeks ago by a stranger, and at one afflicted person's place a single, solitary cow is kept, but the milk supplied to Sydney is got direct from farms some distance away from the township, and at present, to my personal knowledge, there is not a case of sickness of any kind at any one of them.

All the milk for Sydney consumption is purchased through the agency of the directors of Albion Park Factory; but although this is the case, all of it goes direct from the farms, being thoroughly and properly cooled before it is put into the train, and should a case of sickness occur those in power would prevent a supplier sending, and that at once.

The fact of the milk being purchased through the factory is a guarantee of its purity, sweetness, and genuineness, for the directors make the matter almost a personal one, and all suppliers and dairies are subject here to strict supervision.

This I can assert fearlessly—that no milk coming to Sydney is purer or richer, and it is a pity that such a report should be sent to you as that under notice, seeing that it is misleading, untrue, and calculated to do the district a considerable amount of harm.

I only wish the Board of Health would send an inspector down, and I should be only glad to drive him round to every dairy farm supplying milk for Sydney consumption.

In conclusion, the milk from Albion Park may assist in curing typhoid fever, it certainly will not engender it.

I am, &c.,
WILLIAM MATHIE,
Director Albion Park Factory, and Chairman of School Board.

Albion Park, March 8.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—My attention has been directed to a telegram in your issue of the 7th instant re the prevalence of typhoid at Albion Park, and its supposed connection with milk the bulk of which is supplied from there to Sydney.

Let me say that there are only three cases of typhoid at Albion Park. Where one of those cases occurs a cow—only one—was kept, from which milk was supplied to the family where another case has since occurred,—at least so it is stated; but so far as the milk supply to Sydney is concerned, there is none supplied within three-quarters of a mile of any of the typhoid cases in question. The whole of the milk sent to Sydney from Albion Park, excepting that from two farms—both perfectly free from disease of any kind—is forwarded by the Albion Park Dairy Company, the manager of which receives the milk direct from the farms as soon as milked and cooled, and immediately sends it on to the train, the milk never entering a house from leaving the milking-pail until delivered in Sydney.

There is not a single case of sickness at any of the farms supplying milk to the metropolis, and should any occur it would be the A. P. Dairy Company's interest, as well as duty, to refuse to receive such milk.

I am, &c.,
THOMAS ARMSTRONG,
Chairman Albion Park Dairy Company,

DR. WILKINSON AND THE RABBIT COMMISSION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It would be almost as profitable to take exception to the delirious utterances of a man in the agony of death as to pay serious attention to the remarks made by Mr. Lyne in the Assembly last evening in reference to the Rabbit Commission. Still, in the public interest perhaps I should not allow his remarks to pass unchallenged. In the first place I do not happen to be, as Mr. Lyne asserts, president of the Rabbit Commission; next, the delay in sending in the commissioner's report has been caused by circumstances which the commission could not control. A progress report was actually ready last December, but as some of the members were anxious to have a final experiment carried out at Rodd Island on as large a scale as possible, it was decided to withhold the report until the experiment was completed. For the carrying out of this experiment a large number of healthy rabbits were required; but in spite of all the efforts of the Rabbit Department, a sufficient number of rabbits could not be obtained until late in February. The experiment has, however, now been completed, and the report will be issued immediately after the next meeting of the commission, a few weeks hence.

Since my accuser is only Mr. Lyne, I am in no hurry to vindicate my own actions as a member of the commission. The report itself will be the best proof of the value and thoroughness of the work of the commission. There is, it seems to me, but one epithet which can be properly applied to a man who perverts facts and invents statements for the purpose of attacking another behind his back.

I am, &c.,
W. CAMAC WILKINSON, M.D.

PETER MOLLER'S COD LIVER OIL has such a thoroughly established reputation that it seems almost superfluous to say that it is not an emulsion, and contains no water—charged for at the price of oil. The manufacture, from the finest and freshest livers only, is perfected in one operation, without any after manipulation, which should be carefully guarded against. Its superiority and efficacy have secured the approbation of the whole medical world, and the Highest Awards at all chief Exhibitions.—[ADVT.]

TRADES MOVEMENTS.

A meeting of the Sydney and Suburban Cabmen's Protective Union was held at the Trades Hall, Goulbourn-street, last evening. The president, Mr. J. Downey, occupied the chair. The report of the deputation which waited on the Transit Commissioners was received. From the report it appeared that on Wednesday last Messrs. Downey, Mansfield, Sampson, and Maryott waited upon the commissioners and made certain representations. These were that a large number of cabmen were in the habit of loitering about the metropolis, standing in front of tobacconists' shops or hotels for the purpose of picking up fares, instead of "working a rank" at the regular stands. This practice interfered greatly with the legitimate business of cabmen, and members of the union suffered considerable loss thereby. The deputation also called attention to the fact that the election of a fourth commissioner would shortly take place, and they therefore asked that measures might be taken to prevent transit officers from exercising undue influence in regard to the election, or, in other words, that intimidation might be prevented. The commissioners assured the deputation that in regard to loitering the regulations would be enforced, and that so far as intimidation was concerned they would do their utmost to see that the position of the transit officers was not abused at the forthcoming election. In connection with the election of the fourth commissioner, we are informed that Mr. Downey is likely to be the cabmen's candidate.

ALLEGED FALSE PRETENCES.

At the Water Police Court yesterday, before Mr. A. M. Fisher, S.M., F. A. Gibbs, hotel broker, Pitt-street, on remand, was charged with having, by means of a false pretence, obtained the sum of £150, with intent to defraud, from one Jacob Bentel, the proprietor of an hotel situated at the corner of Margaret and Kent streets.

Mr. O'Mara, instructed by Mr. Proctor, appeared for the complainant. Mr. S. Bull watched the case on behalf of the defendant.

At the previous hearing of the case on Wednesday the prosecutor, Jacob Bentel, gave evidence, in the course of which he said that Gibbs sold him, and he bought, a nine years' lease of the New Zealand Hotel, whereas in point of fact the lease would expire in the course of a few months. This was the false pretence he complained of.

Edmund Galway, hotel-keeper, residing at Waterfall, said he knew the New Zealand Hotel; he was licensee of the place until the 15th November last; at about that time he placed the lease, license, and goodwill in Gibbs's hands; he instructed Gibbs as to the matter of the disposal of the business; about the same time Gibbs said he had a buyer who had £100; after seeing Mr. Gleeson, the brewer, with reference to the hotel, witness again saw Gibbs; on that occasion witness told Gibbs to see Gleeson; both parties then went to Gleeson's office, where a conversation took place; Gibbs mentioned that his buyer had £100; witness was to get £50 out of the purchase money, Gleeson £40, and Gibbs £10; witness sold the remainder of his lease (something over 12 months), the goodwill, and the license; when witness entered the hotel there was two years and nine months of the lease to run; he told Gibbs that there were 15 or 18 months of the lease to run; knew Bentel as the purchaser of the house; when the contract note was signed the transaction was completed, and witness received £50 out of the £100.

By Mr. Bull: The contract-note was read over to Bentel and himself; Gleeson, and not Gibbs, gave witness the £50; Gleeson was the brewer, and held a bill of sale over witness; paid £225 for the two years and nine months' lease of the hotel when he went into the house; with a nine years' lease the hotel would be worth about £400 to him.

Mr. Fisher: Is not the whole point whether Bentel paid £250 for the lease; if he did there is a prima facie case against Gibbs.

Jacob Bentel was then recalled, and cross-examined by Mr. Bull. He said he paid Gibbs £250, so far as he knew; he obtained this money by mortgaging his property; he got the money from the Bank of New South Wales at Parramatta; he had £150 in hand at the time; did not receive a receipt from Gibbs for the £150, which he paid in notes; Gibbs said a receipt on the butt of the cheque-book would do as well; he raised £325 by mortgage, and realised an amount sufficient to meet all his liabilities.

Evidence was also given to show that the lease of the New Zealand Hotel would expire in May next. The lease was put in as evidence.

The further hearing of the case was postponed until Tuesday, at 2 p.m. The accused was allowed bail.

FUGITIVE NOTES.

Who shall say that the age of faith is passing away? That offer of the speculators to pay rather more than £12,000 a year for three years to the Government of Victoria for the privilege of publishing advertisements on the backs of postage stamps may at least be cited as evidence on the other side. The speculators themselves must be prepared to believe anything, or they must hold that the credulity of advertisers is unlimited. The basis of the whole scheme is the assumption that people who are about to stamp their letters will pause to examine the backs of the stamps. Now, if there is one thing in the routine work of daily life that is more likely than anything else to be done in a mechanical and thoughtless way, it is sticking a stamp on a letter. It is enough to apply your tongue to the gum, without stopping to consider what is underneath it. We shall next hear of some much believing and much-hoping syndicate offering to purchase the privilege of pasting placards inside the funnels of the tramway engines. The public have the outside always before them.

* * * * *

The idea of advertising on the backs of postage stamps suggests another, which, if carried out, would serve two purposes. Why not advertise on the backs of members of Parliament? Many of them are pining for payment. They could have it conditionally. If they would consent to wear coats provided by the State—of course not reversible—the Government could supply the coats and the money too without the cost of a penny by making the latter "advertising media," to use the technical term. "This style, 30s., a perfect fit guaranteed." "Try our new fustian." "Warranted pure merino." Such endorsements would ensure a distinction outside the House not always to be won within. And besides, the system might be carried through in a discriminating way. Extra prices might be charged to advertisers for backs of more than ordinary latitude or longitude; and these congenital advantages, which do not always tell for much in the Legislature, might find higher appreciation elsewhere.

* * * * *

This suggestion is made gratuitously—for what it is worth. Some of our public men would object to be decorated. Some, it is said have even declined a C.M.G.; as to others, it would not be pleasing to the public to see them figuring in this too conspicuous way. After all, is there not a danger of carrying the advertisement a little too far? The hoardings are always with us, and we could not get rid of them if we would. But if it would be distasteful to see a special representation of shoddy and gaudery on the backs of our public men, is it not an offence that our public places and our public conveyances should be disfigured in a similar way? Why should it be impossible to enter the railway terminus without being confronted by a grinning nigger in evening dress? Why should tramway passengers be doomed to nightmare by the vision of a lunatic carving an animated blackbird pie? It is indeed to be wished that protection were "coming" protection from these violent attacks upon our æsthetic peace.

* * * * *

Mr. J. P. Abbott's notice of motion for the removal of the customs duties now charged upon bacon, butter, cheese, and kerosene is to be welcomed as one of the pleasing signs of the times. When the cry "Protection is coming" was raised, four or five years ago, there were many men of a meteorological turn of mind who were seen gazing earnestly east, west, north, and south successively, as if to ascertain from which quarter the strongest wind was likely to blow. What followed, history will tell. The latest indications of the weather gauge have shown that "protection is not coming;" or at any rate, not just yet; and, lo! an ardent convert to protection is about to agitate for a larger measure of free trade. How great an endowment for a politician are quick perception and a receptive mind—the power to see and to take in the points of a situation at a glance. And when these are accompanied by the faculty of discovering, as if by intuition, the exact thing to be done at the particular moment, and an entire want of that sixth sense of consistency by which other men are so often hampered, it would be hard to set any limit to the progress upwards of so happily-constituted a man. That was a fortunate vote in the Assembly last week which saved a promising politician from being stowed away in the Chair, and gave him scope for the exercise of his talents on the floor of the House. An anemometer is more useful there. There will be some gratification amongst the freetraders at this gentleman's repentance; but it will be tempered by misgivings, for within the turns of "one revolving moon" he may relapse into evil ways. Buffoonery was the last resort of the distinguished man in reference to whom those words were first used; and history has a way of repeating itself. It is to be admitted, however, that the development of his interest in things of so mild and innocent a nature as bacon, cheese, and butter is indicative of simple tastes. And the expression of a desire to cheapen kerosene may be the involuntary confession of the consciousness of a need for "more light."

In some Frenchmen there is a lack of imagination and of reverence. The papers say that the mummy of a Pharaoh which recently arrived at Marseilles from Egypt was charged import duty at the rate for dried fish.

> "Imperial Cæsar, dead, and turned to clay,
> May stop a hole to keep the wind away."

But there we have the kindly clay intervening and the indignity is veiled. The body is first resolved into its elements and absorbed by mother earth. Here we have the very identical Pharaoh, shrunk and shrivelled, but preserved by wondrous skill and care from decay, retaining in framework and outline his original substance and form, and on entering a French port, he is made to pay the Customs duty on dried fish? Faugh! Were forty centuries looking up from that mummy case upon this illustration of modern civilisation? This particular Pharoah may have been an odd fish in his lifetime; but what did these Frenchmen know about that? There is some satisfaction in thinking that such an atrocity—worse than any that was ever perpetrated in Bulgaria—would not have happened in England if these relics of a grand antiquity had been taken there. Here again is evidence of the good that is in free trade. Even in New South Wales no such risk would have been run. The stranger—how distinguished, who shall say? who now is quietly sleeping in Sir Charles Nicholson's museum—landed here as an honoured guest. He was neither weighed nor measured, nor tested by the rude hands of Custom-house officers, to ascertain what duty he should pay; nor was there even the slightest chance of his being treated as dried fish. The French excel in gastronomic art; but is this excellence counterbalanced by a tendency to regard everything that may be hard to classify as something to eat?

* * * * *

There is bad news from Queensland. Mr. Wragge, of Brisbane, declares his belief that "a cyclonic disturbance is evidently developing between the Queensland coast and New Caledonia." It must be said that the French settlement is not entirely free from blame in this matter. Instead of exercising ordinary surveillance over the gentlemen who left Belleville and the Faubourg of St. Antoine to settle in Noumea—who changed the Phrygian cap for the convict's—the authorities suffered boat loads of offenders to escape west along the Tropic of Capricorn to where that important circle impinged on British territory. These froward children of Madame la Republique thought that so long as they kept Capricornus well in sight and their boat's prow towards the setting sun they would strike land and liberty about the neighbourhood of Rockhampton. But, as a rule, the unpitying sea no sooner gave them up than the unromantic police of Queensland received them with a hospitality almost obtrusively pressing. Still, from the workmanlike manner in which various Australian burglaries have been performed of late, there is good reason to suppose that many of these barricade builders have avoided the law's solicitous attention, and started on their own account, as if to show how far the old world keeps in front of the new when it comes to housebreaking. If Mr. Wragge's "cyclonic disturbance" would only hold off until a fresh fleet of forçats were about half way across, water spouts, typhoons, and tidal waves might dance in uncanny glee over the ocean separating Queensland from New Caledonia without causing uneasiness to the inhabitants of either land.

A couple of days ago an instructive paper on "Infantry fire" was read by Colonel Penrose. It is doubtful whether any improvement in small arms will make up for the want of coolness and steadiness in the men using them. The range of the modern rifle has been so extended, and the projectile's trajectory so flattened that persons who have never been under fire naturally wonder how any troops would face such a feu d' enfer of lead as an infantry battalion of the present can produce at a moment's notice. But all soldiers—particularly young ones—whatever their training, fire wild. It is astonishing the weight of lead it takes to kill a man. During the Kaffir war—the old "Brown Bess" was in use at the time—each savage was reckoned to cost a ton of metal which, without counting the powder, was a pretty stiff price to give for a dead native. Sometimes men, even after careful training, will be observed banging away for dear life at an enemy over 1000 yards off, their back sights flat all the time. Again, with the sights carefully adjusted for 1200, enthusiastic lads will be seen deftly enfilading a foe 100 yards away. In the former case, of course, the bullets burrow in the ground after a furlong's flight; in the latter they bring down inquisitive birds hovering in surprise over the turmoil below. Indeed, it is open to argument whether some of the seasoned British regiments that marched with Wellington from Salamanca to Toulouse would not hold their own to-day, flintlocks and all, against raw lads armed with Martinis. With the latter weapon in the hands of veterans the result, no doubt, would be a shambles.

The Inspector-General of New South Wales police writes that during his travels he encountered no baton that would compare with the leather club used by the Sydney force. From one standpoint this is, no doubt, reassuring. But, before coming to a definite opinion, it might perhaps be as well to hear the other side—to weigh what those have to say on whom the leather cudgel has been tried. What was the most hilarious fun to the boys was viewed in an entirely different light by the frogs. If anyone whom the present highly-elaborated truncheon has turned from vice to virtue could be induced to come forward in the public interest and allowed his head to be examined, the question of whether there is nothing like leather would be quickly at rest. Next to the horse the cow is probably the most useful of animals. Alive, she ungrudingly gives man the most nutritious of drinks; dead, her body keeps him physically healthy; while her hide, worked up into a bludgeon, attends to his morals. The Inspector-General's report should make mischievous and noisy persons reflect. Should it but induce people of demonstrative natures to remember that every constable, for all he looks so inoffensive, has within easy reach a baton that defies competition, it will not have been written in vain.

A birth is announced from the Sydney "Zoo." On Thursday a young monkey, the first of its kind, looked out upon the world, and saw that it was fair. What the wee anthropoid will think of the same world and its ways in a year or two is uncertain. By latest advices monkey mère was jubilant, while Monsieur was thoughtful. To be born in captivity is sad, for man or ape, still there are some compensations which should go far towards reconciling one to a fate intrinsically mournful. When the young monkey, for instance, reaches years of discretion, and with the inquisitiveness of its race notices the appearance and conduct of some of the elder branch of the family on the other side of the bars, it will speedily become reconciled. For the narrow escape it had, through an old-time but far-seeing ancestor's deciding to follow the safe track, and let others try evolution if they wished, must arouse gratitude. In a word (the authorities at the Gardens might accept the hint in all friendliness), when the anthropoids look dull and mopey, it might not be amiss to try the effect of a procession of Waterloo and Botany boys in stirring them up to the point of cheerfulness. The lads might be admitted free, and told to conduct themselves in their normal manner.

It is the only story that is just the same to-day as when beautiful, evil-hearted Paris whispered it into the ear of fair Helen of Troy. A young Brisbane doctor waited palpitating for his fiancée, whose passage he had paid from England, and who was daily expected. She came, but as a bride—the bride of another. Oh, thou hast been the cause—how the old song rings in one's ears! To be brief, the captain appeared, and the leech's image in her mind was daily daubed with a fresh coat of forgetfulness. As it became blurred and faded, the sailor's outlines occupied its place, becoming more distinct as the other's passed away. The marriage took place on board, and when the physician, hearing of the arrival, slipped gaily seaward to welcome a timid British maiden to another hemisphere, he was met by a British married couple who treated his objurgations with derision. The moral is clear. If Australian girls are not good enough for you, if you will have a wife from home, let—let her pay her own passage.

Some natural uneasiness seems to have been caused in London by the appearance of an emu on Australian postage stamps in the place formerly sacred to the Sovereign's head. Indeed, one English journal went so far as to attribute the bird's effigy to a desire on the part of colonists to fly away from the Empire and go into business for themselves. But, so far as flight is concerned, an alligator would typify it just as well as an emu. Yet, if this droll bird cannot get through the air, the way it gets over the ground is what a Western American lady would call "a caution." This was probably why it was put on the N. S. Wales stamps—to show how quickly letters could be delivered when the postal authorities were in earnest. Since the introduction of this device it takes only two days to send a letter from Balmain to Bondi, where it formerly took a week. The new Postmaster-General is said to be pledged to reduce the time to 36 hours, but the officers of the department shake their heads, and think it unwise to try. They say their subordinates would resign in a body if subjected to such wearing drudgery. For years in Tasmania there was an ornythorhynchus paradoxus, or flat-billed platypus, on the stamps. No wonder that business people in Hobart when writing to Melbourne about Christmas thought themselves fortunate in getting an answer by Easter.

FIRE AT MURRURUNDI.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Correspondent.)

MURRURUNDI, Friday.

A disastrous fire occurred here last night when the premises of Mrs. Hannah Davis were destroyed. It originated through a candle setting fire to a tablecover. The flames spread with great rapidity, and in less than a quarter of an hour the whole place was in flames. Nothing was saved except the contents of the outbuildings. The premises, including furniture, were insured in the Liverpool and London and Globe for £400. The estimated loss is £1000. An inquest was held this afternoon, and a verdict was returned that the premises were accidently destroyed.

BATHURST FREE-TRADE ASSOCIATION.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Correspondent.)

BATHURST, Friday.

To-night a meeting of the Bathurst Freetrade Association was held in the Town Hall, Mr. W. H. Paul, M.L.A., in the chair. The chairman urged all present to be active in interesting themselves in the society. From what he had seen in Sydney and in Parliament, cohesion among the free-trade party was needed now more than ever. He expressed the opinion that the Government, if they fulfilled their promises in regard to an amending Land Bill and a Local Government Bill, would meet with the support of the majority of the House. A number of members were enrolled, and rules were adopted for the management of the association.

THE LATE REV. WILLIAM BINNINGTON BOYCE.

A little before midday yesterday the Rev. William Binnington Boyce, one of our oldest colonists, and one of the leading clergymen of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, died at his residence, Bowden, Toxteth-road Glebe, at the venerable age of upwards of 84 years Born in 1804, when the century had but just begun no small part of his career, prolonged as it was for more than the ordinary mortal span, was identified with the colony, of the higher life of which he was in so many respects a worthy representative. Ranging over a period of more than 43 years, he has been, with the exception of one rather lengthy interval, a resident in New South Wales, and many of those to whom his life-work was familiar will recognise in his passing away the removal of a noticeable landmark of the colony's development. Mr. Boyce was born at Beverley, Yorkshire, England, on November 9 of the year just mentioned. He was twice married—in 1834, to Maria Bowden, daughter of James Bowden, merchant, of Hull; and in 1873 to the eldest daughter of the late Hon. George Allen. He leaves four children by his first wife, viz., Lady Allen, wife of the late Sir George Wigram Allen; Mrs. M'Arthur, wife of A. M'Arthur, M.P., England; Mrs. Stewart, of the Mount, Bathurst; and Mrs. Gibson, of St. Cloud, Paris. The early career of the deceased gentleman was essentially that of an active missionary. As early as 1830 he was chosen by the British Conference to compile a grammar of the Kaffir language, his habits of study and application, even at the early age of 26 years, signalling him out as worthy to be entrusted with the preparation of this, the first work of its kind known. He proceeded to South Africa, where he laboured with characteristic energy for about 13 years, during which he saw a good deal of the rougher side of a zealous missionary's life. His wife and children accompanied him in most of his labours here, and shared the privations of his arduous life, as well as the honour of his missionary effort and successes. Returning to England in 1843, he remained for two years in charge of a church at Bolton, but being in the meantime appointed General Superintendent of the Wesleyan Missions he left England for Sydney in 1845, arriving in January of the subsequent year. Some years later, when the local Wesleyan Church acquired the right of self-government, the zeal and capacity of the late Mr. Boyce recommended him to the unanimous acceptance of that body as the president of the first conference held in Australia. When the University of Sydney was incorporated in 1850 a still more popular tribute was paid to his public and private worth in his appointment as one of the 16 original members of the Senate of that institution. His colleagues numbered amongst them such leading men as William Charles Wentworth, Sir Edward Deas-Thomson, Stuart Alexander Donaldson, Sir Charles Nicholson, and other well-known colonists, as well as representatives of the more important denominations. Mr. Boyce, who always took a true bibliophile's interest in the collection of volumes of literature, was one of the committee appointed to form the present magnificent library of the Sydney University. He continued a member of the Senate until 1859, and some time after this severed his connection with the colony for a time, and proceeded to England. Here he received the important appointment of one of the general secretaryships for Foreign Missions, which he continued to hold for 18 years. Returning to Sydney in 1876, he spent the last 13 years of his life in the city which had seen so much of his useful life's work, devoting himself in the evening of his years chiefly to literary pursuits, but always taking an active part in the service of his church, of which he regularly conducted the service in the chapel at Toxteth Park.

The demise of this venerable clergyman and respected citizen came almost suddenly. He had been ailing for a few days only, notwithstanding his advanced age. On the Thursday before his death he spent the day as usual in his study, and the same evening was passed in a vigorous discussion of the political situation with those around him He rose yesterday morning according to his usual habit, and read his customary newspaper through with his ordinary keen interest in the passing events of the day. He was seated on his bed, having just put his newspaper aside, when his doctor made his call. Rising to meet him, he walked a little distance. At this point the deceased clergyman gave the first and only indication of real distress. The exertion caused him to fall down in a faint after proceeding a few steps only. He never recovered, and death ensued in the course of the morning, a little before 12 o'clock.

Of the noticeable personal characteristics of the Rev. Mr. Boyce it is unnecessary to tell those who enjoyed his acquaintance. Of late years particularly, he never failed to deeply impress those with whom he was brought into contact. An omnivorous reader, he was naturally a man of a very wide range of information. He was one of the old school of large library men, and in pursuance of this taste of his he collected in his time more than one valuable library. His own private reading knew no limitations, and his intellectual curiosity was keen enough to familiarise him in this way with an astonishing variety of subjects. But although this was the case with regard to his general reading, he was at all times remarkable for the interest he took in every branch of theological learning, of which he was an enthusiastic student. While always keeping with strict fidelity to the old theological lines of the school in which he was trained, and ever a stanch believer in that evangelical system which he held and taught to the last, his range of reading carried him into the most distant fields of theological discussion, including the German literature and its various theories of religious and philosophical speculation, with which he was markedly familiar. His public ministrations in his own chapel continued, as we have seen, up to the last. His discourses were always practical and to the point, and a striking characteristic of what he had to say, always pleasantly familiar to those who were privileged to hear him, was his habit of associating Christian truths with the actual facts, and practical experiences of the everyday life that lay about both the preacher and his congregation. He always continued loyal to the Church to which he belonged. Out of the pulpit, and in his capacity as a private citizen, he was equally distinguished by a large catholicity of spirit, evidenced by his zealous co-operation with such men as the late Dr. Polding and others in the Senate of the University and elsewhere. Although a student and a clergyman, he was no more man of books and letters; on the contrary, Mr. Boyce excelled as a man of business in a degree which few men, especially clergymen, could venture to emulate. An instance of the value that was placed on his talents in this direction is afforded by the appointment given him on his visit to England about 1860. As one of the secretaries of the Wesleyan Missionary Society, on him devolved to a large extent the business management of that large and complex institution, and his undeviating accuracy in all matters pertaining to business made his services especially serviceable in that capacity. To the last he continued to take a vivid interest in the progress of Continental politics, on which he was exceptionally well informed; and he followed with similar care the course of our own political events, and the development of the land, education, and other public questions, up to the morning of his decease. He was eminently entertaining as a conversationalist at all times, but particularly so in the midst of the familiar circle of friends who were in the habit of collecting about him of late years, when he had become unable to go so much as formerly into society. To them his society and the charm of his conversation were never without their fascination; and his keen interest in affairs, as well as the wide range of information at his command, remained always a source of interest to the little band of friends who were in the habit of seeing and meeting with the deceased under such favouring circumstances. A word-picture in Mr. Froude's "Oceana," sketched on the occasion of an evening spent with the late Mr. Boyce during the writer's visit to the colonies a few years ago, is vivid enough in its limning to give an idea of the personality of the man to those who did not know him. After describing the more prominent guests on the occasion referred to, Mr. Froude continues:—"The person whom I liked best was Lady Allen's father, a beautiful old clergyman of 82, who told me that he had read all my books, that he disapproved deeply of much that he had found in them, but that he had formed, notwithstanding, a sort of regard for the writer. He followed me into the hall when he went away, and gave me his blessing. Few gifts have ever been bestowed on me in this world which I have valued more. Sir Wigram Allen, I regret to see, is since dead; the life and spirits which were flowing over so freely that night all now quenched and silent! He could not have had a better friend near him at the moment of departure than that venerable old man."

Little remains to be added respecting one who filled a place of his own during life. It is announced that there will be a short service to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at the chapel, Toxteth Park, at 1.20 p.m., from which place the funeral of the deceased will proceed, and a special train will leave the mortuary station at 2.25 for Rookwood.

The following tribute to the memory of the deceased has been sent us by the Rev. J. H. Fletcher:—

The name of the Rev. W. B. Boyce, who died yesterday at his residence at Toxteth, Glebe, at the advanced age of 84, has been little seen in public for many years past, and to the younger generation even of the ministers of the church which he long and ably served, was comparatively unknown. And yet if by any chance they found themselves in his study they would at once recognise a veteran thinker very unlike all their preconception of what a very old man is supposed to be. There was nothing old about him but his bodily presence. His shrewdness, sagacity, and vivacious interest in all things, past and present, indicated a mind that had not stood still, and a man who was not content to be laudator temporis acti. There must be few surviving who remember him, as he was at the time of the founding of the Sydney University, of which he was one of the oldest fellows, and in whose history he took the deepest interest to the end of his days. But it was no common spectacle in those days—now nearly 40 years ago—to see a man who united in himself such decided, and one might almost say narrow denominationalism joined to such a broad and generous judgment which made him at home with men of every school of religious throught and always ready to do them reverence. He was then in the midst of his great work as general superintendent of Wesleyan missions in Australia, and his name will ever be held in reverence by those who remember with what liberality of gift and labour, with what kindness of heart behind not a little brusqueness of manner, with what largeness of view and persistency of purpose he laid the foundation of the present Wesleyan Methodist Church of Australia, now no longer dependent on the liberality of the English Missionary Society, but a self-supporting group of churches, with large powers of self-government, and an energetic missionary propaganda of its own. During a visit to New Zealand as one of an important deputation in connection with the new organisation of the Wesleyan Methodist Church nearly 40 years ago, he persisted, against the advice of the oldest missionaries, in going overland from Auckland to Wellington, the greater part of the journey being made on foot, and the road in some places climbing from the beach to precipitous cliffs, up which the traveller had to pull himself by ropes of green flax. He accomplished the journey safely, though he is said to have confessed at the end of it that he had been guilty of a sin of ignorance, which to repeat would be a sin of presumption. But the incident may serve as one of many which showed the immense physical endurance with which he was gifted, and the unsparing manner in which he used it at the call of duty. This was in part the result of his missionary work in South Africa, where he showed a courage and energy scarcely less than heroic. To travel through Caffraria in a waggon with his wife and children 60 years ago was no holiday excursion—over the roughest of roads and through broad rivers, the roar of the lion sometimes mingling strangely with the mother's lullaby and the sounds of evening prayer. It was not easy to get him to talk of these adventurous days. Of nothing, perhaps, was he prouder than his great discovery of what he called the "euphonic concord," which not only crystallised the crabbed tongue of the Kaffirs into perfect grammatical order, but gave a key to open nearly all the languages of the African Continent south of the Equator. These languages are pervaded by an indiscribable peculiarity called "clicks," which have no parallel in any European language. The tradition is that Mr. Boyce mounted a horse and rode 60 miles, the very night of his discovery to deliver his "Eureka" to his friend and fellow missionary, Rev. William Shaw. For many years he held office as one of the secretaries of the Wesleyan Missionary Society of London, always distinguishing himself by his broad views of mission work, and his deep interest in British colonies. His later life has been spent in comparative seclusion in his house at Toxteth, always girt about with a mighty army of books and always ready to instruct or debate with you on almost any point of literature or philology, of philosophy or of divinity, past or present. He presented a collection of more than 2000 volumes, principally Biblical criticism and theology, to the Wesleyan Theological Institution, Stanmore. He was a great admirer of the old theologians, and would certainly extinguish with a caustic sentence any young divine who ventured to speak lightly of them; yet he revelled in new books and moved abreast of the latest development of thought. Much of his enormous reading is put to use in two books on which he lavished much time and money in his later days—his survey of the so-called "Higher Criticism," which seeks to reconstruct the sacred records from the standpoint of a modern thinker, and his substantial "Introduction to the Study of History." In the first of these books one is struck with the largeness of heart and generous judgment of the writer, whose satire was usually so keen and swift upon anything he disliked, who heartily disapproved of nearly all the writers that he criticised, and yet who resolutely maintained a certain judicial fairness in discussing them. In both these books one is impressed with the vast range of the author's reading in almost all directions. The only fault one is disposed to find is that we have not more of the author himself. Whenever he gives us his own thoughts you seem at once to see the man himself, so rich in common-sense, so free from affectation of superior learning, and with an almost cynical pleasure in exploding a sham which would have gratified Carlyle. Mr. Froude has left on record the pleasure he found in spending an evening with Mr. Boyce, and one regrets there was no Boswell to give us the conversation. No higher praise need be given to this venerable man than this—that he was not only a good, but also a strong man, whose piety was a fruitful vine twined round an intellect like an English oak. Few such men are given to Australia. Much of his work is now buried, but it is the burial of foundations on which fabrics of strength and use will long endure.

CASUALTIES.

A boy, name unknown, was drowned at 2 p.m. on Thursday, while bathing in Geddes's wool-washing place, Waterloo. He was bathing with a number of other boys, and got into deep water and sank. The other boys ran away, and said nothing about the fatality. About 5 p.m. a man named Reilly found the clothes and notified the police, who immediately proceeded to drag for the body. It was recovered yesterday morning by Senior-constable Bradwell and Constable Harrison, and conveyed to the South Sydney Morgue, where it awaits identification. The body is that of a boy aged 11 years, 4ft. 3in. high, of fair complexion, medium build, auburn hair, brown eyes, and with one tooth missing in the upper jaw. The clothes consisted of a light tweed jumper, dark tweed knickerbockers, elastic-side boots, an old felt hat, a white collar with pink border, and a white shirt. An inquest will be held to-day.

The dead body of a woman was found floating, about 9.45 a.m. yesterday, in the water at Blackwattle Bay, near Pyrmont Bridge-road, by Henry Taylor, of the Harbour View House, Lower George-street. It was taken from the water by Constable Killeen and removed to the South Sydney Morgue. The following is a description of the woman:—About 35 years old, 5ft. 2in. high, thin build, sallow complexion, dark brown hair mixed with grey, grey eyes, five teeth missing from upper and two from lower jaw. The body was poorly nourished, and dressed in an old brown check skirt, with black body trimmed with black velvet, collar, old olive-green underskirt, brown print apron (flower pattern), cotton stockings with red and white and brown hoops, black satin cape trimmed with black lace, and white lace collar, cloth E.S. boots (much worn).

While a schoolboy named James Broad, 12 years of age, residing at No. 21, Macquarie-street South, was playing with some cartridges yesterday, one of them exploded, and scorched the lad's eyes and face. He was taken to the Sydney Hospital.

Yesterday morning a labourer, whose name is unknown, was working at Rose Bay, when he complained of a severe pain in the chest. Shortly afterwards he was found lying on the ground, with his face downwards. He was removed to the Sydney Hospital, where an examination showed life to be extinct. The body was removed to the North Sydney Morgue, and the matter reported to the coroner.

Yesterday morning a male child, aged 10 months, died at the residence of Peter Peterson, No. 46, Clayton-street, Balmain. His wife states that she adopted the child in answer to an advertisement. It was taken to her on the 4th instant by its mother, who gave her name as Farrell, and said that shortly after marriage she found that her husband had committed bigamy. In consequence of this she left him. The child's name was William John Farrell, and it had been sickly for some time. The matter was reported to the Coroner.

A man named Anthony Martell, a poultry farmer, met with a nasty mishap at Botany on Thursday night. When endeavouring to drive a large boar into a stable the animal turned on him, and, throwing him down, ripped his right thigh open with its tusks. Martell attended at the Sydney Hospital yesterday.

A seaman named Ike Persson, aged 30 years, residing in Princes-street, fell from the s.s. Namoi into the water at the Market Wharf yesterday, owing to the tackling breaking while he was making a small boat fast. He was admitted to the hospital suffering from a contusion of the right hip and a lacerated wound of the scalp and right temple, received during the fall.

A schoolboy named Jonathan Thomas Norrish, aged 8 years, residing at No. 220, Clarence-street, fell from a two-storey window yesterday afternoon, and was admitted to the hospital for treatment.

THE DIFFERENTIAL RAILWAY RATES.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Correspondent.)

ALBURY, Friday.

A remarkable instance of the result of the operation of the differential railway freights has come under notice. In order to encourage trade with Sydney, goods are carried southward at rates much lower than those levied conveying merchandise from Albury northward. This policy is not pursued in regard to wool, for the sending of which to Sydney special inducements are offered. When, however, the Riverina pastoralists desire to send wool to Melbourne, the rate charged to Wodonga is excessive. As an illustration of this, it is quite common for wool destined for Melbourne to be removed from trucks at Albury, put into lorries, and carted to Wodonga, there to be re-trucked; the difference in the cost of carriage resulting in a material saving. Still greater economy is achieved in the case of stations within 20 or 30 miles of Albury by carting wool the entire distance to Wodonga. For example, one station alone, through which the railway runs, carted all its clip, and thus effected a saving of £75.

Cocoa Drinkers are cautioned against those cocoas called pure, but which contain about 4 per cent. of added alkali, &c. As an absolutely pure, guaranteed, and delicious strength-sustaining beverage, Cadbury's Cocoa stands unrivalled.—[Advt.]

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE TURF.

The V. R. C. autumn racing carnival will be brought to a conclusion at Flemington to-day. Proceedings commence with the All-aged Stakes, in which the Kirkham stable is represented by Rudolph, Sinecure, Cranbrook and Spice, and as Lochiel and Carbine are pretty well certain to be reserved for the Loch Plate, there seems every probability of the blue-and-white being victorious. So little is known of the youngsters engaged in the Two-year-old Stakes that it would be mere guesswork to venture an opinion; but were Tradition even as well as he was when he ran for the last Melbourne Cup, the Place Handicap would be a certainty for him. However, as he would appear to be a little off, Dividend, Theorist, and Pakeha may divide honours. A most interesting race may be expected for the Steeplechase, and as 12st. 13lb. seems to be too much for the gallant little Ruby, the brunt of the battle may be stood by Reny, Dragon, and Game. Lochiel, Carbine, and Carlyon will probably come home as named for the Loch Plate; and Loyalist, Volley, and Nectarine should have most to say in the Farewell Handicap.

Among the entrants nominated for the juvenile events to be decided during the coming spring and fall campaigns in America are three youngsters who first saw the light at Hobartville, and are now the property of Senator G. Hearst, of California. The bay colt by Kingsborough from Fleetwing has been named Redwing, and he has been entered for four events in connection with the spring and fall meetings of the Latonia Jockey Club, and one event (for three-year-olds) at the St. Louis Jockey Club spring campaign 1890. The chestnut filly by Somnus from Geraldine has been named Gertrude, and the chestnut colt by Somnus from Maid of the Hill, De Mar, both of whom have been nominated for the two-year-old events of the Latonia Jockey Club spring meeting 1889. Colonial breeders will watch with considerable interest the career of these youngsters.

The varied and interesting programme provided by the Rosehill authorities should attract a large number of sportsmen at that favourite resort this afternoon, when hurdle-racing, flatracing, and steeplechasing can be witnessed. The usual service of transit by rail will be available for the conveyance of visitors, and the arrangements for the despatch of specials are fully set forth in our advertising columns. The management have made arrangements to have the results of the V. R. C. races posted on the course immediately after each event is decided. A numerous field promises to face the flag for the first event, the Granville Stakes, for which at 1.45 p.m., the horses engaged will be despatched on their mission, and on recent form West Lynne, Cobweb, Lady Kingsborough should divide the honours. Voltaire, Yadbro, and Parade should form the first flight of those engaged in the Hurdle Race. The Nursery Handicap is almost certain to bring about an interesting contest, in which Mitre, Neta, and Marvel may have most to say at the finish. Of the horses engaged in the Handicap Selling Race, B.Y., Creeper, and Master Crusoe should furnish the place-getters. Ravensworth, New Guinea, and Timbrel should run well forward in the Welter Handicap; and the contest for the Steeplechase should lay between the two topweights.

The leading handicaps to be decided at the Autumn Meeting of Brisbane Tattersall's must receive attention from owners and trainers of racing stock on Tuesday next, when at 4 p.m. entries close for the following events:—Metropolitan Stakes of 400 sovs., supplemented by a cup value 100 sovs., presented by Mr. J. F. O'Brien, second horse to receive 40 sovs., and the third 10 sovs. from the prize, 1½ mile; City and Suburban Handicap of 250 sovs., second horse to receive 20 sovs., and the third 10 sovs. from the prize, 1 mile and 3 furlongs. Nominations accompanied by the regulation fee of 1 sov. will be received up to the hour aforementioned, by Mr. J. G. Byrne, secretary, Tattersall's Club, Brisbane; while local sportsmen can transact their business with Mr. James Perry, secretary, Tattersall's Club, Pitt-street.

The annual reunion of the Cootamundra Turf Club takes place on Tuesday and Wednesday next, and the management have left nothing undone to bring about a successful meeting. The course is reported to be in capital order, and the usual facilities for reaching the trysting place will be granted by the Railway Department. The general entry takes place on Monday—a fixture that racing men should not forget.

Weights for the handicaps to be decided at the coming race meeting at Condobolin are promised to-day.

The Michalago races take place on Monday.

Those interested should not forget that all horses not scratched for the Opening Handicap and Warwick Cup, the leading events of the Warwick Farm inaugural meeting, by 4 p.m. on Monday will be deemed acceptors, and become liable for the balance of the stake.

A notification appears in this issue to the effect that the management of the Warwick Farm Racing Club have made arrangements with the Railway Department that specials for their inaugural meeting on the 16th and 18th instant, will only stop at Granville on the outward and return trips, and also that carriages will be reserved for ladies, a provision that will doubtless be greatly appreciated.

The bill of fare framed by the Canterbury Park second March Meeting, on the 23rd instant, is announced in our business columns, and sporting men will bear in mind that entries close with the secretary, Mr. Geo. W. S. Rowe, at 4 p.m. on Monday for the following events:—Flying Handicap of 75 sovs., 6 furlongs and 50 yards; Park Stakes, a handicap of 75 sovs., for all horses that have never won an advertised prize of the value of 45 sovs. at the time of running, 7 furlongs; Croydon Handicap, of 100 sovs., 1 mile and 1 furlong, Stewards' Mile, a welter handicap of 75 sovs., lowest weight 8st. 7lb., 1 mile; and Disposal Stakes of 50 sovs., for three-years-old and upwards, weight for age, winner to be sold for 75 sovs., selling allowances, 6 furlongs. The entry fee has been fixed at one sov. for each event, and must accompany the nomination paper.

The secretary's report and treasurer's financial statement were read and confirmed, the latter showing a credit balance of £27 3s. 4d. to the funds of the club. The office-bearers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:—President, Alderman C. R. Austin; captain, Mr. J. A. O'Grady; sub-captain, Mr. C. Taylor; bugler, Mr. C. Warburton; committee, Messrs. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.

The annual meeting of the Redfern Bicycle Club was held on Friday night at the Redfern Town Hall. Mr. T. C. Newman occupied the chair, there being about 25 members present. The annual report stated that the credit balance amounted to £12 6s. 7d.; the number of members had increased from 26 to 36; a donation had been received from Mr. W. LAWN TENNIS.

This afternoon, at the Association Cricket Ground, the match for the captaincy of the Sydney Lawn Tennis Club will be played, when Mr J. R. King will meet Mr. D. Webb (holder). The match should be exceedingly close and interesting, as both players have been showing excellent form of late, notably Mr. King, and in the opinion of many the Challenge Shield will change hands this season. Play will commence at 2.30 o'clock, and the match will be decided by the best of five sets.

The following players have been selected to practise, with a view to their inclusion in the team to represent this colony in the match against Victoria, to be played on May 4 and 6 next:—Messrs. D. Webb, J. R. King, R. and E. Fitzgerald, C. W. Cropper, R. W. Wallington, H. S. Fox, G. H. Leibius, H. S. Huntley, A. B. Paterson, Clive Smith, A. W. Allen, R. M. S. Wells, C. T. Metcalfe, P. B. Colquhoun, and H. S. Crossman. The latter is a country player of great reputation, having, we understand, twice won the championship of the Northern district at Armidale. Any players whose names are not in the above list, and who wish to practise, are requested to send their names in to the hon. secretary of the S. L. T. C., C. W. Cropper, Survey Office, 37, Pitt-street, as soon as possible, in order that practice matches may be arranged.

We understand that the annual tournament of the Geelong (Vic.) L. T. C. will be held on the 20th, 22nd, and 23rd of April, when three events will be decided, viz., Gentlemen's Single Handicap, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Handicap, and Ladies' Single Handicap. Valuable prizes are offered, so no doubt the meeting will be as successful as the previous ones have been.

On Saturday, 16th instant, a double handicap, open to the members of the S. L. T. C., will be commenced. Entries must be made in pairs before 5 o'clock on Monday, 11th instant. This event has been substituted for the usual club doubles, and will, no doubt, attract a large entry.

AQUATICS.

A general handicap race under the auspices of the Prince Alfred Yacht Club will be sailed this afternoon for a prize of £20 subscribed by the members, with a second prize of £5 presented by Mr. Walter Reeks, and a sweep of £1 1s. per boat added. First boat in of either class saving her time to take first prize; but in the event of the second boat in, saving her time, being of the same class as the winner, then the second prize to go to the first boat in, saving her time, of another class. Such classes to be under 20 rating and over 20 rating. The entries and handicaps are:—Era, A. G. Milson, 41 rating, scratch; Volunteer, W. P. Smairl, 30 rating, 4 minutes 3 seconds; Isea, Dr. F. Milford, 9·8 rating, 23 minutes; and Iolanthe, Wm. Maclardy, 7·9 rating, 37 minutes. The course to be sailed, an inside one, is about 22 miles, being as follows:—A flying start at 2 p.m. from line between starter's boat and H.M.S. Orlando's buoy, down to and round R. S. Y. S. buoy, back round Shark Island and Fort Denison, thence round buoy at Manly, and back round Shark Island to flagboat off Fort Macquarie. The Sirocco has not entered in this race owing to Mr. Knox's departure for Queensland, and the Akarana was unable to enter owing to her not being able to get a crew in time. The Miranda would have been one of the contestants, but she could not be docked during the week. As will be seen by the handicaps the Volunteer gets her time for rating from the Era, which no one will doubt is the fairest conditions for them to sail under. The two smaller boats are fairly handicapped on past performances, and a good finish should result. The club steamer Admiral will follow the race, leaving No. 2 Jetty, Circular Quay, at 1.45 p.m. sharp.

The Sydney Amateur Sailing Club have a single-handed race this afternoon for club prizes of £5 and £2. The entries, &c., are:—Puritan, Pandora, and Kananook, scratch; Sea Breeze and Sappho, 2 minutes each; Buttercup, 3 minutes; Vacuna, Albicore, and Varuna and Cynthia, 4 minutes each; Netta, Ianthe, and Marguerite, 5 minutes each. The course is from Kirribilli round Shark Island, back round flagboat off Fort Macquarie, thence round Fort Denison and back to flagboat.

A sealed handicap in connection with the Port Jackson Sailing Club will be sailed this afternoon, over the Manly course, the conditions being—Pleasure jib, mainsail, and topsail, booming out of jib allowed. The entries are:—Dreamland, Idothea, Lavinia, Our Jack, Our May, Iolanthe, Wilfred, and Scylla, all 24ft.; Rosamore, Imogene, Rosalind, and Atlanta, 22ft.; and Liberty, 20ft. The start is a flying one, at 3.15 p.m., and Messrs. W. Griffiths and F. C. Eaton will officiate as starter and timekeeper respectively. The steamer Inflexible, in charge of Mr. Eaton, will follow the race, leaving No. 2 Jetty, Circular Quay, at 2.30 p.m.

The Balmain Sailing Club have a Hurry Scurry Race for all boats 20ft. and under, for which the following entries have been received:—Sophia, 16ft.; Shadow, 16ft.; Bessie, 16ft.; and Clyde, 19ft. Owing to the small number of entries, the committee decided to allow boats to enter at the post. The race, for open boats 20ft. and upwards fell through, no entries being received.

From our English files to hand we learn of the steam yacht Marchesa, which was some time back with the Earl of Dudley, being caught in a severe gale. She left Southampton for a cruise to Gibraltar on January 6, all going fairly well till 8th, when the yacht met a fresh gale with a heavy sea running, the engines having to be put slow. At noon the same day it was blowing a strong gale from S.W. to N.W., with a very heavy sea. A great quantity of water was shipped, a good deal finding its way below into the saloon and berths, damaging stores and furniture. At midnight the ship was labouring heavily, constantly shipping seas over the bows, taking away meat safe, hencoop, washing jib off the boom, two panels off the bulwarks from the starboard side, and sundry loose things off the deck. Early the next day trysail and standing jib were set, same weather prevailing Two more panels off the bulwarks from the starboard bow were washed overboard. At night the gale was very strong, with terrific squalls of sleet and rain, bursting standing jib and trysail, shipping seas over all, one breaking through engine-room skylight, large quantities of water going below into the engine-room, another sea falling into a boat on deck, splitting her in two. The next day the squalls were less frequent and severe, very heavy sea still running. Gradually the weather moderated, and the Marchesa arrived safely at Gibraltar on January 14.

PRESBYTERIANISM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—That the Presbyterian cause has languished in our land has always been a matter of regret to many of our church members, and various reasons have been advanced for the deadness manifested, while various remedies have been suggested.

Now, at last we see surely that there is at least one powerful cause which it would be to the Church's interest to inquire into. It has for several years back become apparent that the ministers are taking control where laymen are expected to manage, and the shameful boycotting of laymen in presbyteries and the General Assembly has raised very bitter feeling among many of our churches. For a layman to raise his voice against the plans of a certain ministerial clique is considered rank treason, and it is a common thing for a certain church official to take up half an evening by interrupting lay speakers. I have at various times agitated on this subject—more limitation of the ministerial power—and some time back vigorously protested against the innovation of presbyterial visitation.

Now the results I predicted are beginning to make their appearance. Mr. Wilson's case is an example of officious interference and head-office prejudice. The beneficial effects of visitation promised by the promoters have instead "raised a whirlwind of discord." General regret is felt that our Church should be thus held up to the world as a field of jealousies and petty feeling, that ill becomes a Christian community. Whilst freethinkers and infidels are ridiculing the existence of a "Creator," is it, sir, seemly that His worship should be thus affected by His people? How can we expect the unbelieving to be reconciled to the truths of Holy Writ when contentions and strifes are so painfully manifest in our midst?

The proposal of Dr. Geikie was rightly rejected by a large majority. The idea of the highest Presbyterian Court being held with closed doors, like some police court, was an insult to reason. Possibly those who are proceeding against Mr. Wilson have been touched with remorse, and felt a disinclination for a public exposé.

As a member and office-bearer, I wish now most emphatically to protest against the unjust and unwarranted desire of our ministers to take the temporal management of the Church into their own hands. The fact that the congregations—the laymen—are the Church, is in this "free" country overlooked; and the ministers, instead of attending more to their Sunday preparations, and the care of their flocks, worry each other and everybody else by wrangling over business which they are not suited for by education or practice.

Praying for your kindness in inserting this appeal and protest, I am, &c.,

WM. M'CREADIE.

THE UNION BANK OF AUSTRALIA, Limited.

The half yearly general MEETING of this Bank was held on MONDAY, 28th January, at the Head Offices, 1, Bank-buildings, Lothbury; Major Frederick Fanning in the chair.

Mr. William R. Mewburn, the manager, read the notice convening the meeting, and the following report and accounts were presented:—"The directors have to submit to the shareholders the annexed balance-sheet of the bank to the 31st of August last, duly audited, which exhibits a net amount of profits—inclusive of the balance brought forward from the previous half-year—of £112,004 1s 11d, admitting of a dividend at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum—equal to £1 10s per share—which will absorb £90,000, and leave the sum of £22,004 1s 11d. to be carried forward. The directors have, as usual, carefully reviewed the business of the bank, and in making provision for all doubtful dependencies they have had in view the severe drought that has again visited large districts of Australia, which, although now broken up, must have caused very serious losses to pastoral and agricultural interests. Since the last meeting of shareholders, a branch of the bank has been opened at Greta in New South Wales. The divided warrants will be transmitted by post on the 30th instant, and the dividend will be payable in the colonies on such date as the general manager may fix after receipt of telegraphic advice.

"W. O. GILCHRIST, JOHN S. HILL, CHARLES PARBURY, H. P. STURGIS } Directors.
W. R. MEWBURN, Manager.
R. BUCKLER, Accountant.
"London, January 15, 1889.

"We certify that the various securities held in London have been produced to us, and that we have examined the balance books of the several branches in the colonies for the six months ending August 31, 1888, and the books and accounts of the London office for the same period, and, having compared the combined results with the above balance-sheet, have found the same correct.

"FREDK. WHINNEY } Auditors."
"ALBERT DEACON

The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said the record of the operations of the bank during the past six months had not been eventful, and, beyond the statement made in the report, there was nothing of abnormal interest to say. There was only one point in the balance-sheet to which he need invite their attention, and it was this: If they glanced at the aggregate of the sums entered under the head of "money at call and short notice in London," and under the head of "bills receivable, loans, and other securities at London office," as compared with the sum of the amounts entered under those heads six months previously, they would perceive that funds had been transferred from London, where they were comparatively unproductive, to the colonies to the extent of considerably over a million; while at the same time if they regarded the amount now entered under the heads of "bills discounted, bills receivable, and other securities at the branches," as contrasted with the sums entered under that head in the last balance-sheet, it would be clear to them that their advances in the colonies had expanded to the extent of over 1½ million; but it should be noted that the larger part of that expansion in their advance business did not take place till too late in the half-year to admit of the profits thence derivable appreciably affecting the accounts then submitted. There was no mystery in the figures; to men of business they conveyed their own meaning; but, speaking broadly, he thought he might say, with little fear of contradiction, that the bank's business had been not only well maintained, but had been progressive, and this notwithstanding some adverse influences, notably, the ever-increasing competition with which they had to contend; the somewhat critical state of things in the colonies, induced by inflated speculation in mines and lands, the latter especially in Victoria, and the drought. The operations carried on in the colonies by the important finance companies now doing business there, largely of a banking character and, the overflow thither of the surplus funds of insurance and other companies, which were previously held in this country, had from time to time increased the amount of immediately available capital eagerly seeking investment so considerably as to lessen the profit-earning power of the commodity in which they dealt. As to the undue speculation to which he had alluded, that had rendered necessary, on the part of the general manager, great caution, and that caution had been most effectively exercised. With reference to the drought, it was not too much to say that that calamity had devastated for many months past a great part of the field over which their operations extended, and though they had reason to believe that rain had fallen, a telegram from the general manager, which had only come under his notice that day, clearly showed that while the drought had broken, it had only partially done so, and that a great part of Queensland and New South Wales were still much in want of rain. He dwelt upon these adverse influences with some emphasis in anticipation of a possible expression of disappointment on the part of some gentlemen on the other side of the table that the directors, instead of carrying forward to the credit of profit and loss a larger amount than was thus dealt with six months ago, had not proposed a somewhat larger dividend. But the effects of these adverse circumstances had by no means yet been fully felt. They would probably be experienced to a much larger extent during the current than they had been during the past half-year; and, with a view of meeting such contingencies—contingencies which at the present moment only assumed a shadowy form, which not be grasped—the directors were anxious to remain as strong in reserves as possible. Since the last half-yearly meeting the directors had had the pleasure of welcoming the return of Mr. Mewburn, after nearly a year's absence, during which he had visited all the important branches of the bank, both in Australia and in New Zealand. He had come back with a stock of information locally gathered, and a large amount of experience which could not fail to be of great use to the bank and to himself in the discharge of the onerous duties of his important office. He thought he would fail in his duty if he did not mention the excellent services rendered by Mr. Carbury during Mr. Mewburn's absence. To these gentlemen, to the other superior officers, and to the junior members of the London staff, acknowledgments are due for the good services rendered. Mr. Finlayson, the general manager, and Mr. Palmer, the chief officer for New Zealand, have, in the opinion of the directors, very specially merited the cordial thanks of the proprietors, and the general staff serving under those gentlemen are also fully entitled to a warm expression of commendation.

Lord Hillingdon seconded the adoption of the report, which was carried.

A dividend of 30s. per share was declared payable on the 31st instant.

On the motion of Mr. W. A. Guesdon, seconded by the Rev. James F. Poulter, a vote of thanks was given to the chairman and directors for their efficient conduct of the bank's business, and the proceedings then terminated.

Papers were last night laid upon the table of the Legislative Assembly relating to the verdict of murder returned against Mr. Thos. Walker, M.L.A., by a coroner's jury at Toronto. Mr. Walker says that the death of the man was due to an accident, and the verdict was a disgrace to the jury.

The course of politics has placed the Legislative Council in a rather anomalous position as respects the reply to the Vice-regal Address. In that serene Chamber the reply is generally a pure matter of form, and it is difficult to get up an interesting debate. The procedure hardly ever overruns the limits of one evening, and the Council is generally ready on the following day to take its reply to Government House. In the performance of this punctilio, therefore, it takes the lead of the other House, which generally likes to indulge in a discussion on the state of affairs, even when there is no amendment. On the present occasion, however, there was an amendment in each House, and though the Assembly is larger than it has ever been before, it managed to get through a most important debate in two nights, and the result was the resignation of the Government and the formation of a new one. When the Council met on Thursday afternoon, the new Cabinet was officially announced, and Mr. Barton, the Attorney-General, withdrew all his notices. When it was proposed that the House should adjourn for a time to await the arrival of a Supply Bill, Mr. Cox demurred to any such waste of time, as there was business on the paper in a half-finished state, and he proposed to go on with the order of the day, which was duly called on; but the resumption of the debate was checked by a motion that the order of the day be discharged from the paper, and according to the President's ruling that stopped all debate on the general question. The House divided, and by two to one discharged the order, so that the whole discussion falls to the ground. There will, therefore, be no reply to the Governor's Speech, because the incoming Administration will not reply to a speech which is not their own, and there will be no second speech to reply to. In appearance, of course, this is discourteous, and it is the first time such a thing has happened. But where no offence was meant of course none will be taken. Replying to the Address has become a matter of form, and there is no particular advantage connected with it, and it has even been proposed in England to dispense with it. It gives a convenient opportunity for a resolution of no confidence, but such a resolution could just as easily be made a substantive one. In many respects this would be a more straightforward and sensible method, and if anyone will take the trouble to read Sir Henry Parkes's addendum to the Address in Reply he will see how awkwardly it works in with the rest of the composition. All that can be said in its favour is that it was a quick and convenient way of doing what was wanted.

Of course the new members of the Legislative Council voted for discharging the order of the day. They followed the lead of their own party, and were not likely to blow upon their own appointments. But apart from them there was a sufficient number of old members glad to shelve the question to show that no remonstrance is likely to come from the Council. Of course the question could be reintroduced as a substantive motion, but as the Ministry that did the wrong pays the penalty it seems a work of supererogation to slay the slain. There will, therefore, be no further protest than such as is contained in the speeches of those members who have already supported the amendment.

In the course of his speech in the Legislative Assembly, Sir HENRY PARKES is reported to have said that he did not see how any incoming Ministry could avoid making another batch of appointments to neutralise those that had been improperly made. This is one of those hasty utterances that will be modified, we should imagine, by the responsibilities of office. There is no necessity, at any rate at present, for further increasing the size of the Legislative Council, which is now more than sufficiently large for its purpose. It is conceivable of course that the necessity for party nominations might arise. If it should become necessary to increase the revenue and the Assembly decides to do it by direct taxation, and if the Council should show itself obstinately determined not to tax property, then the need for further party nominations might become a question. But that state of things has not arisen yet, and we must not assume that there will be no good sense amongst the nominees. The new men are all sound protectionists, although the late Government professes to be in a state of simple-minded ignorance on that subject, but even they might hesitate before refusing to provide the necessary revenue in the way the Assembly had approved. It is to be hoped, therefore, that Sir HENRY PARKES will not be so hasty in action in this matter as he has been in language.

It might cool his ardour a little to be reminded that it was his last batch of appointments that gave the only colour of excuse to the action of the Dibbs Ministry. He put in twelve new men in the middle of a session, which is contrary to custom, though not to the Constitution. He gave what would have been a fair reason, if it had been a true one, for this — that all the new appointments were necessary to give the House a working strength; but he did bring the numbers up to 69, and Mr. BARTON contends that they only increased that maximum by one. Doubtful precedents are generally bettered by people who want an excuse, and who fasten on the form of the precedent without its reason; and the recent experience is a warning to all statesmen how they tamper with the Legislative Council, unless, indeed, they desire by so tampering to destroy the popularity and utility of nomineeism, and to facilitate the substitution of an elective Chamber.

It is sometimes said that figures may be made to prove anything. The late TREASURER evidently believed that they might be made to prove what he wished to show, that his predecessor in office had by a system of extravagance secretly piled up the public debt of the colony; and forthwith he set out on a voyage of discovery, with the results of which the country is already familiar. Now it will be generally acknowledged that up to this point no discredit attaches to Mr. GARVAN for his assiduity. It is of the essence of party government for one side to watch the other; and it is to the advantage of the country that this should be done. Nor can any objection be taken to the thoroughness of the search which would appear to have covered every document on which hands could be laid. No incoming official ever searched with more ardour to discover the insufficiencies of the retiring occupant, than did Mr. GARVAN to expose the imperfections of the preceding Colonial Treasurer. But his award must be subject to the more sober judgment of people who know how to discount this kind of new-born zeal, and who can properly decide as between the outgoing and the incoming man. Indeed, Mr. GARVAN appears to have had some inkling of the suspicions that would attach to his discoveries. Hence his request to disinterested bank managers and public accountants to revise them. But he could not be restrained by their advice. Messrs. ADAMS and GIBBES would not sign the certificates of his deficit account, and told him it included moneys which had not been expended. Messrs. STARKEY and TAYLOR informed him that it was unusual to charge accrued interest on the public debt on any such account. With such warnings from his advisers, it might surely have been expected that Mr. GARVAN would have hesitated before declaring to the House on Tuesday night, without explanation, that his astounding discoveries had their endorsement. He knew well that that was not the fact, and yet he stated that the deficit had been increased to more than £4,000,000. How damaging this statement is to the credit of the country may be judged from the cablegram which informs us that Sir SAUL SAMUEL had thought it necessary to write to the English press to explain that the amount was the result of accumulations. Without the knowledge of the facts disclosed the other night the position of the Agent-General must have been a most difficult one. He felt it necessary to say something to allay the uneasiness among the creditors of the colony which the announcement of this alleged startling increase of the deficit had caused; and doubtless it will be found that he said about the best thing that could be said. After past and present experience of members of the late Government, Sir SAUL SAMUEL will not be sorry to hear of their retirement.

The broad statements of the discovery by Mr. GARVAN show that to the original deficit of £2,676,979, announced as existing when Mr. BURNS took office in the beginning of 1887, are now to be added £689,864, accrued interest on the public debt; £88,000, the amount of rabbit subsidy; and £165,000, the amount of the refund to the squatters in connection with the over-payment of rents. These figures together would bring up the total to £3,619,843. Then the obligations of the year 1888 in respect of supplementary appropriations, are estimated at £444,901, and thus the total deficit of £4,064,744 is arrived at. But it is admitted that on these additional appropriations the officers of the Treasury acknowledge a saving of £321,000, leaving only £124,000 to be added to £3,619,843. In this way Mr. GARVAN reduces his deficit to £3,744,000. After this explanation we confess to some sense of relief from the doubts, not to say the belief created by Mr. GARVAN'S preliminary statement. All that is really fresh and important is the alleged discovery of £124,000. In October last we knew all about the views of Mr. GARVAN in reference to the rabbit payments and the refund to the squatters, and they may be dismissed without comment, except that it may be said that the full amount of the rabbit subsidy is not a liability but an asset, if the Act be administered as it was intended, as it provided that the assessments must be made to recoup any sum that may be paid from the Consolidated Revenue Fund. As to the £689,864, the amount of the accrued interest, we have already shown how utterly unfair it is to suddenly change the system of keeping the accounts. Whatever may be said against it, it has been the custom for many years to charge the interest accrued at 31st December every year against the following year's income, both before there was a deficit and since. As a matter of accounts it has been so treated. And if it be said that the interest ought really to be charged against the year in which it accrues, it ought also to be conceded that the payments due for one year should be credited to that year. Yet as a matter of fact payments are made in January in respect of services for the previous year. If there is half-a-year's interest passed over, there is a set-off in payments due to the State. If one entry appeared in the general statement of the Consolidated Revenue account, the other ought also to appear. As to the sum of £124,000 added by Mr. GARVAN to the deficit in respect of supplementary appropriations not admitted to be saved, there will probably be some difference of opinion, and since the large amounts of alleged deficiency have been explained so satisfactorily, we may await with some degree of composure the light which the incoming party will throw on the question.

But since Mr. GARVAN was so ready to expose all the deficiency, if not something more, he might surely have had the candour to deduct from his estimate the amount standing at the credit of the Consolidated Revenue Fund at the end of 1888. In October Mr. BURNS estimated the amount at £329,965. Although as a matter of convenience the deficiency debt had been kept separate, the balances of the deficiency debt account and the ordinary account have to be read together to arrive at the true measure of the deficiency at the end of 1888. Making, then, the deduction of £329,965 from £3,744,000, the full amount of Mr. GARVAN'S estimate, less the savings, the deficiency could only have been £3,414,035. And if from this we take the amount of the accrued interest improperly added, we get £2,724,071 as the total deficiency, with a possible reduction of £253,000 in respect of the rabbit subsidy and refund to squatters, which the incoming TREASURER may or may not be disposed to regard as properly included in the amount.

This is a great come-down from the disgracefully magnified figures which have gone forth to all the world to the discredit of the colony. We have already admitted that party zeal has its advantages in exposing the peccadilloes of public men. But it should be under the exercise of fairness and discretion. The honour of our politicians should not be attacked unfairly, and the credit of the colony should have a place for consideration, even with party feeling at red heat. This episode in the financial history of New South Wales should stand as a warning to its public men.

Another of the old colonial veterans, who did good work in his sphere and in his generation has passed away. The Rev. W. B. BOYCE, well known, not only in the Wesleyan Church but in all the Churches, died yesterday. He was one of the laborious and indefatigable pioneers who seem capable of constant work and incapable of fatigue. In his early days he showed that combination of a love for study and a love for active work which marked him throughout life, and he was picked upon at the early age of twenty-five as a suitable man to send out to South Africa to reduce the Kaffir language into grammatical form, and make it easy for other missionaries to learn it. He did not disappoint the expectations of those who selected him, and his Kaffir grammar has been the basis on which all subsequent works of the same kind have been built. But he was not a mere pedant, to whom scholastic studies were sufficient. He was a laborious missionary and minister. His experience in South Africa gave him a great interest in colonial life and in colonisation generally, and he often used to contrast the difficulties and privations that he had seen settlers undergo in Africa with the comparatively easy time that the modern immigrant to Australia enjoyed; and he would even go so far as to say that he thought the art of colonisation was being lost, as we were now-a-days expecting results to be achieved too easily and too quickly. On his return to England from his African work, he was only allowed a short spell in the mother country when he was again selected for important work—namely, the superintendence of all the Wesleyan missions in this part of the world. While he was here the Wesleyan Church ceased its dependence on the central organisation in the mother country, and established machinery for its own self-government, and Mr. BOYCE had so commended himself to his brethren, that he was chosen first superintendent. While he was so engaged, our new political Constitution came into operation, and Mr. STUART ALEXANDER DONALDSON, wishing to imitate the inclusion of bishops in the House of Lords, offered seats in the Legislative Council to the head of each of the four recognised Churches. Mr. BOYCE, in common with the two Bishops and the Moderator, declined the honour, although he was anything but a non-political man. In fact, he took the warmest interest in political movements, discussing the Parliamentary business with his friends with great enthusiasm, and reading the morning newspaper up to the day of his death. In the earlier days of his ministerial work in the colony he was not only an enormous reader, but an indefatigable worker. It was not an uncommon thing for him to lecture six times in the week, and preach three times on the Sunday, and he has been frequently known to walk from Sydney to Parramatta to his work. He was one of the proofs that to a man of robust constitution and temperate and regular habits work is not killing. For the last few years of his life he lived mainly in his library, always reading, and finding it a relief to preach till within a fortnight of his death. His two favourite studies were theology and history, and the two books, the writing of which beguiled the leisure of his later years, dealt with those subjects. He read most of the recent literature on both, and in history especially he was almost a walking encyclopædia. Few men could have been better fitted for the work to which he was called in life, for while in labours more abundant, he always kept his mind fresh by contact with what the best modern men were saying in respect to the subjects he most delighted in. In more than one respect he was a typical man, and one of those who illustrate in the highest degree the aptitude of the English race for the work of colonisation.

KATE DE LAWARIE, who had pleaded guilty to eight charges of abandoning infants, was sentenced yesterday at the Metropolitan Quarter Sessions to five years' penal servitude. The sentence is severe, but anything less would have been inadequate. A case of more abominable heartlessness has seldom been heard of. It appears that the number of charges might have been considerably enlarged. The infants whom this unwomanly offender first took into her charge and then abandoned to their fate for the sake of the small profit made out of each transaction, varied in age from six to twenty-one months. The woman attempted to defend herself against the charge of reckless cruelty thrown upon her by the evidence by saying that after depositing the infants in the places where she exposed them, she watched in the neighbourhood to see them rescued; but there was no evidence to support this statement. The mind is shocked by the proof that these proceedings were carried on systematically as a matter of business. We have heard of chevaliers d'industrie, of men who live by their wits, of others who prey upon society, but here we have a trade in human life. How long this business has been carried on, and whether there are many others who follow it, we do not know; but it is well, now that so striking a case has been brought within the grasp of justice, that it has been treated in such a way as to offer a warning to all concerned. The District Court JUDGE expressed his regret that he had not also before him the parents of these children. It is much to be desired that their precise relations to the woman who committed this crime should be clearly ascertained. How many of them really believed that the infants they were parting from would receive proper care? How many were utterly indifferent to the fate of their children, and were satisfied when they had got them off their hands? There is really little difference between the woman who abandons an infant, and the woman who has entrusted her with that infant neither knowing nor caring whether it will be abandoned or not. The difference, such as it is, is against the mother, and such mothers may be considered as the primary offenders, because their anxiety to relieve themselves of their children is the foundation of the trade.

THE Legislative Council held a special sitting yesterday, at which that Chamber dealt expeditiously with the Temporary Supply Bill. The House was then adjourned until 4 o'clock on Wednesday, April 3.

THE attendance of both members and the public in the Legislative Assembly yesterday when the proceedings commenced was considerably less than has been the case recently. The first business was the announcement by Mr. Speaker that his warrant for the appointment of the Committee of Elections and Qualifications would take effect, there having been no objection taken to the gentlemen he had named. Mr. Ryrie and Mr. Lee, two of those named, came forward, and were sworn in as members of the committee. On the motion of Mr. Dibbs, the four petitions against the return of the members for Argyle, the Hastings and Manning, the Richmond, and South Sydney, were referred to the committee. Mr. Dibbs laid a number of documents on the table, including papers relative to a certain charge against Mr. Thomas Walker, M.L.A., and several municipal by-laws. On the motion of Mr. Chanter permission was given to the clerk to return to the Mining Department the original documents in the Mountain Maid case. Mr. Alfred Allen, who does not often address the House, then rose with good cause to make a complaint. He said hon. members at his end of the chamber could not hear what was said at the other end; the question was put, and hon. members did not know what they had been voting for. Mr. Speaker said Mr. Allen had the remedy in his own hands by objection to the question being put when he had not heard it. The objection taken by Mr. Allen had a salutary effect, for the remaining matters dealt with were announced by the members in charge of them in a distinct and audible voice. All the Government business on the paper was withdrawn by Mr. Dibbs.

THE announcement made by Mr. Speaker in the Legislative Assembly yesterday, that the Legislative Council had returned the Temporary Supply Bill without amendment, was received with cheers, and a semi-audible remark was made by some hon. member that the Council had disposed of the bill in fewer minutes than the Assembly had taken hours. Mr. M'Rae made a personal explanation, denying certain charges against him made by Mr. M'Millan a few nights ago. Mr. Slattery also made a personal explanation in regard to the appointment of Mr. Middleton as Police Magistrate at Burrowa. The appointment was only a temporary one to save expense, and was never intended to be permanent. The charge that he had appointed Mr. Middleton in order to get rid of him as a political opponent was entirely without foundation, as Mr. Middleton was actually one of his supporters. Mr. Farnell put a question to the Colonial Secretary as to whether a Mr. Solomon had been appointed paymaster in the Brigade Office. Mr. Dibbs said the hon. member had no right to ask a question of a retiring Government, and declined to answer. The House then adjourned until 7 o'clock, in order that the Supply Bill might be presented to the Governor for his assent.

WHEN the Legislative Assembly reassembled yesterday evening after dinner, it was evident that a change had come o'er the spirit of the dream. for hon. members had changed places. Mr. Burdekin, Mr. Roberts, Mr. Burns, Mr. Garrard, and Mr. Abigail were on the front Treasury benches, while Mr. Dibbs, Mr. Fletcher, Mr. Lyne, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Toohey, and Mr. O'Sullivan were in their old places on the Opposition seats. Mr. Speaker announced that his Excellency the Governor had assented to the Temporary Supply Bill. Mr. Burdekin informed the House that the new Ministry had that evening been sworn in, and he moved that their seats be declared vacant, which was done. Mr. Speaker nominated Mr. F. J. Smith and Mr. J. R. Street to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications, in the room of Messrs. Carruthers and S. Smith, whose seats had just been declared vacant. He reminded the House that unless objection was taken to the nominations within the three next sitting days, the appointment would take effect.

MR. BURDEKIN, as the mouthpiece of the new Government, moved that the House do now adjourn until 4 o'clock on Wednesday April 3. Mr. Copeland took the opportunity to draw attention to the peculiar position occupied by the Speaker, whose seat had been challenged, and would be the subject of investigation by the Committee of Elections and Qualifications. Mr. Speaker said he had no difficulty in the matter. Whichever way the committee might decide, until they decided otherwise he was the member for the Hastings and Manning, and he could hold the position of Speaker. The Committee of Elections and Qualifications was only nominated by him, but was actually appointed by the House by their silence in not objecting to the nominations. He pointed out that four of the gentlemen he had named for the committee had voted against him as Speaker. Mr. Farnell called attention to the appointment of Mr. Solomon as paymaster. Mr. Crick challenged the position of the Speaker, and urged hon. members to read carefully the papers in the case of Mr. Thomas Walker. Mr. Garvan referred to the position of the Speaker, rather questioning whether he should act in that position under the circumstances. Mr. Burns, on the other hand, contended that Mr. Speaker was justified in acting as he did. Mr. Hassall and Mr. Gormly strongly urged that the House should meet on Tuesday, April 2, instead of Wednesday, April 3, especially as there were two important motions on the paper for Tuesday. After some discussion, Mr. Burdekin agreed to the alteration, and at 27 minutes to 9 o'clock the House adjourned accordingly.

A SPECIAL meeting of the Executive Council was held yesterday evening, at which the members of the new Ministry were sworn in. The following arrangements have been made for the Ministerial re-elections. The writs are all dated March 9, and the nominations all take place on Monday, March 18. The pollings are fixed as follows:—St. Leonards, at St. Leonards, March 20; East Sydney, at Hyde Park, March 20; East Maitland, at East Maitland, March 20; The Glebe, at the Glebe, March 20; Patrick's Plains, at Singleton, March 22; West Sydney, at the Town Hall enclosure, March 20; Canterbury, at Ashfield, March 20; East Macquarie, at Kelso, March 22. All the writs are made returnable on March 23 with the exception of those for Patrick's Plains and East Macquarie, which are returnable on March 28.

A MEETING of the Executive Council was held yesterday, under the presidency of his Excellency the Governor, for the purpose of clearing up outstanding matters before the retiring Government left their offices. One or two appointments were confirmed and some routine business in connection with the departments was despatched.

MR. E. W. O'SULLIVAN, member for Queanbeyan, has given notice of a resolution in the Legislative Assembly of some importance to the grazing interest. After declaring that it is the duty of the Government to take steps to lessen the effects of droughts, the resolution proposes, as a means to this end, that a light railway should be constructed from Werris Creek to Dubbo, thence to Forbes, and on to Narandera; and branch lines should be constructed from the Southern railway to Tumberumba, and from Yass to Queanbeyan. The object of the line is to afford a cheap and speedy means for the removal of stock from the arid districts to the mountain runs, and to connect the Southern with the Western and Northern railway lines.

AMONG the resolutions tabled in the Legislative Assembly is one by Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan, making it unlawful to collect school fees after the 30th of June next, and in favour of establishing a system of national scholarships by which the children may win their way from the primary to the higher schools and the University.

MR. DICKENS has given notice of his intention to move in the Legislative Assembly,—1. That in the opinion of this House, the pastoral lessees in the Western division should be encouraged to prospect for artesian water. 2. That in the event of such lessees being successful in procuring a fair and reasonable supply of water, and thereby increasing the carrying capacity and enhancing the value of Crown lands, such lessees should receive certain concessions, either by a reservation of a reasonable area surrounding such well on the resumed areas, or by a reduction of rent, or by an increased length of tenure. 3. That the foregoing resolutions be communicated by address to his Excellency the Governor.

MR. HURLEY gave notice in the Legislative Assembly yesterday that he would move on April 2, "That no payments be made to the chairman or members of the Casual Labour Board for services rendered on claims pending unless first submitted to this House for approval or otherwise."

OUR correspondent in his English Gossip, commenting upon Mr. Stanhope's prognostications of war, says he seems to have put special colouring into his speech for the sake of waking up the House of Commons into a right frame of mind to pass the forthcoming military and naval estimates. Quotations are made from the article in the Fortnightly Review on "The Bismarck Dynasty" and the French Exhibition, the death of Pelligrini, the caricaturist, and the publication of the last voyage of Lady Brassey, and other matters are also alluded to.

A WIRE from the Richmond River, received yesterday, relative to the steamer Coraki, is of a more hopeful character as respects that vessel's position. It appears from it that the anchors which were laid out for the purpose of working the steamer off the shoal are acting satisfactorily. Yesterday she had moved in the direction of deep water about half her own length, and the belief is expressed that she will be floated off without damage.

THE San Francisco mail boat Alameda's passage from Auckland to Sydney completed yesterday morning is worth noticing. The vessel is reported to have left Auckland at 10 minutes to 1 p.m. on Monday last and to have arrived at the Heads at 10 minutes to 4 a.m. yesterday. The performance is equivalent to a speed of 14.7 for the run across, a speed of which any steamer trading to this port might well be proud. The arrivals by the Alameda include one or two old colonists, who have a good word to say for the Oceanic Company, and were in raptures of the trip across the great continent and over the Rocky Mountains. From the tempestuous Atlantic to the Pacific Slope, and the vast but tranquil ocean which stretches from Australia to the shores of the Golden State, there is more than an abundance of variety of scenery and climate, and the passengers appear to have thoroughly appreciated it. The break at Honolulu was evidently most enjoyably spent. The capital of the Sandwich group for tropical scenery is not surpassed in any part of the globe. At Tutuila, the only other stopping-place between San Francisco and Auckland, a German gunboat with an order from the English and American consuls, was handed the mails for Samoa. The run across to Auckland from the Golden Gate was done in a little over 19 days' steaming time, and to Sydney in 28¼ days.

THE Britannia, of the P. and O. line, is due here to-morrow morning. Her sailing date from London was January 25, and she brought to Adelaide the London mails to the 1st ultimo. She has on board 147 passengers booked for this port.

IF the list of passengers to leave to-day by the Orient line steamer Austral means anything at all a glance at the names included therein is sufficient to justify the opinion that well-to-do Australians have a penchant for spending a summer in the old country. It is also pretty clear that the owners of this powerful ship have so fully met the requirements of all classes of passengers as to make the line extremely popular. The opposition line steamer Arcadia was the bearer homeward of a large number of well-known colonists last week, and the Austral with a scarcely less proportion of passengers will follow to-day. The Iberia, a fortnight hence, has a fair proportion of her cabin space already reserved, and the Ormuz will be a full ship. To-day's steamer takes away the service-expired crew of the gunboat Paluma. Captain Richards, R.N., and the officers, are also passengers from here. The Austral has taken in shipments of wool, tin, copper, and other products of the colony, amounting altogether to some 2000 tons of space, and of specie she has a shipment of £50,000 in gold from the Union Bank of Australia.

THE French mail steamer Yarra, of the Messageries Maritimes line is due in Sydney to-day, from Marseilles. Her passage will thus have occupied only 37 days, and this also includes all stoppages at the ports en route. A day or two over five weeks from the southern seaport of France cannot be called slow travelling. The Yarra brings the usual assortment of continental merchandise, and a fair sprinkling of passengers. Among the latter leaving Europe was Archbishop Redwood, of Wellington, New Zealand, who returns after a visit to his Holiness the Pope. The Yarra brings news of the progress of the work of construction at the building of the new vessels for the Australian trade. Captain Didier, of the Oceanien, is to have command of the first one, to be launched on the 15th of this month. Her accommodation for passengers is equal to 400 adults, and of cargo the new boat is designed for carrying 4000 tons, besides 2000 tons of bunker coal.

SALVAGE operations at the wreck of the ship Sir Walter Raleigh, stranded in the English Channel, have ceased. Particulars are not to hand as to the total quantities of wool and tallow and other cargo recovered, but the bulk of the whole cargo it will be remembered, was wool, and nearly all of it was got out within a few days after the ship went ashore. It appears that whatever is remaining in the holds of the vessel is not of sufficient value to justify the expense which would be involved in the work of discharging it. No mention is made of a proposal to get the ship off, so that it may be taken for granted that, like the cargo that is in her, she does not present a sufficient inducement for the inevitable outlay. Poor headway, it seems, is being made with the salvaging of the Hamburgh cargo of the stranded barque Ben Avon, which was bound to Sydney.

THE inquiry into the petitions for and against the incorporation of the district of Dundas was brought to a conclusion yesterday, Mr. George Lewis, district Government officer, presiding. A large number of witnesses were examined on both sides, every facility being afforded them to give clear and concise evidence, of which a great deal was taken, the inquiry closing late in the afternoon. Mr. Bowden appeared on behalf of the petitioners for, and Mr. F. C. Cox conducted the case of the counter petitioners.

THE Railway Commissioners informed a deputation from the citizens of Newcastle yesterday that as the result of the changes which they were about to effect at Newcastle a saving of £5500 per annum would be effected. Of that sum they intended to expend about £4000 a year in reducing the fares, say between Gosford and Newcastle and Newcastle and Maitland, and in other ways meeting local requirements. The audit offices there was to be abolished, there were to be important changes in the arrangements with regard to the workshops, and the position of traffic manager was to be altered. All the changes were being made with a view to increased efficiency and greater economy in the service.

YESTERDAY the sittings of the General Assembly in connection with the Presbyterian Church of New South Wales took place in St. Stephen's Presbyterian Church. The whole of the session was devoted to the consideration of differences which had arisen within a strictly denominational sphere, and which therefore were of little interest to the general public.

MESSRS. SEARL AND SONS, nurserymen of King-street, are now showing a magnificent display of caladiums, the exhibit consisting of 25 of the very best and latest varieties, which were obtained from England at considerable cost. Some of the plants are strikingly beautiful, the leaves varying from the palest colours to the richest blood red and the darker hues. It may be of interest to note the caladiums were originally introduced into England from Africa, the home of much that is beautiful in the realm of plants and flowers. Their variety is almost endless, and, as is well known, they are very effective when used for decorative purposes. The present exhibit is well worthy of the attention of all who take an interest in horticultural pursuits. A fitting accompaniment to such an admirable display of rich colour and foliage may be seen in the specimens of Adiantum farleyense, the grandest of all the fern tribe, which are also on view at this establishment. A fine spike of one of the orchids, Vanda, which is most peculiarly marked, is also shown by Messrs. Searl and Sons.

THE Horticultural Society's autumn exhibition of fruit, flowers, and plants, was closed last night. The vestibule of the Town Hall, in which the show was held, was well filled during the afternoon and evening, and there were many who gazed with admiration upon the splendid collections of horticultural products arranged upon the several stands. Some of the exhibits of fruit—notably the magnificent grapes grown by Mr. F. E. Barker, of Verona Vineyard, Moorebank, near Liverpool—were of an excellent description. In the section devoted to flowers, the cactus dahlias exhibited by Mr. C. B. Pitt, of North Shore, were worthy of special mention. These blooms, although not entered for competition, were so highly esteemed by the judges, that they unanimously agreed in recommending that a special prize should be awarded to the grower. The various foliage plants, and the roses and dahlias on view proved specially attractive to the general public as well as to the professional and amateur producers. The committee of the Horticultural Society of New South Wales are to be congratulated upon the general excellence of their autumnal show, and also upon the success that has attended their efforts. The society intends to hold a chrysanthemum show on the 25th and 26th April next, and judging by the great success of the last effort of this kind held under its auspices, the forthcoming exhibition of these beautiful flowers should prove very interesting and attractive.

DURING the brief period allowed for Chamber business yesterday, his Honor Mr. Justice Foster disposed of the majority of the cases on the list. In the Federal Bank of Australia v. Bate and Muston, the defendant Bate applied that judgment in two actions—one against him, and another against him and Muston—which had been signed in default of appearance, should be set aside. The application was granted, on terms. In re J. W. Stephenson, ex parte L. T. Lloyd, official assignee, the applicant John Hunter moved for leave to appeal to the Privy Council against the judgment of the Full Court on the 20th February last, confirming the order of the Judge in Bankruptcy, who had directed Hunter to pay to the official assignee of Stephenson's estate the sum of £750 16s. 3d., which was held to have been wrongfully paid to him as one of Stephenson's creditors. The application was granted on the usual terms as to security.

THE action Young and another v. the United Insurance Company, which commenced on Wednesday last, was concluded in the Banco Court yesterday, as far as the evidence and the addresses of counsel were concerned. His Honor the Chief Justice postponed his summing up until Monday, as the matter being of considerable importance to the outside public as well as the litigants, he could not adequately deal with the questions involved that afternoon. In the Divorce Court, before Mr. Justice Windeyer, several formal motions were disposed of, and in Cross v. Cross the decree nisi for dissolution of marriage was granted.

THE action Brown v. Bank of New South Wales, the hearing of which has occupied the attention of Mr. Justice Foster for several days, was concluded in the No. 1 Jury Court yesterday afternoon. The plaintiff, a sugar farmer on the Clarence River, sued the bank for £4000 damages for breach of agreement. The agreement, it was alleged, entitled plaintiff to enter into undisturbed possession of his father's estate, over which the bank held a mortgage, with the option of purchasing, but the agents of the bank in plaintiff's absence broke into the premises and committed other damages to the amount assessed in the plaint. Plaintiff also made a claim for wages due to him for work done, and to meet that claim the defendants paid into Court £53 10s. The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff with £1600 damages, exclusive of the amount paid into Court, and his Honor granted a stay of proceedings until the first day of next term.

THE most interesting case in the batch which Judge Fitzhardinge disposed of yesterday in the District Court was one instituted by the Borough of Macdonaldtown against Mr. L. T. Lloyd, the official assignee of the bankrupt estate of Michael Benedict Magill, to recover £37 6s. 9d. The claim was made in respect of the use and occupation by the defendant of a toll-bar in Erskine-street. Magill, it appeared, held a lease of the toll-bar from the Macdonaldtown Corporation, with the right to collect all tolls. After sequestrating his estate Magill continued in possession and accounted to Mr. Lloyd for the tolls collected up to September 19th. On that date, in consequence of a letter he received, Mr. Lloyd disclaimed the lease and at once gave up possession. It was submitted by the plaintiffs that there was a forfeiture of the lease at the date of sequestration, and that defendant was therefore liable for the payment of the tolls; but his Honor ruled that the lease was in existence until September 19th, and gave a verdict for the defendant.

AT the Quarter Sessions Court yesterday, the young woman Kate de Lawarie, who had previously pleaded guilty to eight separate charges of abandoning infants to the endangerment of their health and lives, was sentenced by Judge M'Farland to five years penal servitude on each charge the sentences, however, to be concurrent. His Honor addressed the prisoner at some length, commenting strongly on the shocking state of things revealed by the evidence. The parents, he said, who sold their own flesh and blood in the shameful manner described in the case were more guilty than she was, and he trusted that every possible effort would be made on the part of the Crown to bring them, or some of them, to justice. He promised the prisoner, who seemed to feel her position very keenly, that, if she conducted herself well during the first three years of her term of imprisonment, he would see what could be done by way of mitigating the sentence.

THE inquest relative to the death of a young woman named Kate Reilly, whose body was found in a yard at the rear of an unoccupied house in Macquarie-street South, on the 28th ultimo, was continued yesterday. The medical evidence showed that the deceased had been the subject of malpractices which caused her death. The police, by a number of witnesses, traced her movements close to the place where the body was found, and one witness swore that the unfortunate woman must have entered one of the houses on the eastern side of the street. The evidence was of a sensational character. Twelve witnesses have been examined, and five more will be called on Monday, the inquiry having been adjourned until that day.

THE memorial stones of the Randwick Presbyterian Church will be laid this afternoon.

THE Fish River Caves will form the subject of the lantern lecture at the School of Arts to-night. The slides are new, and have been specially taken by Mr. King, and the hall has just been completely renovated.

As will be seen by reference to our advertisement columns a meeting will be held in the Glebe Town Hall on Monday, for the purpose of forming a local branch of the Free Trade Association.

THE following is the order of musical service at St. Andrew's Cathedral on Sunday next:—Morning, 11 a.m.: Benedicite; anthem, "How beautiful upon the Mountains" (Stainer). Afternoon, 3.15 p.m.: Magnificat, Winchester in F; anthem, "Fear not, O Land" (Goss).

WE have been requested to call attention to the announcement that Rev. E. Wilson, of Ipswich, is to preach in the Congregational Church, Leichhardt, during the present month.

THE following is the report of the Benevolent Asylum for the week ended March 6, 1889:—Admitted, 7 women, 6 children; 1 births, 2 deaths; discharged, 4 women, 2 children; remaining in the house, 81 women, 146 children; total, 127. Provisions distributed:—1992 loaves bread, 1332lb. flour, 641lb. meat, 596lb. sugar, 149½lb. tea, 71½lb. sago, 248lb. rice, 5lb. arrowroot, 145lb. oatmeal. Fresh applications for relief, 18; cases reported by the inspector, 77; in 14 cases the relief was discontinued, in 2 cases the rent money was disallowed, in 3 cases it was reduced, and in 1 case the rations were reduced. Total number of cases relieved, 500.

INCREASE IN THE BRITISH NAVY.

IMPORTANT PROPOSALS BY THE ADMIRALTY.

SEVENTY WAR SHIPS TO BE BUILT.

[BY CABLE.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, MARCH 8.

In the House of Commons, last night, Lord George Hamilton, First Lord of the Admiralty, submitted a proposal to build and equip 70 war ships, having an aggregate tonnage of 318,000 tons. The cost is to be £21,500,000. The number will include eight line of battle ships of 14,000 tons each, two of 9000 tons, nine large cruisers, and 33 of a smaller type, and 18 torpedo gunboats. Thirty-two vessels will be commenced this year, and the whole are to be completed by April, 1894.

Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, explained that of the proposed expenditure £11,500,000 will include the naval votes for five years. £10,000,000 additional taxation will be required, which will be spread over a period of seven years.

The debate on the proposals was adjourned for a fortnight.

THE ABDICATION OF KING MILAN.

UNEASINESS IN AUSTRIA.

FORMATION OF A NEW SERVIAN CABINET.

[BY CABLE.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, MARCH 7.

Austria is displeased with King Milan's abdication of the throne of Servia. It is expected that the Russophile tendencies of M. Ristics will cause trouble.

[The above appeared in a portion of yesterday's issue.]

MARCH 8.

The average death-rate this year is something under 10 per cent. The increase in the number of cases is due to the provision in the new Health Act, requiring every case of typhoid, whether malignant or not, to be reported.

QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

The Government Geologist, Mr. Jack, who has lately been examining the country round Brisbane, with the view of boring for artesian water, reports that the Ipswich coal measures approach to within a short distance of Brisbane. He has reason to believe that in the open and incoherent sandstones of that formation a supply of water may be found, which, however, he does not anticipate will rise to the surface. He recommends several localities in the vicinity of the city for putting down bores, but regards boring at best as only a temporary makeshift, and a comprehensive system of gravitation supply must ultimately be adopted.

The Marine Board inquiry into the recent collision between the steamers Barcoo and Beaver commenced to-day, and was adjourned until Monday after some evidence had been taken.

The experiments were regarded as a great success.

The weather appears to be getting more settled. No great quantity of rain has fallen, and it has not reached far inland. The water in the reservoirs, from which the city supply is drawn, is getting very low.

THE WRECK OF THE SOUTHERN CROSS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

HOBART, FRIDAY.

The inquiry into the wreck of the Southern Cross was concluded to-day at Launceston. The only other witness examined was Alfred Lonaghan, who deposed that he was on deck when the steamer struck. He saw no confusion, and the discipline on board was excellent. He saw no one drunk. The captain was on the bridge at the time. He had no complaint to make against the captain or the officers. The Collector of Customs said that after this he would not call any more witnesses. The decision was given to the following effect:—The Southern Cross appears to have left Emu Bay at 7.40 on the evening of February 22 for Circular Head, en route for Melbourne, more deeply laden than usual, drawing 10ft. 6in. forward and 14ft. aft. She was fully equipped and well found in every particular. The light at Table Cape was seen indistinctly when abreast, and was observed 10 minutes after when passing through smoke. The land was enveloped in a light haze, but the outline was visible. The usual course was steered from Table Cape to Rocky Cape, where the engines were slow to half speed, the rate being 6½ knots. The haze prevented the master from picking up the headland named the Sisters, close to Rocky Cape, and he hauled further off the shore half a point. The rock was struck about 9.45, the vessel going at half-speed. Without undue delay or confusion the boats were lowered, and the passengers were transferred to the steamer Herbert. The master, used all reasonable efforts to get the ship off. The evidence showed that the rock or reef was totally submerged, even at low tide, and the position was not marked on any chart. Its existence was not known to the master or others of experience. It does not appear to be of any great extent. The Southern Cross struck within an hour of low water, there being a strong set towards the shore. Before the accident the danger of this passage was not known. The Court found that the Southern Cross was lost without any default on the part of the master or officers. The Court thinks it would have been more prudent to give Rocky Cape and Boat Rock a wider berth, and it was strange the captain did not know of the inward set of the tide. As the captain was at his post, and had taken every precaution against known dangers, the Court returned his certificate, and find that there was no default of duty on his part or the officers, and return their certificates. In a rider the Court submits that the discovery of this unknown danger shows that a careful survey of the passage is necessary.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS AGAINST A BRISBANE NEWSPAPER.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

The Supreme Court to-day granted a rule nisi calling on Charles Mills, printer and publisher of the Telegraph newspaper, to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt of court for republishing in Wednesday's issue extracts from the Daily News and the London Financial News, commenting on the actions now pending against E. R. Drury, Sir T. M'Ilwraith, and Sir A. Palmer, brought by the Queensland Investment and Land Mortgage Company. The affidavit of Edward R. Drury was to the effect that the articles were calculated and intended to prejudice the mind of the public of Queensland against him and his co-defendants in the action, and to prejudice and injure defendants, and to hinder and embarrass the conduct of the case on behalf of the defendants, and to create ill-feeling against him and his co-defendants.

WHO IS SUCKED DRY?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. H. Tennent Donaldson returns to the charge in your issue of to-day, and makes a gallant fight with his opponents, bringing forward Adam Smith, B. Franklin, and even Sir H. Parkes as his reserves in support of his contention that we are "sucked dry by foreigners." To me it seems that, so far from being sucked dry by foreigners, it is we in New South Wales who are sucking the foreigners dry. If I buy from the foreigner for 20s. goods that I cannot make myself or buy elsewhere for less than 25s., who is sucked dry? I or the foreigner? To me it seems that I have got the goods and 5s. in my pocket. If I had any anxiety about the matter it would be to keep the "money in the country"—that is to say, the 5s. in my pocket—and not to be persuaded by any one at any time, under any circumstances, that it would be much better for me to make the goods myself, spend the whole of my 25s., and turn up my dear little nose at "the foreigner"!

I am, &c.,
GEORGE WHITE.

DEPUTATIONS.

RAILWAY MATTERS AT NEWCASTLE.

A deputation from the citizens of Newcastle, consisting of Mr. Henry Buchanan (Mayor), Mr. H. E. Stokes, Mr. Joseph Wood, and Mr. W. Donnelly, waited upon the Railway Commissioners yesterday, for the purpose of protesting against the proposed abolition of the office of traffic manager at Newcastle, and the substitution in his place of a district superintendent. Another object was to obtain some definite information respecting the removal of several branches of the railway service from Newcastle to Sydney.

Mr. BUCHANAN, who introduced the deputation, stated that at a public meeting of the citizens held at Newcastle on the evening of the 26th February the following resolutions were passed:—1. "That this meeting of the citizens of Newcastle, while deprecating any intention of interfering with the functions of the Commissioners, views with alarm the intention notified of shifting the audit and traffic branches of the service of the Great Northern Line from Newcastle to Sydney, looking upon it as the precursor of a change in the system hitherto pursued which has made Newcastle the terminus of the Great Northern railway." 2. "That on the late visit of the Commissioner to Newcastle an opinion was expressed by Mr. Eddy that the railway workshops would still be carried on at Newcastle to as great an extent at least as heretofore. This meeting would desire to have a confirmation of the opinion then expressed, in order to allay any feeling of uneasiness that exists in the public mind." He pointed out that the Northern railway had been self-supporting for nearly 30 years, and he considered it an injustice to those men who had established their homes there that changes should be made which would necessitate their leaving Newcastle.

Mr. STOKES did not complain of the action of the Commissioners, nor did he think it was his duty to in any way condemn them. He fully recognised that it was their duty to make the railways pay. The first intimation of the proposed changes was received with anxiety. Information was given, however, through the press and also through their representative, which removed a certain amount of uneasiness. They did not consider the shifting of the audit office a matter of much importance. They considered that the alteration of the position of traffic manager to that of district superintendent would tend more to throw Newcastle into the shade, and to interfere with the management of business there. They thought that the traffic manager should be a more independent officer than a district superintendent was likely to be. The traffic manager then had not only charge of the railway, but he had charge of the coal trade—in fact, the whole of the interests of the port were in his hands, and he must be responsible for carrying on the very large business which was transacted at Newcastle. He had a larger amount of business claiming his attention than almost any other traffic manager in the colony. The position required a special man, for almost the whole trade of Newcastle was dependent upon the traffic manager. The deputation trusted that the Commissioners would give these matters their consideration, and that they would make no changes of such a character as would interfere with business.

Mr. WOOD stated that the port of Newcastle possessed certain advantages, and it would be a great pity if any changes should come about by which the prosperity of Newcastle would be endangered.

Mr. DONNELLY said it was felt by the people of Newcastle that they should protest against anything which was calculated to injure that city, even from a sentimental point of view. Newcastle had always been a distributing centre. It was feared that by making Sydney the railway terminus, the Commissioners would do an injustice to Newcastle. There had always been a feelling of antagonism between Newcastle and Sydney, and he was afraid that to change the terminus would be degrading to Newcastle.

Mr. EDDY, who replied on behalf of the Commissioners, said it was well that matters of this kind should be ventilated, and a little explanation would tend to remove any misapprehension that might exist with regard to their action. With regard to the traffic manager at Newcastle, it was with regret that the Commissioners found they had to part with Mr. Hicks. The little experience the Commissioners had had of Mr. Hicks had led them to desire that he should continue in the service. Mr. Hicks, however, thought the time had arrived when he should rest from his labours. They then selected an officer whom they regarded as well qualified for the position. That officer would occupy a more important position and would have more authority than any other district superintendent. Now that Newcastle had become part and parcel of the railway system they must have a central station. It must not be thought, however, that the position of district superintendent was an inferior position. The interests of the London and North-Western Railway in such important centres as Manchester and Liverpool were entrusted to district superintendents—to officers of similar rank to the one the Commissioners would have in Newcastle. It was not intended that he should consult the Sydney authorities as to matters of daily work, but they did feel that the Northern line should be regarded as part of the railway system of New South Wales—that there should be only one system, worked from one centre. That would have been so from the first, but for the fact that the systems were more than 100 miles apart, but now that they were joined together the whole must be welded into one. The Commissioners trusted that the officer appointed would answer every expectation; and should he not do so, they might depend upon it that they would get the very best man in the service next to their manager. But to show that the Commissioners did not overlook such an important centre as Newcastle, he might state that they were determined, as soon as they could see their way clear, to go down to Newcastle one day every fortnight, so that the traders of Newcastle might see them and bring such questions before them as now formed the subject of voluminous correspondence. They would see that there would be no rivalry between Sydney and Newcastle. There must be more than one port in New South Wales, and at all these ports they must concentrate traffic as much as possible. He might also state that as the result of the changes which were being made, a saving of £5500 a-year would be effected after the revision of the salaries of the officers whose positions would be changed. Independent of that, the country would benefit by more efficient management than there was at present. As business men, how could they ask the Commissioners to have one part of their business establishment a hundred miles away from the other part? In the interests of efficiency as well as economy, therefore, it had been decided to make these changes. It had been decided that as they were about to make this change they would apply £4000 of the amount to be saved in a reduction of the fares, say between Gosford and Newcastle, and Newcastle and Maitland, and in other ways they would meet local requirements. With regard to the workshops, they considered that the locomotive work done there could be done more economically at the workshops in Sydney, but to make up for that more carriage-building would be done in Newcastle. The result of the new arrangements would be that about the same number of men would be employed at Newcastle as there was to-day. The Commissioners hoped by their new arrangements to give greater facilities to the travelling public, and work the railways with more advantage to the colony.

THE RAILWAY CROSSING AT ASHFIELD.

A deputation from the Municipal Council of Ashfield, headed by Messrs. Wilshire, Hutchison, and Wheeler, Ms.L.A. for Canterbury, waited upon the Railway Commissioners yesterday with reference to a crossing near Ashfield railway station. They pointed out the great inconvenience at present experienced owing to the want of facilities for crossing the railway in the immediate vicinity of the station, and it was urged that something should be done at once to remove the grievance.

Mr. EDDY, on behalf of the Commissioners, stated that it was their desire to deal fairly with the residents. He pointed out, however, that in view of the quadruplication of the suburban line, which they were anxious to carry out, it would be impossible to give a level crossing in the vicinity of the station. Possibly a central point could be agreed upon for a subway or overbridge. Next week they would endeavour, if possible, to visit the place and see for themselves what could be done.

ABORIGINES' PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

The Aborigines Protection Association held a meeting in the Town Hall, Petersham, on Thursday evening. Mr. N. B. Downing occupied the chair, and there were present, amongst others, the Revs. J. Robertson, M.A., S. Wilkinson, A. J. Clarke, Messrs. James Green, S. H. Lewis, and G. E. Ardill (general secretary of the association). After devotional exercises, the chairman dwelt upon the necessity of the work of the association and its practical utility in providing a means of self-help to the aborigines. Whyman M'Lean, an aboriginal, then spoke, and in a clear and forcible manner contrasted the camp life and the life on the mission stations, stating that his people were willing to work, and would be glad to have the chance to support themselves, and hoped that the association would help a few of them to take up selections. The Rev. J. Robertson, M.A., followed, and expressed his sympathy with, and promised support to the objects of the meeting. Martin Simpson, an aboriginal, then delivered a neat speech, bristling with facts, to show the boon that had been conferred on "the children of the desert" by the establishment of the mission stations. He told of the death of some of those who had professed faith in Christ as their Saviour, and showed how the comforts of the Gospel sustained them. The Rev. A. J. Clarke spoke of the desire of the association to establish training homes for both the lads and young women, where the former could be taught trades and the latter prepared for domestic service. The singing of the aboriginal children was as usual a special feature of the evening. A collection was taken up, and a large number of the young folk took collecting cards.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE OPERA.—"MARITANA."

To see an operatic announcement respecting the production of "Maritana" commencing with the words "this evening, for the first time in Sydney," almost suggests the idea that the programme thus worded must be one of many years ago, for it seems quite strange to think that there could be anything connected with that popular opera remaining to be heard for the first time. Yet "Maritana" "in Italian" is something quite new to Sydney folks, and to many others as well, and this it was which was brought forward last evening at the New Opera House by the Italian Opera Artistes' Company. The originality of the idea attracted a large audience, and their behaviour proved that they were very agreeably moved by what they saw and heard—indeed it is seldom that so enthusiastic a gathering has been seen in Sydney. Spoken dialogue being contrary to the traditions of Italian opera, all such part has been set as recitative, and this alone gave quite a new complexion to the opera. It is probable that most persons will be disposed to agree that the change is a distinct improvement, even though Tito Mattei's music is not of a particularly high order of merit. Every detail of this opera is, of course, so familiar to almost everyone that the absence of their mother tongue seemed in nowise to affect the audience or to interfere with their appreciation of what was represented on the stage, and in many ways the performance seemed to be enjoyed far more than is generally the case when sung in English, for the reason that it is seldom so excellent a caste is engaged for such performances. "Maritana" is a work which is not often produced by first-class artistes such as are looked for in real "grand" opera, and hence, when such as Signors Dimitresco, Pimazzoni, Miss Flora Graupner, and Mdlle. Lablache combine for its performance, it is not unnatural that the performance should be better than the ordinary, this being assuredly the case last evening. The "Italian" dress was somewhat of the harlequin order of costume at times; twice the chorus was heard to sing in English, while Mr. Sinclair, who took the character of the King of Spain, had not troubled to conquer the foreign tongue and sang the English text—these things rather spoiling the general effect. Signor Dimitresco, it is true, sang a verse of "Let me Like a Soldier Fall" in the same language, as also did Signor Pimazzoni in "Happy Moments," but these were rather enjoyed by the audience than otherwise, and were taken in the light of a compliment paid by the vocal artistes to those who patronised them. However, the performance as a whole was a great success, and should attract large numbers of the public so long as the opera is kept on the stage, and it was quite clear that the audience present last evening was of this opinion, for number after number was encored until the artistes were really tired with their exertions, and had to refuse further editions of the compliment.

Signor Dimitresco threw himself heart and soul into the character of Don Cæsar de Bazan, and gave a rendering of it which is certainly superior to what Sydney is generally accustomed to. This is the more to his credit since it is understood that he has had the part in study for comparatively only a few days, this being his first appearance in that character. "Farewell my gallant captain," was quite successful, and "Turn on old Time" brought about an ovation which almost resulted in a double encore; "Let me like a soldier fall" causing a repetition of the former excited enthusiasm. Signor Pimazzoni gave a capital rendering of the part of Don José, and though the music lies rather low for the exhibition of the best of his voice, yet he sang finely, and in such as "In happy moments" received applause as hearty as any artist could desire. Miss Flora Graupner made a very charming gitana, her costume being particularly graceful, and while she sang with much taste, she acted with equal skill and vivacity. From beginning to end she was received with much heartiness, and well deserved the liberal applause she was favoured with. Mdlle. Lablache was a very superior stamp of Lazarillo; indeed it is but rarely that such a part is undertaken by an artiste of such attainments, so that it is no wonder her performance was a pronounced success—"Alas those Chimes," of course, being encored. Mr. Geo. Sinclair, Signor Lencioni, Mr. England, Miss Heath, and others took part with more or less success in the opera, and M. Caron conducted very ably.

His Excellency the Governor has granted his patronage to a grand matinée which is to be given on Tuesday afternoon next. The opera will be "Un Ballo in Maschera," in which this company appears to much advantage, and the performance will take place in Her Majesty's Theatre, the use of which has been kindly granted by Messrs. Rignold and Allison, as the Governor has not only given his patronage, but has signified his intention of being present.

THE CRITERION THEATRE.

"Betsy" reigns supreme at the Criterion, and judging from the attendance it seems hardly likely that any change will be made for some time to come. However, the management, who are always alive to the necessity of novelty, are preparing another of Grundy's comedies, which will simply convulse the house.

THEATRE ROYAL.

The drama, "It's Never Too Late to Mend," has been drawing crowded houses during the week, and judging from the enthusiasm with which it has been nightly received, it will probably have a long run.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

The interest in the "Vendetta" increases, and last night there was a large and most appreciative audience, who evidently understood the plot, and were liberal in their applause.

PAIN'S FIREWORKS.

Pain's demonstration to-night, at Phillip Park, promises to exceed any pyrotechnic display that has ever been exhibited in Sydney. The representation is to be the downfall of Pompeii, and we understand that it is to be given with a completeness of detail never before attempted in the colonies.

A most enjoyable entertainment, organised by the members of the Sydney Scottish Rifles, was given in the Protestant Hall last evening. The programme was replete with interesting items, and its rendition was thoroughly appreciated by the large audience assembled. The entertainment, it should be mentioned, was under the patronage of the officers of the Scottish Rifles, Highland Society, and Thistle Club, and it was given in aid of the uniform and instruments fund of the Scottish Pipe Band. Mr. Angus Mackay presided, and in an appropriate speech referred to the object of the gathering. He pointed out the difficulties under which the officers and men of the corps struggled in providing necessary equipments, which the capitation grant of £1 13s. per efficient man prevented their obtaining. The corps comprises something like 113 efficient members, and, with a little fostering, should become a strong feature in the volunteer forces of the colony. The promoters of the entertainment had the assistance of the Naval Artillery Volunteers. In addition to the usual features of a concert, which a number of ladies and gentlemen, including Mrs. Innes, Miss Nesbit, Miss Gilchrist, Mrs. Young, Mr. Edward, Mr. J. Lyon, Mr. Heslop, Mr. J. Coghlan, successfully used their best endeavours to provide, cutlass and sword exercises were performed by teams from the Naval Artillery Volunteers and the Scottish Rifles, whilst the band of each corps rendered selections. Mr. E. J. Massey was the accompanist.

The second of the series of competitions by minstrel companies at the Bondi Aquarium took place last night before a fairly large audience. The competitors on this occasion were the Mount Carmel Minstrels, who gave a programme of considerable merit. The company consisted of 15 members. The bones were Messrs. C. Marshall and G. M'Cann; tambos, Messrs. T. Guinan and E. Mangan. Among those who rendered sentimental songs were Messrs. J. Gallagher, S. Branagan, C. Fitzroy, C. M'Evoy, and T. Fullin. Mr. James South acted as judge. The next competition, by the Australs, takes place on Tuesday next.

It will be seen from our advertising columns that the patriotic drama, "Robert Emmett," is to be played on St. Patrick's Night, 16th March, at the Royal Standard Theatre, Castlereagh-street, for the benefit of St. Francis Conference of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul.

LAND NATIONALISATION LEAGUE.

A committee meeting of the Sydney branch of the Land Nationalisation League was held at the League office, 169, Phillip-street, on Tuesday evening. Present: Messrs. E. W. Foxall, vice-president, in the chair, F. Walsh, Cadogan, Akerman, Martyn, Michelmore, Waldon, Wood, Farrell (by invitation), and the secretary, Percy R. Meggy. A resolution was adopted thanking Messrs. Waldon and Gilferd for their donation to the league, as implied by the statement on the minutes, that a debit balance of £8 10s. 9d. incurred by them on behalf of the league prior to the appointment of a paid secretary, would not be handed over to the league. The correspondence, which was very extensive, was then read. The secretary reported that he had 11 promises of £1 a month for three months towards the lecture fund, and four paid up contributions of the same amounts, in addition to smaller ones. A letter was read from Granville, with reference to the establishment of the Single-tax League there on a sound basis. It was stated that there was a large body of single-taxers in Granville, and that if proper steps were taken a good working branch would be the result. The chairman undertook to communicate with certain gentlemen, with a view of strengthening the hands of the branch. The secretary reported that the subject of Land Nationalisation was becoming a favourite topic with debating societies generally. A letter was read from Mr. James Ryan, hon. secretary of the campaign fund, handing over the further management of the fund, now amounting to about £10, and a box of leaflets to the secretary of the Sydney league. The secretary stated that he had sent a copy of the annual report, together with a supplementary account of the result of the elections to Henry George, and had assured him that whenever he decided on visiting Australia a loyal welcome awaited him, not only from the numerous advocates of the single tax scattered over the colony, but from all those—and their number was legion—who admired his genius and studied his works.

THE R.M.S. ALAMEDA.

The Oceanic Steamship Company's fast mailboat, the Alameda, took everybody by surprise yesterday morning. Instead of an afternoon arrival, as had been expected, she was at the Heads at daybreak. It is 1281 nautical miles to Auckland from Sydney, and the report of the Alameda gives her performance in time at 3 days 15 hours. This is nearly 14½ knots right through, a speed of about 17 miles an hour. She took up a berth at the West Circular Quay on arrival. The Alameda sailed from San Francisco on February 11, and discharged the pilot at 3.40 p.m. that day. Fair weather was had across to Honolulu, which was reached on February 18, about 6 a.m. After a stay of about 16 hours, the steamer pushed on again, and had moderate weather till nearing Tutuila. The Alameda arrived off that island at midnight on the 26th, during a heavy rain storm; but the weather was so dirty and thick that it was dangerous to approach the land, and Captain Morse accordingly waited for daylight. In the early morning, the weather clearing somewhat, the steamer stood in, and descried the German gunboat Eber waiting for her. As the Eber brought an order to receive the whole of the mails, German, English, and American, they were placed on board of her, and the Alameda resumed her voyage at 6.30 a.m. on the 27th, having been detained six and a-half hours. At 8.50 p.m. on the 27th the out-going mail steamer Zealandia was sighted, and Coston signals exchanged with her. The New Zealand coast was sighted about dusk on March 3, and the pilot picked up about midnight. Left Auckland at 12.50 p.m., and arrived at Sydney Heads at 3.30 a.m. yesterday. Time from San Francisco, 23 days 12 hours.

ENGLISH AND FOREIGN SHIPPING.

(PER MERCHANT SHIPPING UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION.)

LONDON, MARCH 7.

Arrived from Melbourne, Harbinger, ship, sailed November 26; from Geelong, Loch Ryan, ship, sailed November 23; from Wallaroo, Cape of Good Hope, ship, sailed November 1.

The salvage operations at the wreck of the Sir Walter Raleigh, ship, from Sydney to London, stranded at Cape Grisnez, have now come to an end, as the expenses of further recovery of cargo would not be justified by the results. Only slow progress is being made in recovering the cargo of the Ben Avon, barque, from Hamburg to Sydney, which went ashore near the entrance of the River Maas, Holland, on 11th ultimo.

MEETINGS.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY.

The Darlinghurst branch of the above society held its annual meeting on Thursday evening, in St. John's schoolroom. His Honor Mr. Justice Stephen presided. The report showed that the subscriptions for the past year were not equal to those of previous years, and that this is owing in a great measure to the want of more collectors, several districts in the parish not having been canvassed for some time. The Rev. Dr. Kelynack gave an interesting address, strongly enforcing the value of the Bible. The Rev. R. T. Hills proposed the resolution,—"That the thanks of the meeting be accorded to the office-bearers and lady collectors, and especially to Mrs. Hayden, who, after many years of active assistance, had reluctantly resigned her collectorship." The office-bearers and committee for the ensuing year were elected.

AUSTRALIAN NATIVES' ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Sydney branch of the above association was held in the rooms of the Economic Association, Pitt and Park streets, on Wednesday evening. The president, Mr. B. B. Nicoll, M.L.A., occupied the chair. The president delivered an address on the importance of making the association a powerful organisation, and urged the members to use their influence in carrying out the objects for which the association was formed. Speeches were also delivered in a similar tone by Messrs. J. R. H. Webster, J. R. Graham, S. J. Johnson, R. Thompson, W. B. Solling, S. H. Fairland, J. W. Hill, G. F. Garton, and O. L. Williams.

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench report the sale of a parcel of Australian Joint Stock Bank, £1027 10s.; 12 shares Equitable P. R. L. and Savings Institute (each £50 paid), £840.

Our London cablegram shows no very great change in the Bank of England returns. The reserves at nd at £14,818,000, and the proportion to liabilities 42¾ per cent., as against £14,886,000 and 43¾ per cent. last week. The variation in colonial securities are trifling. The copper market is again weaker, the price of Chili having fallen to £60 5s., a drop of £17 15s. per ton on the week. Australian tin, at £95 15s., is down 10s. per ton on the week. Glasgow pig iron, at 43s. is up 4 on the week.

In our advertising columns appears the prospectus of S. Cranston and Co., Limited, which is being formed, with a capital of £15,000, in 15,000 shares of £1 each, to acquire, continue, and enlarge the business of Mr. S. Cranston, wholesale iron merchant, of Sydney. The present proprietor takes 4500 fully paid-up shares in part payment, and the remaining 10,500 shares are offered to the public on the terms stated. The vendor guarantees dividends of 10 per cent. per annum for the first three years. Mr. P. H. Somerville is the broker.

The first general meeting of the shareholders of the Broken Hill and District Water Supply Company, Limited, was held on Wednesday, when the directors' report of their proceedings since the registration of the company was read and adopted. The chairman explained that in consequence of the recent dissolution of Parliament, the bill had not been taken through all its stages, but he hoped in the course of next week the necessary steps will have been made and that at a very early period the company will have the legal rights sanctioned by Parliament, when they will at once set about pushing on the object for which the company was formed.

In the Import markets there is a moderately good trade doing, but for the most part in trade lines. There is, in fact, not much disposition either to buy or to sell large lines of goods. The monetary position of the past fortnight has not been at all satisfactory, for a good many shopkeepers and even some larger houses have had to meet their creditors, and make arrangements either by extensions of time, in some cases by composition, and in one or two instances by assignments. Generally the monetary pressure has been greater than usual, and on this account trade is not by any means so satisfactory as could be wished. Flour has again advanced in value, to-day's quotations for New South Wales, South Australian, and Victorian roller brands being from £12 to £13 10s., and one or two brands are being held for £14; stone makes are very saleable at from £11 10s. to £12. Considerable sales of wheat have been carried through during the past few days, on the basis of 4s. 8d. n.t.f. for South Australian, and 4s. 9d. to 5s. for New Zealand. Private cable advices from the latter colony received this afternoon, report, "An excited market, holders refusing to quote; and supplies forward totally inadequate to the demand." The San Francisco market had had a rather downward tendency. The quotations at February 9 for prime were 1 dol. 42½ cents to 1 dol. 45 cents per cental. In tea there is some disposition to buy where importers are prepared to make concessions; the demand being chiefly for medium grades. Coffee is rather dearer, No. 1 Ceylon Plantation being sold at 10d. Barry's chicory 3½d. Epps's cocoa is selling at 1s. 5½d. to 1s. 5½d.; Taylor's, 1s. 8½d.; Van Houten's, 3s. 4½d. In dried fruits, currants are obtainable from 4½d. up to 4½d., being quoted for very prime samples. Elemes and sultanas are both quoted from 5d. to 5½d., but only very good fruit would bring the latter figure. Figs are scarcely obtainable, and 7s. is quoted for full weights. Dates, 2½d. to 2¾d. Soft-shell almonds, 6½d. to 7d. Barcelona nuts, 3½d. to 3¾d. A better inquiry noticed for jams, colonial selling from 3s. 9d., and English from 5s. 6d. Marmalade, 5s. to 6s. 6d. The San Francisco market for canned fruits was firm, without change on the month, there being a fairly good demand for Australia. Sugar in moderate request, the market being steady at, if anything, a price rather below that of other colonial markets. Good China white, £25 to £25 10s.; yellows, £20 to £23; ration sorts from £19. Writing from London on the 1st February, Mr. C. Czarnikow says that a scarcity of useful descriptions of cane-sugar was compelling refiners to meet their wants by purchases of beet, and the quantity of cheap foreign refined sugar kept down the prices of sugar made from cane. Our cablegram reports an advance of 9d. per cwt. on English beet. Condensed milk, Dairymaid, English, 6s. 4½d.; Swiss, 6s. 6d. to 6s. 7¾d. Stocks of fine table rice have been further replenished, and the market is rather weaker, say from £12 10s. to £13 being paid for the various samples. Up to £12 given for lower grades. Sago and tapioca in steady request at 3¼d. Pepper, white 13½d., back 8½d. Salt is without change in value, coarse being quoted from 80s.; fine, 90s. to 95s., and rock from 85s. per ton. For fish there has been a fairly good demand. Bulk salmon has become rather scarce, and the principal holders now ask 6¾d. for distributors' parcels; tinned, 8s. 6d. to 9s. In their San Francisco report, dated February 9, Messrs. J. J. Moore and Co. report that the market was unchanged on the month, stocks being practically cleared up. English buyers were reported to have made some purchases of salmon for future delivery at a price which had not transpired, and it seemed as if they proposed to secure the British-Columbia pack early, and not to wait until the packing season began. Salt salmon was firm, half-barrels (100lb.) being quoted at 7dol. net, barrels 200lb. net 12.50dol. to 13dol. Sardines fully supplied; 3s. 3d. to 3s. 6d. for quarters, and 6s. to 6s. 6d., for fair to good quality of fish. Fresh herrings in good demand from 5s. to 6s.; the latter paid for a line of Moir's for export. Kippered herrings, 7s. 6d. to 8s. 3d.; red herrings, 18s. 6d. and 32s. 6d., in dozens and two dozen tins. Ling of good quality worth 3½d.; a good deal of inferior in the market. Salad oils without change, the demand being chiefly for continental brands at from 4s. to 4s. 3d. for halfpints; a parcel of Whybrow's sold on private terms. Keen's mustard, 7s. 9d. for halves, 15s. 9d. for lb.; 6½d. per lb in 5lb. packages. Pickles without change. Holbrook's, 6s. 6d., in imperial pints. Vinegar of the same brand in hock bottles, 5s. 9d. to 8s. Candles are selling at 6d. to 6½d., both stearine and paraffin; colonial stearine candles are moving off at 5½d. For brewers' goods there was rather more inquiry, English malt, 6s. 9d. to 7s. 9d., according to quality; Kent hops, 2s., and colonial from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. Business in liquids is of little more than a trade order character. Transactions in Foster's and other good brands of ale at recent rates; good sales of Blood stout and Beaver stout are noticed at agents' prices. Since the recent deliveries, Hennessy's three star has become cheaper, and sold at 47s. 6d., and single star is quoted at 34s. 9d. to 35s. What little business is passing in Lowndes' rum is at 3s. 4d.; Preston's, 2s. 10d. For geneva holders are looking for an advance on 11s. 9d. Burnett's old tom still scarce, and held for 12s. Business is reported in Usher's whisky. The demand for metals generally is about as dull as it well can be. Galvanised iron is quoted at £18 10s. to £19 5s. Sheet lead, £17 10s., and very dull of sale. Fencing wire (Garman makes), No. 8, £10; No. 11, £11. Wire nails still oversupplied, 11s. being a full quotation. L. C. Coke tin-plates, 16s. 9d. to 17s. In jute goods, some 300 bales of woolpacks were sold for Melbourne, 1s. 10½d. to 1s. 11d. is quoted. Cornsacks were quitted at 5s. 10½d.; 50 bales of branbags were sold at 4s. 9d., 5s. is now asked. Oils are without change in value. In chemicals there is very little doing. For soda crystals £5 5s. is asked, colonial are selling at £4 15s. Cream of tarter is weak at 1s. 2d. There is very little inquiry for lumber. Our San Francisco files to hand to-day show that Oregon pine was unchanged on the month, 11 dollars per M feet B.M. at the mill being the current rate. The Nineveh was loading at Gig Harbour for Sydney. Redwood also was unchanged. The Collaroy had cleared for Sydney with 135 M feet, the demand for Australia having almost ceased. No shipments of sugar pine for Australia. Locally there is very little doing in cement, builders' parcels moving at 18s. 6d.

The San Francisco market for coal and freights is thus referred to by Messrs. J. J. Moore and Co., writing under date February 9:—

"Coal.—Notwithstanding the fact that the imports of coal during the past month have been below the average, stocks in yards continue comparatively large in consequence of the unusual mildness of our winter, the few spells of cold weather which we have had being so brief as to cause very little extra domestic consumption. Free offerings of Australian coal for future loading at considerably lower quotations, have caused a weakness in prices for all kinds. Present indications point to liberal supplies of coal being imported from Australia during the year at moderate rates, while probably very little will be received from Great Britain during the same time, as coal from that quarter cannot compete with Australian coal at the price which will probably obtain for the latter. With very little doing, quotations are nominally as follows:—Wallsend and Greta, "spot," 8dol.; March-April loading, 7·50dol.; later loading, 7dol. to 7·50dol.; Bulli or Coal Cliff, 50c. to 75c. below quotations. The freight market continues in the same strong position as when the last mail left. There are no disengaged iron vessels in port which can be available for grain loading for some time to come; exporters have therefore been compelled to turn their attention to the few wooden vessels suitable, and several ships of this class have been chartered during the past week. The supply of suitable vessels for miscellaneous and foreign lumber trade is not equal to the demand, and for the latter business they are held at such high prices as practically to prohibit chartering. We quote freights to U. K., for orders, 42s. 6d., with 2s. 6d. less for direct port; lumber from Puget Sound or Burrard's Inlet (nominal) to Melbourne Wharf, 62s. 6d.; Robson's Bay, 57s. 6d.; Sydney, 47s. 6d. to 50s.; Brisbane or Adelaide, 65s. Exchange.—Bankers': Three days' sight drafts on London, 4·87; 60 days' sight drafts on London, 4·85. Merchants': Three days' sight drafts on Australia, 4·72½; 60 days' sight drafts on Australia, 4·67½."

Respecting the Boston market Messrs. Henry W. Peabody and Co., writing under date February 2, report:—

"Trade is in a healthy condition, although no special activity exists. Kerosene: The market the past month has shown but little activity, the only fluctuation in case oil having been an advance of 1-10c. per gallon January 22nd, followed by a corresponding decline. We quote Devoes 110° low screw in 10,000 cases lots 9 20-100c. per gallon, other brands 9c. Shipments have been as follows: Melbourne, 9910 cases; Sydney, 7875 cases; Wellington, 6150 cases; Auckland, 8000 cases; Dunedin, 16,250 cases; Brisbane, 4750 cases; Hobart, 2800 cases; Lyttelton, 8200 cases; Adelaide, 14,900 cases. Sugar: The market is still slowly falling, to-day's price being 4·40 per 100lb. net in bond. It is possible that before long it may be low enough to meet the colonial market. Naval Stores: Turpentine is quotable at 50c. per gallon, being still held up by strong hands. We do not look for lower prices at present. Rosins are a trifle higher, but still very cheap. Wool: Australians are steady, with light stocks. Exchange: We quote prime commercial bills on London as follows—Demand, 4·88½dol.; 30 days, 4·86½dol.; 60 days, 4·85dol.; 90 days, 4·84dol. On Australia, payable with exchange from London, 4·87½dol. Freights continue firm. Vessels are still scarce, but are being more freely offered for the colonial trade at the advanced rates. While with the existing scarcity of vessels and general demand for tonnage throughout the world, there is no reason to expect any immediate reduction, we believe that we have seen rates as high as they are likely to go. Nearly all vessels now coming to port have been chartered for outward business before arrival. We quote rates to Australasian ports as follows:—Melbourne, 27½c.; Sydney, 29c.; Adelaide, 27½c.; Brisbane, 30c.; New Zealand ports, 32½c."

The Australian Smelting and Refining Company, Limited, report that they have sold this day at Adelaide about 24,000oz. of fine silver at 3s. 6¾d. per oz.; February, 27,695oz. 3s. 6 11-16d. per oz.; March, 54,000oz. 3s. 6¾d. per oz.: total, 100,362oz.

The following was the Customs revenue received to-day:—

Spirits, £2285 11s. 10d.; wine (still), £261 0s. 10d.; wine (sparkling), £30 0s. 3d.; ale, porter, and beer (in wood), £3 13s.; ale, porter, and beer (in bottles), £49 18s. 3d.; tobacco and snuff, £519 19s. 6d.; tobacco (for manufacturing purposes only), £69 7s.; cigars, £196 1s. 9d.; cigarettes, £243 15s. 7d.; tea, £321 11s. 6d.; coffee (raw) £5 1s. 8d.; sugar (unrefined), £25 11s. 4d.; total, £1216 9s. 9d.; dried fruits, £1 10s. Specific duty: bacon and hams, £24 2s. 1d.; butter, £6 8s. 4d.; cement, £70; cheese, £193 16s. 4d.; cocoa and chocolate, £1 4s.; confectionery, £15 7s. 10d.; doors, £117 14s.; fish, £126 9s. 10d.; galvanised iron, £40 2s. 11d.; galvanised manufactures, 16s. 6d.; glucose (solid), £20; iron and steel wire, 15s.; oils (kerosene), £27; oils (in bottle), £1 10s.; oils (other), £86 14s. 6d.; paints, £5 6s.; powder (sporting), 5s.; preserves, £73 2s. 5d.; salt, £155; spirits (methylated), £15; timber (dressed), 9s. 7d.; timber (undressed), £2 13s. 11d.; varnish, £5; harbour and light rates, £42 11s. 8d.; pilotage—Sydney, £103 6s. 10d.; harbour dues, £23; colonial distilled spirits, £149 9s.; excise on tobacco, £1030 13s. 9d.; excise on beer, £464 2s. 3d. LATEST COMMERCIAL TELEGRAMS.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.)

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The grain markets are quiet, but steady. Wheat sold at 5s. 4d. for ordinary. New Zealand oats, 4s. 1d.; bran, 1s. 2d. At auction £25 net cash was given for damaged China sugar. China tea sold at auction at prices showing a further slight decline. Indian tea sold at fair prices, pekoe fetching 8½d. to 10d., broken pekoe touching 7½d. Salted fish is in good demand; sales of ling are made at 4½d.; American cod, 4d. Fruits are unaltered. Sales of currants, 4½d. English malt is in demand. At the timber auction Baltic realised late rates. Oregon is dull, the trade seeking a reduction; sales were made at £5 10s. to £5 5s.

The principal feature of the share market was the strong demand for Mercantile Finance, which sold up to 51s., but eased again to 46s. at the close. National Banks, Tramway and Omnibus, and Perkins and Victoria Breweries were also in request, and high prices were realised. Australian Finance, General Finance, and Real Estate Bank quitted at further reductions. Tramway and Omnibus sold at 53s. 6d.

PRODUCE SALES.

John Bridge reports very small catalogues of hides offered to-day, which caused a jump of ¼d to ½d. on good qualities and ¼d to ½d. on extra heavies. I sold 1004 at 3¾d to 4¼d for extra heavies, 3½d to 3¾d for heavies, 2¾d to 3¼d for good medium weights, 2½d to 3d for medium weights, 2½d to 3¼d for lights, 3½d to 3¾d for dry, and 2d to 3¼d for damaged. Tallow: A brisk demand again ruled at a reduction of 10s on last week's rates; prime, £21; good, £20 10s; medium, £19 0s to £20; and dark to £19 10s; inferior, to £17 10s. My catalogue comprised 74 casks.—[ADVT.]

WATTLE BARK.

John Bridge reports: I submitted a splendid catalogue of 1337 bags N. S. W. chopped to-day, and, as usual, no lots being reserved, an entire clearance was effected at auction and privately, heavy chopped rolling at £8 10s. to £9 7s. 6d.; good, £8 to £8 10s.; fair, £7 10s.; medium, £6 to £7 10s.; low quality, £5 downwards. Every buyer was present, and competition ruled active.—[ADVT.]

PRODUCE MARKET.—FRIDAY.

This morning a larger supply of forage 24 trucks; than for several days, and a moderate quantity of wood were submitted at Darling Harbour terminus. The sacrifices were but thinly attended by the trade. In forage lucerne hay commanded most attention, although there was a moderate demand for other descriptions. Sales of wood again lacked animation. At the wharfs fairly good arrivals came to hand from the Manning and Hunter rivers and the adjacent colonies. Trade was confined to quantities for the day's requirements. Butter was firmer, potatoes easier. Bran, pollard, and lucerne hay maintains a firm inquiry. At Darling Harbour sales the following figures were obtained:—

Wood.—Although the supplies were smaller than on previous days they were in excess of requirements. Billet, 4s to 5s per ton; bundle, 3s to 11s; foot, 1s 6d to 12s; bakers', 8s to 11s.

Hay.—Eleven trucks, and mostly of fairly good qualities. Competition was moderately active. Best oaten, in bundles, 7s 10d to 9s 2d per cwt.; other kinds, 6s 11d to 7s 4d; lucerne, green, in trusses, 3s 7d to 5s 9d; oaten and wheaten, in bundles, 7s 9d to 9s 4d.

Straw.—11 trucks to hand; values were weaker. Clean and bright in bundles, at 4s 3d to 4s 10d per cwt.; discoloured to medium, 2s 3d to 3s; bales, 3s 7d.

Chaff.—Very limited consignments, consisting of four trucks; oaten, in bags, 6s 3d to 7s per cwt.

At the wharfs the following were the wholesale quotations:—

Maize.—New maize was worth 3s 6d to 3s 7d per bushel; good old sound southern districts parcels, 3s 9d to 3s 10d; very weevilly, from 2s 6d. Respecting the San Francisco market Messrs. Gifford, Moore, and Co., on February 9, report:—Maize: Stocks are not heavy, but owing to a very moderate demand prices are somewhat lower. Large yellow may be quoted at 1·07½dol. to 1·10dol. per cental.

Oats.—Values of good feeding descriptions ranged from 3s to 3s 2d per bushel; lower sorts in proportion; milling, to 3s 3d. Messrs. Kaye and Carter, of Christchurch, New Zealand, February 26, write:—Oats: Old, 2s 6d; new, 2s 6d; but, farmers being busy, few are offering. The quantity will be probably about the average. The quality is bright, but hardly plump enough.

Chaff.—Good lots are in limited supply, and inquired for. Victorian oaten steady, £5 10s to £7 per ton; straw, £4 10s to £5; best oaten, £6 10s to £7 10s; faulty, from £3 5s; New Zealand, to £6.

Onions.—326 bags from Victoria last night. Holders quote £12 per ton.

Potatoes.—Shipments from the adjoining colonies coming forward more freely have caused a reduction in prices; Mount Gambier, £5 5s per ton; Warrnambool, £5 to £5 5s 6d; Circular Head, £5.

Bacon.—Hard-cured sides in steady demand, 5d to 6d per lb.; machine-cured Southern, 6d to 7d; extra prime lots to 8d; New Zealand, 10d. Hams are still neglected.

From the latter place 31,500 bunches of bananas and 75 bags of cocoanuts were received. Business was more animated than for some time past. Quotations as follows:—Colonial apples, including eating and baking, 1s to 10s per case; bananas, 3s to 9s; Queensland pineapples, 3s to 8s per case; 1s 6d to 3s per dozen; bananas, both Queensland and Fijian kinds, 1s 6d to 3s 6d per bunch; a less main crop oranges were on hand, 2s per case; lemons, 14s to 30s; peaches, 8s to 12s; pears, 4s to 6s; plums, 2s per quarter case, quinces, 2s 6d to 3s; passion fruit, 16s to 20s; grapes, 2d to 3d per lb.; pieneloes, 4s to 7s per dozen; watermelons, 5s to 8s; dried bananas, 6s per dozen; cocoanuts, 8s per bag; green walnuts, 8s to 9s.

STOCK, STATION, AND PRODUCE REPORTS.

Tallow.—Goldsbrough, Mort and Co., Limited, Brunker and Wolfe, Winchcombe, Carson, and Co., J. H. Geddes and Co., Hill, Rae, and Co., Gibbes, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, and F. L. Barker, report holding sales yesterday, 231 packages were offered, and 101 sold publicly. The business transacted was principally for local trade requirements. The shipping inquiry was inactive, and prices for that line were nominal. Best beef, £20 to £21 per ton; medium, £19 to £19 15s.; best mixed, £20 3s to £21; medium, £18 to £19; inferior, £14 to £16. Mutton was very scarce, and nominally worth £20 to £22.

Hides.—6078 were offered and 5197 sold at yesterday's auctions. The scarcity of good-conditioned hearies again created brisk competition at firm values for these descriptions. Ordinary and inferior were saleable at last week's prices. Extra heavies, 3½d to 3¾d per lb., exceptional lots 4d to 4¼d; ordinary heavies, 2¾d to 3d; medium, 2½d to 2¾d; light, 2¼d to 2½d; dry, to 3½d. Horsehides, 2s to 5s. Calfskins, 6d to 7s 6d. Yearlings, 1s to 1s 6d.

Marcuplat Skins.—Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, report that at their usual weekly auction sale on Friday they submitted an ordinary large catalogue of 13,000 skins. A keen attendance of buyers was present, including English, continental and American representatives. Keen attention was again accorded to the largest and best kangaroo skins, principally grey ones, there being a fair demand for export. Medium and small smaller skins were in fair demand. Quotations: Extra superior and weighty kangaroo skins, 85s to 105s per dozen; very large and good, 70s to 80s; large, 50s to 65s; fair, 35s to 45s; medium, 25s to 32s 6d; very small, 2s to 10s; large heavy wallaby were disposed of freely at 12s to 18s; large, 8s to 11s; fair, 6s to 7s 6d; medium and ordinary sizes were slack, 4s to 5s 6d; small, inferior, and rock wallaby, 1s 6d to 3s 6d; best bearskins and smaller skins were in fair demand, 2s to 3s; seconds, 1s to 1s 6d; small to medium, 5s to 8s; sound and well-furred opossum were in increased inquiry, and only a small supply was available, sold readily at 3s to 10s 6d; fair, 1s to 2s 6d; inferior, 6d to 1s.

Hair.—Horsehair, consisting of mane and tail, finds ready sale at 11½d to 13d per lb.; second qualities, 12d to 13½d. Cow, washed, 12d to 14d; stumps, 6d to 8d.

Horns and Shins.—Fair demand was experienced at late sales for all large sizes of horns. The largest and well-cared for lots ranged from 38s to 42s 6d per 100; fair-sized, 30s to 36s; small, to 25s; very small and tops, 5s to 12s. Best shin bones sold from 3½d to 4d per piece; very 2½d per ton; other kinds from £4; common bones, £2 5s to £3.

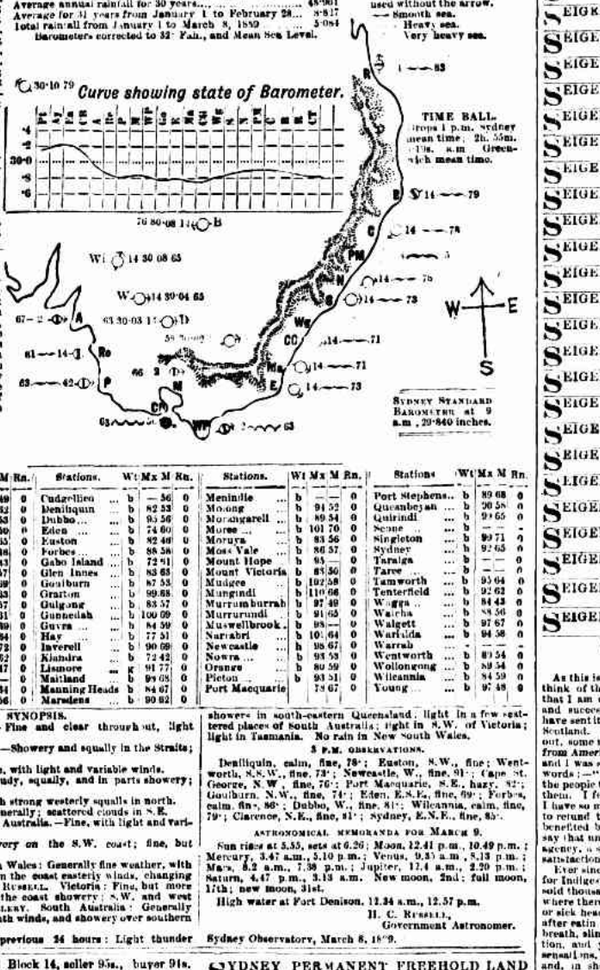

Leather.—At last Tuesday's sales competition was confined exclusively to the best descriptions of light leathers at late rates. Medium and heavy hides were quite unsaleable, and for these there is fair demand, but prices were lower, whilst sales of harness sorts were on a very limited scale. Quotations: Sole, heavy, 9d to 9½d; medium and light, 7½d to 7¾d; best hide, 13d to 16d; seconds, 11d to 12d; crop, 15d to 17d; heavy, 12d to 13d; yearling tweed, 18d to 19d; calf tweed, 21d to 24d; harness, best, 11d to 12½d; other kinds, 10d to 10½d; bag, 9s to 10s 6d; bridle, 10s to 11s.

Store Stock.—There is a moderately good demand for fattening bullocks in the southern districts at from 80s. to 85s. In the western districts the demand is limited, the price at Dubbo being about 80s. For stock between the Murrumbidgee and Lachlan there is some inquiry, quotations being from 67s. 6d. to 75s. 6d. Suitable lots for fattening wethers are worth 5s. 6d to 6s.; in the drier western country 5s to 5s. 6d is quoted.

Stations.—The dry weather interferes with business.

This estate has always ranked as one of the best on admittedly the choicest shore of the harbour. The trip by steamer via the bays between Circular Quay and this property is matchless for striking beauty, while the road journey presents many objects of great interest.

The vendor has incurred large expense in treating the whole property with the view to providing for these allotments streets of easy or practical gradient, and all the roads have been taken over by the Borough of Woollahra.

The views of harbour, islands, bays, mansions, and surroundings, and the constantly changing forms of vessels are simply enchanting.

ORCHARD and VINEGROWERS.

This Estate is recommended, the soil is esteemed some of the best in the country, about 1000 acres have been cleared, and the balance has upon it valuable timber, reckoned as worth many thousands of pounds. The railway stations are quite close.

Seeing the at present improved train facilities, and greater yet to be enjoyed, the property may be classed as SUBURBAN. A few years at most will discover for it a great demand for residential purposes, for the climate is remarkably healthy, with a bright, dry atmosphere. The surface features of the estate are undulating, thereby giving the great attractiveness of encompassing mountains and plains in the distance.

This Estate was a very early and picked portion, shown on the County of Cumberland Map as JOHN CAMPBELL'S 2000 ACRES GRANT, and there are other two grants of each about 40 acres, to secure access to two main roads.

The frontages are to FLUSHCOMBE-ROAD,
almost at Blacktown Station.

Large frontage to GREAT WESTERN-ROAD,
extending to Eastern Creek,

Very considerable line of valuable frontage to EASTERN CREEK,
always in water,

To a road leading to Dronside Station,
and another road leading to Rooty Hill Station, and there are Bungarribee Creek and other supplies of water through the Estate.

The variety of surface feature, the well-known excellence of the soil generally, and the easy communication by railway with the city (only one hour's drive by train) stamp the Estate as one of exceptional importance to the various classes of buyers enumerated above.

It could be parcelled out into residence blocks, there being so many undulations of gentle slope, commanding wide and pretty scenery.
HEALTH and PLEASANTNESS
in the situation could here be enjoyed.
One boundary is only about half a mile from that MAGNIFICENT AREA OF WATER,
the almost matchless
PROSPECT RESERVOIR,
a most captivating view, environed by strikingly effective ranges, &c.

If desired, arrangements will be made for a full inspection of the whole property, as it is undeniably an unusual area, so well positioned, and with exceptional advantages.

ORCHARD, VINEYARD,
and FARM QUALITIES
of soil can readily be subdivided in the Estate.

FOR UNRESERVED SALE.
W. PRITCHARD and SON have been instructed to sell by public auction, without reserve, in the Rooms, on March 21, at 11 o'clock,

. JOHNSTON-STREET, which is planted with an avenue of well-grown trees, is far famed as being the most picturesque near Sydney; it is naturally well drained, but, in addition, the Leichhardt Municipal Council are now forming a complete underground system of sewerage, which makes this the most healthy and wholesome suburb of Sydney.

. In the hands of energetic business men this property would prove a mine of wealth, as, irrespective of its intrinsically valuable situation in relation to the Railway Station and the immense population of the southern and western suburbs, its close proximity to Hordern's gives it an enormously additional value for business purposes, as the daily customers to this establishment alone would form the population of a moderately-sized town.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT SALE by PUBLIC AUCTION, at the RESIDENCE of JOHN MALONY, Esq., No. 1, BAYSWATER-ROAD, near ALBERTO-TERRACE, on TUESDAY, 12th MARCH, at 11 a.m., of the whole of his MAGNIFICENT HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE and EFFECTS, comprising—

CHOICE SUITE TABLE GLASS
ELEGANT DINNER, TEA, and COFFEE SERVICE of the FINEST BOHEMIAN CHINA, chastely decorated BEST ELECTROPLATE
STERLING SILVER
CHOICE VASES and ORNAMENTS, obtainable direct from the Royal Factory at Buda Pesth
SPLENDID DINING-ROOM SUITE in SOLID DARK OAK, superbly upholstered in marone morocco, and stuffed throughout with the BEST-QUALITY HORSEHAIR, thickly overlaid on stout copper springs, consisting of MASSIVE and VERY COMFORTABLE SOFA, with stuffed backs
2 HANDSOME CARVING CHAIRS, with stuffed backs, and 8 STUFFED-BACKED CHAIRS, buttoned seats

. The carvings are very ornate, and distinguished by great delicacy of finish; the same class of workmanship is not easily to be obtained in the colony. Selected by Mr. Malony specially for his own use, but in consequence of his intended trip to Europe he is reluctantly compelled to part with this almost indispensable and valuable dining-room adjunct.

48. LARGE and MASSIVE ARMCHAIR, splendidly upholstered in real morocco

. One of the finest examples of upholstery work that has ever come under our observation in connection with a sale under the hammer, and it is a pleasure to refer to one or two points which may be of some little interest to those who may elect to attend this important sale. By the introduction of COPPER SPRINGS and ENGLISH HORSEHAIR of the best quality, the utmost amount of ELASTICITY has been obtained, which the occupant discovers to his GREAT COMFORT on first taking his seat. The back to some extent is self-adjusting, shaped with a knowledge of the anatomical proportions of the human frame. The back and arms are also well stuffed with horsehair to a good depth, yielding to the pressure of the body with the softness of eider down, thus ensuring absolute rest. Used principally by Mr. Malony as a reading chair. Made specially to his order.

MAGNIFICENT OAK WALNUT CABINET, fitted with enclosed cupboards, and two drawers of mediæval design. The upper portion forming a piazza enclosed with banister rail gallery, with columns at the corners, and square tablet in the centre for coat of arms or monogram, projecting mouldings on three sides, decorated underneath with panels and a variety of carvings of a very interesting period, the whole superstructure resting on two substantial pillars with Corinthian capitals. The under portion of what is technically termed the carcase is suggestive of great massiveness, and has been most liberally treated in the way of decoration. Two Ionic columns have been introduced into the design, not only to afford support, but to give increased effect and beauty to the whole work. The talent of the designer, and the splendid workmanship of the cabinetmaker, together with the remarkable touches of the carver's chisel, shine out with unwonted brilliancy, reflecting the highest credit upon the artisans engaged in producing this very costly and beautiful household requisite. The Piazza on top is of great extent, specially designed to accommodate large pieces of statuary or important objects d'art in bronze, bric-a-brac, &c., which its elevation from the ground is so well calculated to advantageously display.

PAIR OF HANDSOME SOLID OAK BOOKCASES, with walnut panels and glass doors, fitted with moveable shelves. Dome top richly moulded, and superbly carved front decorated with three Ionic columns fluted and carved. Fine specimens of cabinet-work. The above being roomy, are capable of holding a good-sized library, and owing to the glass in the doors being semi-transparent and ornamental, it contributes its share in heightening effect, and giving to the library another desirable, if not essential, charm.

VERY HANDSOME TAPESTRY and SILK PLUSH WINDOW CURTAINS and HANGINGS, suspended from a cornice pole covered in plush, pair massive brass curtain bands included.

These splendid specimens of window drapery were made and fitted by Messrs. Farmer and Co. to Mr. Malony's order without regard to cost. The material is of the richest quality, decorated with silk plush. Having been cut without stint, they descend in ample and graceful folds from cornice to floor.

VALUABLE ORMOLU MANTELPIECE SET, consisting of elegant Ormolu Clock, inlaid with Sèvres porcelain plaques, superbly painted by hand, two side ornaments en suite.

. On looking into the interior and making oneself acquainted with the niceties of the adjustment of its mechanism, witness is borne of the constructive talent of the horologist who made this costly and very beautiful "Bon heur de Jour." Each revolution of the long hand sets the striking power in motion, causing the gong to salute the ear with its fine, rich, mellow tones in noting the flight of time.

MAGNIFICENT EBONISED DRAWING-ROOM SUITE, inlaid with mother-o'-pearl and elaborately ornamented with various elegant designs in gold, superbly upholstered in very rich terra cotta and sage green silk tapestry, and stuffed throughout with best quality horse hair, consisting of luxurious settee, with stuffed back, two massive and large armchairs with stuffed backs and stuff over arm rests, trimmed with silk bullion fringe, and four ladies' occasional chairs, stuffed to match, and other Furniture en suite.

. The extraordinary workmanship and splendid finish of the drawing-room furniture, inlaid as it is with mother-o'-pearl, almost defies the pen to adequately convey to the mind all the excellencies with which it is surrounded. The covering of the suite is particulary noticeable as being of a very rich description.

MASSIVE DARK OAK DINING-TABLE, made on an improved plan, telescopic at both ends, furnished with four spare leaves, richly carved legs well secured by massive ornamental ties.

. This is a beautifully finished and very substantial article, almost suited to a baronial mansion.

MAGNIFICENT BARONIAL SOLID DARK OAK SIDEBOARD of NOBLE PROPORTIONS, fitted with enclosed cupboards, and 7 plate drawers, large open recess in centre; furnished underneath with 3 cupboards of large capacity, marble slab top (Queen Anne). The entire front is most elaborately decorated with various rich carvings and projecting mouldings in the best style. The panels of the cupboard doors and the fronts of the plate drawers have been splendidly beautified by the deft hand of the carver in wood. Both interior and exterior have been made a matter of careful study, so that this costly article may be regarded as excellent for accommodation and perfect in all its numerous and intricate details of finish. The carving and superb workmanship, together with the beauty of the design, deserve the highest commendation, and should be the object of much attention on the part of gentlemen attending at the premises to make an inspection on view day.

BRILLIANT-TONED WALNUT PIANOFORTE, nearly new.

MAGNIFICENT BEDROOM FURNITURE, &c., &c.

Also, Mr. MALONY'S SELECT COLLECTION OF PICTURES, a few of which are facsimiles in oils of the great works of RAPHAEL and MURILLO, viz.,

"St. Joseph Infant Saviour," and
"St. John,"
and

The whole of the MAGNIFICENT HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE and EFFECTS and VALUABLE UPRIGHT GRAND PIANOFORTE, KITCHEN UTENSILS, &c.

. CATALOGUES OBTAINABLE AT THE ROOMS.

. The Auctioneers cannot too fervently draw attention to the class of Furniture to be offered at this VERY IMPORTANT SALE. It will doubtless be gathered even from the brief description given of some of the articles enumerated above that the Furniture is FIRST-CLASS, and so it is—in fact, it is almost unapproachable, in whatever aspect it may be viewed. The PICTURES are a SPECIALTY, and are deserving of particular mention. Religious subjects are entitled to first place, and here we have a few such pictures which should draw to them unbounded admiration, and have an interest for the whole community. Reference to the catalogue should be made for further particulars, which it is very desirable that intending purchasers should make themselves thoroughly familiar, and then take the opportunity without fail of making an inspection on Monday next.

. ON VIEW on MONDAY NEXT from 9 a.m. to 5.30 p.m., and PRIOR TO SALE ON TUESDAY.

The centre support or pedestal is artistically decorated with SPLENDID ORMOLU BRONZE MOUNTS, Cupids at foot in bold relief blowing a huntsman's horn. Hark! Follow. Hark!

The Poet Bloomfield in describing a Fox Hunt has given a description of the top of this table to a dot:—

"For now the pack, impatient, rushing on,
Range through the darkest coverts one by one;
Trace every spot, while down each noble glade
That guides the eye beneath a changeful shade.
The loitering sportsman feels the instinctive flame,
And checks his steed to mark the springing game
'Midst intersecting cuts and winding ways,
The huntsman cheers his dogs, and anxious strays
Where every narrow riding, even shorn,
Gives back the echo of his mellow horn."

TO THE GENTRY, and COLLECTORS of CHINA.

NEWTON and LAMB have been favoured with instructions to submit to public competition, at the Australian Auction Rooms, Spring-street, on WEDNESDAY, 13th March, at 11 a.m., UNIQUE COLLECTION of SEVRES, VIENNA, and SALOPIAN CHINA, and various Beautiful PORCELAINS.

. The late Sir CHARLES COMPTON DOMVILLE, Bart., in granting the privilege of entree to Santry Court for the inspection of his SPLENDID and CHOICE COLLECTION of ART TREASURES, instituted an enjoyable medium of intellectual delight and instruction, which was used to great advantage by the public at large, and such was his benign liberality in this and other respects that he has left behind him a name that will long be remembered with infinite pleasure and gratitude.

Many of the FINEST WORKS of this FAMOUS COLLECTION have, in consequence of the demise of the noble baronet, been severed from their time-honoured Hibernian home, and owing to their transportation, SWEET MORSELS have come to us, FULL of INTEREST and BEAUTY. The PROPRIETOR, an EXPERIENCED JUDGE and COLLECTOR, by introducing so many DISTINGUISHED SPECIMENS of HIGH ART, is deserving of the highest encomiums. An enterprise of this kind is fraught with good, and cannot but exert a beneficial influence in directing the public taste, and affording the native-born who have not yet visited the capitals of Europe an opportunity of inspecting the chefs d'œuvre such as may be seen in the national museums and other Art Repositories of the old world. To reap the full benefit of a commercial speculation, the collection ought undoubtedly to have been sent to one or other of the Continental Art Centres for disposal; but dame Fortune, in a mood of lavish prodigality, turned the prow, and directed the RICHLY-FREIGHTED ARGOSY to our fortunate shores, and fate having decreed that the DAZZLING GEMS must be sold at auction, collectors of china can turn their predilections to good account by having the opportunity of selecting from a RARE CHOICE of REMARKABLE WORKS, in every probability unrivalled by any previous collection. Moreover, the important fact must not be overlooked that buyers attending this sale will also have the EXTRAORDINARY CHANCE of SECURING ANCIENT SPECIMENS from RENOWNED POTTERIES in the HIGHEST STATE of PRESERVATION, each piece bearing the Distinguishing MARK of AUTHENTICITY, affixed at the time of its production.

. YOU ARE INVITED TO VISIT GRATUITOUSLY THE EXHIBITION OF THESE EXQUISITE TREASURES OF ART AT THE AUCTIONEERS' ROOMS, SPRING-STREET, THIS DAY, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; and on MONDAY and TUESDAY, 11th and 12th instant, from 9 a.m. to 5.30 p.m.; and on WEDNESDAY, 13th instant, prior to commencement of sale.

CATALOGUES Raisonné obtainable at the counting-house of the auctioneers, or any person favouring us with their address shall receive a copy by return post.

. NEWTON and LAMB issue a SPECIAL INVITATION through the medium of this journal to ladies to make an inspection on the above-named days.

To Builders, Contractors, and others.
